TITLE X—RESIDENTIAL LEAD-BASED PAINT HAZARD REDUCTION ACT OF 1992

SEC. 1001. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Residential Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Act of 1992".

SEC. 1002. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds that—

(1) low-level lead poisoning is widespread among American children, afflicting as many as 3,000,000 children under age 6, with minority and low-income communities disproportionately affected;

(2) at low levels, lead poisoning in children causes intelligence quotient deficiencies, reading and learning disabilities, impaired hearing, reduced attention span, hyperactivity, and behavior problems;

(3) pre-1980 American housing stock contains more than 3,000,000 tons of lead in the form of lead-based paint, with the vast majority of homes built before 1950 containing substantial amounts of lead-based paint;

(4) the ingestion of household dust containing lead from deteriorating or abraded lead-based paint is the most common cause of lead poisoning in children;

(5) the health and development of children living in as many as 3,800,000 American homes is endangered by chipping or peeling lead paint, or excessive amounts of lead-contaminated dust in their homes;

(6) the danger posed by lead-based paint hazards can be reduced by abating lead-based paint or by taking interim measures to prevent paint deterioration and limit children's exposure to lead dust and chips;

(7) despite the enactment of laws in the early 1970's requiring the Federal Government to eliminate as far as practicable lead-based paint hazards in federally owned, assisted, and insured housing, the Federal response to this national crisis remains severely limited; and

(8) the Federal Government must take a leadership role in building the infrastructure—including an informed public, State and local delivery systems, certified inspectors, contractors, and laboratories, trained workers, and available financing and insurance—necessary to ensure that the national goal of eliminating lead-based paint hazards in housing can be achieved as expeditiously as possible.

SEC. 1003. PURPOSES.

The purposes of this Act are—

(1) to develop a national strategy to build the infrastructure necessary to eliminate lead-based paint hazards in all housing as expeditiously as possible;

(2) to reorient the national approach to the presence of lead-based paint in housing to implement, on a priority basis, a broad program to evaluate and reduce lead-based paint hazards in the Nation's housing stock;

(3) to encourage effective action to prevent childhood lead poisoning by establishing a workable framework for lead-based paint hazard evaluation and reduction and by ending the current confusion over reasonable standards of care;

(4) to ensure that the existence of lead-based paint hazards is taken into account in the development of Government housing policies and in the sale, rental, and renovation of homes and apartments;

(5) to mobilize national resources expeditiously, through a partnership among all levels of government and the private sector, to develop the most promising, cost-effective methods for evaluating and reducing lead-based paint hazards;

(6) to reduce the threat of childhood lead poisoning in housing owned, assisted, or transferred by the Federal Government; and

(7) to educate the public concerning the hazards and sources of lead-based paint poisoning and steps to reduce and eliminate such hazards.

(C) had a 10-day opportunity (unless the parties mutually agreed upon a different period of time) before becoming obligated under the contract to purchase the housing to conduct a risk assessment or inspection for the presence of lead-based paint hazards.

(3) CONTENTS OF LEAD WARNING STATEMENT.—The Lead Warning Statement shall contain the following text printed in large type on a separate sheet of paper attached to the contract:

"Every purchaser of any interest in residential real property on which a residential dwelling was built prior to 1978 is notified that such property may present exposure to lead from lead-based paint that may place young children at risk of developing lead poisoning. Lead poisoning in young children may produce permanent neurological damage, including learning disabilities, reduced intelligence quotient, behavioral problems, and impaired memory. Lead poisoning also poses a particular risk to pregnant women. The seller of any interest in residential real property is required to provide the buyer with any information on lead-based paint hazards from risk assessments or inspections in the seller's possession and notify the buyer of any known lead-based paint hazards. A risk assessment or inspection for possible lead-based paint hazards is recommended prior to purchase.".

(4) COMPLIANCE ASSURANCE.—Whenever a seller or lessor has entered into a contract with an agent for the purpose of selling or leasing a unit of target housing, the regulations promulgated under this section shall require the agent, on behalf of the seller or lessor, to ensure compliance with the requirements of this section.

(5) PROMULGATION.—A suit may be brought against the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency under section 20 of the Toxic Substances Control Act to compel promulgation of the regulations required under this section and the Federal district court shall have jurisdiction to order such promulgation.

(b) PENALTIES FOR VIOLATIONS.—

(1) MONETARY PENALTY.—Any person who knowingly violates any provision of this section shall be subject to civil money penalties in accordance with the provisions of section 102 of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Reform Act of 1989 (42 U.S.C. 3545).

(2) ACTION BY SECRETARY.—The Secretary is authorized to take such lawful action as may be necessary to enjoin any violation of this section.

(3) CIVIL LIABILITY.—Any person who knowingly violates the provisions of this section shall be jointly and severally liable to the purchaser or lessee in an amount equal to 3 times the amount of damages incurred by such individual.

(4) COSTS.—In any civil action brought for damages pursuant to paragraph (3), the appropriate court may award court costs to the party commencing such action, together with reasonable attorney fees and any expert witness fees, if that party prevails.

(5) PROHIBITED ACT.—It shall be a prohibited act under section 409 of the Toxic Substances Control Act for any person to fail or refuse to comply with a provision of this section or with any rule or order issued under this section. For purposes of enforcing this section under the Toxic Substances Control Act, the penalty for each violation applicable under section 16 of that Act shall not be more than $10,000.

(c) VALIDITY OF CONTRACTS AND LIENS.—Nothing in this section shall affect the validity or enforceability of any sale or contract for the purchase and sale or lease of any interest in residential real property or any loan, loan agreement, mortgage, or lien made or arising in connection with a mortgage loan, nor shall anything in this section create a defect in title.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The regulations under this section shall take effect 3 years after the date of the enactment of this title.

"(a) REGULATIONS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this section, the Administrator shall, in consultation with the Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and the Secretary of Health and Human Services (acting through the Director of the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health), promulgate final regulations governing lead-based paint activities to ensure that individuals engaged in such activities are properly trained; that training programs are accredited; and that contractors engaged in such activities are certified. Such regulations shall contain standards for performing lead-based paint activities, taking into account reliability, effectiveness, and safety. Such regulations shall require that all risk assessment, inspection, and abatement activities performed in target housing shall be performed by certified contractors, as such term is defined in section 1004 of the Residential Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Act of 1992. The provisions of this section shall supersede the provisions set forth under the heading 'Lead Abatement Training and Certification' and under the heading 'Training Grants' in title III of the Act entitled 'An Act making appropriations for the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and for sundry independent agencies, commissions, corporations, and offices for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1992, and for other purposes', Public Law 102-139, and upon the enactment of this section the provisions set forth in such public law under such headings shall cease to have any force and effect.

"(2) ACCREDITATION OF TRAINING PROGRAMS.—Final regulations promulgated under paragraph (1) shall contain specific requirements for the accreditation of lead-based paint activities training programs for workers, supervisors, inspectors and planners, and other individuals involved in lead-based paint activities, including, but not limited, to each of the following:

"(A) persons operating training programs accredited under this title; and

"(B) lead-based paint activities contractors certified in accordance with paragraph (1).

The fees shall be established at such level as is necessary to cover the costs of administering and enforcing the standards and regulations under this section which are applicable to such programs and contractors. The fee shall not be imposed on any State, local government, or nonprofit training program. The Administrator (or the State in the case of an authorized State program) may waive the fee for lead-based paint activities contractors under subparagraph (A) for the purpose of training their own employees.

"(b) LEAD-BASED PAINT ACTIVITIES.—For purposes of this title, the term 'lead-based paint activities' means—

"(1) in the case of target housing, risk assessment, inspection, and abatement; and

"(2) in the case of any public building constructed before 1978, commercial building, bridge, or other structure or superstructure, identification of lead-based paint and materials containing lead-based paint, deleading, removal of lead from bridges, and demolition.

For purposes of paragraph (2), the term 'deleading' means activities conducted by a person who offers to eliminate lead-based paint or lead-based paint hazards or to plan such activities.

"(1) GUIDELINES.—In order to reduce the risk of exposure to lead in connection with renovation and remodeling of target housing, public buildings constructed before 1978, and commercial buildings, the Administrator shall, within 18 months after the enactment of this section, promulgate guidelines for the conduct of such renovation and remodeling activities which may create a risk of exposure to dangerous levels of lead. The Administrator shall disseminate such guidelines to persons engaged in such renovation and remodeling through hardware and paint stores, employee organizations, trade groups, State and local agencies, and through other appropriate means.

"(2) STUDY OF CERTIFICATION.—The Administrator shall conduct a study of the extent to which persons engaged in various types of renovation and remodeling activities in target housing, public buildings constructed before 1978, and commercial buildings are exposed to lead in the conduct of such activities or disturb lead and create a lead-based paint hazard on a regular or occasional basis. The Administrator shall complete such study and publish the results thereof within 30 months after the enactment of this section.

"(3) CERTIFICATION DETERMINATION.—Within 4 years after the enactment of this section, the Administrator shall revise the regulations under subsection (a) to apply the regulations to renovation or remodeling activities in target housing, public buildings constructed before 1978, and commercial buildings that create lead-based paint hazards. In determining which contractors are engaged in such activities, the Administrator shall utilize the results of the study under paragraph (2) and consult with the representatives of labor organizations, lead-based paint activities contractors, persons engaged in remodeling and renovation, experts in lead health effects, and others. If the Administrator determines that any category of contractors engaged in renovation or remodeling does not require certification, the Administrator shall publish an explanation of the basis for that determination.

"SEC. 403. IDENTIFICATION OF DANGEROUS LEVELS OF LEAD.

"Within 18 months after the enactment of this title, the Administrator shall promulgate regulations which shall identify, for purposes of this title and the Residential Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Act of 1992, lead-based paint hazards, lead-contaminated dust, and lead-contaminated soil.

Any such State may also certify to the Administrator at the time of submitting such program that the State program meets the requirements of paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (b). Upon submission of such certification, the State program shall be deemed to be authorized under this section, and shall apply in such State in lieu of the corresponding Federal program under section 402 or 406, or both, as the case may be, until such time as the Administrator disapproves the program or withdraws the authorization.

"(b) APPROVAL OR DISAPPROVAL.—Within 180 days following submission of an application under subsection (a), the Administrator shall approve or disapprove the application. The Administrator may approve the application only if, after notice and after opportunity for public hearing, the Administrator finds that—

"(1) the State program is at least as protective of human health and the environment as the Federal program under section 402 or 406, or both, as the case may be, and

"(2) such State program provides adequate enforcement.

Upon authorization of a State program under this section, it shall be unlawful for any person to violate or fail or refuse to comply with any requirement of such program.

"(c) WITHDRAWAL OF AUTHORIZATION.—If a State is not administering and enforcing a program authorized under this section in compliance with standards, regulations, and other requirements of this title, the Administrator shall so notify the State and, if corrective action is not completed within a reasonable time, not to exceed 180 days, the Administrator shall withdraw authorization of such program and establish a Federal program pursuant to this title.

"(d) MODEL STATE PROGRAM.—Within 18 months after the enactment of this title, the Administrator shall promulgate a model State program which may be adopted by any State which seeks to administer and enforce a State program under this title. Such model program shall, to the extent practicable, encourage States to utilize existing State and local certification and accreditation programs and procedures. Such program shall encourage reciprocity among the States with respect to the certification under section 402.

"(e) OTHER STATE REQUIREMENTS.—Nothing in this title shall be construed to prohibit any State or political subdivision thereof from imposing any requirements which are more stringent than those imposed by this title.

"(f) STATE AND LOCAL CERTIFICATION.—The regulations under this title shall, to the extent appropriate, encourage States to seek program authorization and to use existing State and local certification and accreditation procedures, except that a State or local government shall not require more than 1 certification under this section for any lead-based paint activities contractor to carry out lead-based paint activities in the State or political subdivision thereof.

"(g) GRANTS TO STATES.—The Administrator is authorized to make grants to States to develop and carry out authorized State programs under this section. The grants shall be subject to such terms and conditions as the Administrator may establish to further the purposes of this title.

Within 2 years after the enactment of this title, the Administrator, in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, shall establish a program to certify laboratories as qualified to test substances for lead content unless the Administrator determines, by the date specified in this paragraph, that effective voluntary accreditation programs are in place and operating on a nationwide basis at the time of such determination. To be certified under such program, a laboratory shall, at a minimum, demonstrate an ability to test substances accurately for lead content.

"(2) Not later than 24 months after the date of the enactment of this section, and annually thereafter, the Administrator shall publish and make available to the public a list of certified or accredited environmental sampling laboratories.

"(3) If the Administrator determines under paragraph (1) that effective voluntary accreditation programs are in place for environmental sampling laboratories, the Administrator shall review the performance and effectiveness of such programs within 3 years after such determination. If, upon such review, the Administrator determines that the voluntary accreditation programs are not effective in assuring the quality and consistency of laboratory analyses, the Administrator shall, not more than 12 months thereafter, establish a certification program that meets the requirements of paragraph (1).

"(c) EXPOSURE STUDIES.—(1) The Secretary of Health and Human Services (hereafter in this subsection referred to as the 'Secretary'), acting through the Director of the Centers for Disease Control, (CDC), and the Director of the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, shall jointly conduct a study of the sources of lead exposure in children who have elevated blood lead levels (or other indicators of elevated lead body burden), as defined by the Director of the Centers for Disease Control.

(c) LOCATION OF PROPERTIES.—The Secretary shall monitor the performance of each enterprise in carrying out this section and shall evaluate such performance (for purposes of section 1336) based on the location of the properties subject to mortgages purchased by each enterprise.

(d) TRANSITION.—

(1) INTERIM TARGET.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, during the 2-year period beginning on January 1, 1993, the annual target under this section for purchases by each enterprise of mortgages on housing located in central cities shall be 30 percent of the total number of dwelling units financed by mortgage purchases of the enterprise.

(2) INTERIM GOAL.—During such 2-year period, the Secretary shall establish a separate annual goal for each enterprise, the achievement of which shall require—

(A) an enterprise that is not meeting the target under paragraph (1) upon January 1, 1993, to improve its performance relative to such target annually and, to the maximum extent feasible, to meet such target at the conclusion of such 2-year period; and

(B) an enterprise that is meeting the target under paragraph (1) upon January 1, 1993, to improve its performance relative to the target.

(3) DEFINITION OF CENTRAL CITY.—For purposes of this subsection, the term "central city" means any political subdivision designated as a central city by the Office of Management and Budget.

(4) IMPLEMENTATION.—The Secretary shall establish any requirements necessary to implement the transition provisions under this subsection by notice, after providing the enterprises with an opportunity to review and comment not less than 30 days before the issuance of such notice. Such notice shall be issued not later than the expiration of the 90-day period beginning upon the date of the enactment of this Act and shall be effective upon issuance.

SEC. 1335. OTHER REQUIREMENTS.

To meet the low- and moderate-income housing goal under section 1332, the special affordable housing goal under section 1333, and the central cities, rural areas, and other underserved areas housing goal under section 1334, each enterprise shall—

SEC. 1336. MONITORING AND ENFORCING COMPLIANCE WITH HOUSING GOALS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall monitor and enforce compliance with the housing goals established under sections 1332, 1333, and 1334, as provided in this section.

(2) GUIDELINES.—The Secretary shall establish guidelines to measure the extent of compliance with the housing goals, which may assign full credit, partial credit, or no credit toward achievement of the housing goals to different categories of mortgage purchase activities of the enterprises, based on such criteria as the Secretary deems appropriate.

(3) EXTENT OF COMPLIANCE.—In determining compliance with the housing goals established under this subpart, the Secretary—

(A) shall consider any single mortgage purchased by an enterprise as contributing to the achievement of each housing goal for which such mortgage purchase qualifies; and

(B) may take into consideration the number of housing units financed by any mortgage on housing purchased by an enterprise.

(b) NOTICE AND DETERMINATION OF FAILURE TO MEET GOALS.—

(1) NOTICE.—If the Secretary determines that an enterprise has failed, or that there is a substantial probability that an enterprise will fail, to meet any housing goal established under section 1332, 1333, or 1334, the Secretary shall provide written notice to the enterprise of such a determination, the reasons for such determination, the requirement to submit a housing plan under subsection (c) of this section, and the information on which the Secretary based the determination or imposed such requirement.

(2) RESPONSE PERIOD.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—During the 30-day period beginning on the date that an enterprise is provided notice under paragraph (1), the enterprise may submit to the Secretary any written information that the enterprise considers appropriate for consideration by the Secretary in determining whether such failure has occurred or whether the achievement of such goal was or is feasible.

(B) EXTENDED PERIOD.—The Secretary may extend the period under subparagraph (A) for good cause for not more than 30 additional days.

(C) SHORTENED PERIOD.—The Secretary may shorten the period under subparagraph (A) for good cause.

(D) FAILURE TO RESPOND.—The failure of an enterprise to provide information during the 30-day period under this paragraph (as extended or shortened) shall waive any right of the enterprise to comment on the proposed determination or action of the Secretary.

(3) CONSIDERATION OF INFORMATION AND DETERMINATION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—After the expiration of the response period under paragraph (2) or upon receipt of information provided during such period by the enterprise, whichever occurs earlier, the Secretary shall determine (i) whether the enterprise has failed, or there is a substantial probability that the enterprise will fail, to meet the housing goal, and (ii) whether (taking into consideration market and economic conditions and the financial condition of the enterprise) the achievement of the housing goal was or is feasible.

(B) CONSIDERATIONS.—In making such determinations, the Secretary shall take into consideration any relevant information submitted by the enterprise during the response period.

(C) NOTICE.—The Secretary shall provide written notice to the enterprise, the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate, of—

(i) each determination that an enterprise has failed, or that there is a substantial probability that the enterprise will fail, to meet a housing goal;

(ii) each determination that the achievement of a housing goal was or is feasible; and

(iii) the reasons for each such determination.

Such notice shall respond to any information submitted during the response period.

(c) HOUSING PLANS.—

(1) REQUIREMENT.—If the Secretary finds pursuant to subsection (b), that an enterprise has failed, or that there is a substantial probability that an enterprise will fail, to meet any housing goal established under section 1332, 1333, or 1334, and that the achievement of the housing goal was or is feasible, the Secretary shall require the enterprise to submit a housing plan under this subsection for approval by the Secretary.

(2) CONTENTS.—Each housing plan shall be a feasible plan describing the specific actions the enterprise will take—

(A) to achieve the goal for the next calendar year; or

(B) if the Secretary determines that there is a substantial probability that the enterprise will fail to meet a goal in the current year, to make such improvements as are reasonable in the remainder of such year.

The plan shall be sufficiently specific to enable the Secretary to monitor compliance periodically.

(3) DEADLINE FOR SUBMISSION.—The Secretary shall, by regulation, establish a deadline for an enterprise to submit a housing plan to the Secretary, which may not be more than 45 days after the enterprise is provided notice under subsection (b)(3) that a housing plan is required. The regulations shall provide that the Secretary may extend the deadline to the extent that the Secretary determines necessary. Any extension of the deadline shall be in writing and for a time certain.

(4) APPROVAL.—The Secretary shall review each housing plan submitted under this subsection and, not later than 30 days after submission of the plan, approve or disapprove the plan. The Secretary may extend the period for approval or disapproval for a single additional 30-day period if the Secretary determines it necessary. The Secretary shall approve any plan that the Secretary determines is likely to succeed, and conforms with the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act or the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation Act (as applicable), this title, and any other applicable laws and regulations.

(5) NOTICE OF APPROVAL AND DISAPPROVAL.—The Secretary shall provide written notice to any enterprise submitting a housing plan of the approval or disapproval of the plan (which shall include the reasons for any disapproval of the plan) and of any extension of the period for approval or disapproval.

(6) RESUBMISSION.—If the initial housing plan submitted by an enterprise is disapproved, the enterprise shall submit an amended plan acceptable to the Secretary within 30 days or such longer period that the Secretary determines is in the public interest.

SEC. 1337. REPORTS DURING TRANSITION.

Each enterprise shall submit to the Secretary, the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate, a report for each transitional housing goal for the enterprise under section 1332(d), 1333(d), or 1334(d), describing the actions the enterprise plans to take to meet such goal. Each such report shall be submitted within 45 days after the establishment of the goal for which the report is submitted.

SEC. 1338. EFFECTIVE DATE OF TRANSITION GOALS.

The housing goals established under sections 1332(d), 1333(d), and 1334(d) shall not become effective until January 1, 1993.

(a) GROUNDS FOR ISSUANCE.—The Secretary may issue and serve a notice of charges under this section upon an enterprise if, in the determination of the Secretary—

(1) the enterprise has failed to submit a housing plan that substantially complies with section 1336(c) within the applicable period;

(2) the enterprise is engaging or has engaged, or the Secretary has reasonable cause to believe that the enterprise is about to engage, in any failure to make a good faith effort to comply with a housing plan for the enterprise submitted and approved under section 1336(c); or

(3) the enterprise has failed to submit the information required under subsection (m) or (n) of section 309 of the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act, subsection (e) or (f) of section 307 of the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation Act, or section 1337 of this title.

(b) PROCEDURE.—

(1) NOTICE OF CHARGES.—Each notice of charges shall contain a statement of the facts constituting the alleged conduct and shall fix a time and place at which a hearing will be held to determine on the record whether an order to cease and desist from such conduct should issue.

(2) ISSUANCE OF ORDER.—If the Secretary finds on the record made at such hearing that any conduct specified in the notice of charges has been established (or the enterprise consents pursuant to section 1342(a)(4)), the Secretary may issue and serve upon the enterprise an order requiring the enterprise to (A) submit a housing plan in compliance with section 1336(c), (B) comply with the housing plan, or (C) provide the information required under subsection (m) or (n) of section 309 of the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act, subsection (e) or (f) of section 307 of the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation Act, or section 1337 of this title.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—An order under this section shall become effective upon the expiration of the 30-day period beginning on the service of the order upon the enterprise (except in the case of an order issued upon consent, which shall become effective at the time specified therein), and shall remain effective and enforceable as provided in the order, except to the extent that the order is stayed, modified, terminated, or set aside by action of the Secretary or otherwise, as provided in this subpart.

(d) TRANSITION PERIOD LIMITATION.—The Secretary may not impose any cease-and-desist order under this section for any failure by an enterprise, during the 2-year period beginning on January 1, 1993, to comply with an approved housing plan, unless the Secretary determines that the enterprise has intentionally failed to make a good faith effort to comply with the approved plan.

SEC. 1342. HEARINGS.

(a) REQUIREMENTS.—

(1) VENUE AND RECORD.—Any hearing under section 1341 or 1345 shall be held on the record and in the District of Columbia.

(2) TIMING.—Any such hearing shall be fixed for a date not earlier than 30 days nor later than 60 days after service of the notice of charges under section 1341(b)(1) or determination to impose a penalty under section 1345(c)(1), unless an earlier or a later date is set by the hearing officer at the request of the enterprise served.

(3) PROCEDURE.—Any such hearing shall be conducted in accordance with chapter 5 of title 5, United States Code.

(b) ISSUANCE OF ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—After any such hearing, and within 90 days after the enterprise has been notified that the case has been submitted to the Secretary for final decision, the Secretary shall render the decision (which shall include findings of fact upon which the decision is predicated) and shall issue and serve upon the enterprise an order or orders consistent with the provisions of this subpart.

(2) MODIFICATION.—Judicial review of any such order shall be exclusively as provided in section 1343. Unless such a petition for review is timely filed as provided in section 1343, and thereafter until the record in the proceeding has been filed as so provided, the Secretary may at any time, modify, terminate, or set aside any such order, upon such notice and in such manner as the Secretary considers proper. Upon such filing of the record, the Secretary may modify, terminate, or set aside any such order with permission of the court.

Such court shall have jurisdiction and power to order and require compliance herewith.

(b) LIMITATION ON JURISDICTION.—Except as otherwise provided in this subpart, no court shall have jurisdiction to affect, by injunction or otherwise, the issuance or enforcement of any notice or order under section 1341 or 1345, or to review, modify, suspend, terminate, or set aside any such notice or order.

SEC. 1345. CIVIL MONEY PENALTIES.

(b) AMOUNT OF PENALTY.—The amount of the penalty, as determined by the Secretary, may not exceed—

(1) for any failure described in subsection (a)(1), $25,000 for each day that the failure occurs; and

(2) for any failure described in subsection (a)(2) or (3), $10,000 for each day that the failure occurs.

(c) PROCEDURES.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary shall establish standards and procedures governing the imposition of civil money penalties under this section. Such standards and procedures—

(A) shall provide for the Secretary to notify the enterprise in writing of the Secretary's determination to impose the penalty, which shall be made on the record;

(B) shall provide for the imposition of a penalty only after the enterprise has been given an opportunity for a hearing on the record pursuant to section 1342; and

(C) may provide for review by the Director for any determination or order, or interlocutory ruling, arising from a hearing.

(2) FACTORS IN DETERMINING AMOUNT OF PENALTY.—In determining the amount of a penalty under this section, the Secretary shall give consideration to such factors as the gravity of the offense, any history of prior offenses, ability to pay the penalty, injury to the public, benefits received, deterrence of future violations, and such other factors as the Secretary may determine, by regulation, to be appropriate.

(d) ACTION TO COLLECT PENALTY.—If an enterprise fails to comply with an order by the Secretary imposing a civil money penalty under this section, after the order is no longer subject to review as provided by sections 1342 and 1343, the Secretary may request the Attorney General of the United States to bring an action in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia to obtain a monetary judgment against the enterprise and such other relief as may be available. The monetary judgment may, in the court's discretion, include the attorneys fees and other expenses incurred by the United States in connection with the action. In an action under this subsection, the validity and appropriateness of the order imposing the penalty shall not be subject to review.

(e) SETTLEMENT BY SECRETARY.—The Secretary may compromise, modify, or remit any civil money penalty which may be, or has been, imposed under this section.

(f) TRANSITION PERIOD LIMITATION.—The Secretary may not impose any civil money penalty under this section for any failure by an enterprise, during the 2-year period beginning on January 1, 1993, to comply with an approved housing plan, unless the Secretary determines that the enterprise has intentionally failed to make a good faith effort to comply with an approved plan.

SEC. 1346. PUBLIC DISCLOSURE OF FINAL ORDERS AND AGREEMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall make available to the public—

(1) any written agreement or other written statement for which a violation may be redressed by the Secretary or any modification to or termination thereof, unless the Secretary, in the Secretary's discretion, determines that public disclosure would be contrary to the public interest or determines under subsection (c) that public disclosure would seriously threaten the financial health or security of the enterprise;

(2) any order that is issued with respect to any administrative enforcement proceeding initiated by the Secretary under this subpart and that has become final in accordance with sections 1342 and 1343; and

(3) any modification to or termination of any final order made public pursuant to this subsection.

(c) DELAY OF PUBLIC DISCLOSURE UNDER EXCEPTIONAL CIRCUMSTANCES.—If the Secretary makes a determination in writing that the public disclosure of any final order pursuant to subsection (a) would seriously threaten the financial soundness of the enterprise, the Secretary may delay the public disclosure of such order for a reasonable time.

(d) DOCUMENTS FILED UNDER SEAL IN PUBLIC ENFORCEMENT HEARINGS.—The Secretary may file any document or part thereof under seal in any hearing under this subpart if the Secretary determines in writing that disclosure thereof would be contrary to the public interest.

Such courts shall have jurisdiction and power to order and require compliance therewith.

(d) FEES AND EXPENSES.—Witnesses subpoenaed under this section shall be paid the same fees and mileage that are paid witnesses in the district courts of the United States. Any court having jurisdiction of any proceeding instituted under this section by an enterprise may allow to any such party such reasonable expenses and attorneys fees as the court deems just and proper. Such expenses and fees shall be paid by the enterprise or from its assets.

SEC. 1354. REVIEW OF UNDERWRITING GUIDELINES.

(a) STUDY.—Each of the enterprises shall conduct a study to review the underwriting guidelines of the enterprise. The studies shall examine—

(1) the extent to which the underwriting guidelines prevent or inhibit the purchase or securitization of mortgages for housing located in mixed-use, urban center, and predominantly minority neighborhoods and for housing for low- and moderate-income families;

(2) the standards employed by private mortgage insurers and the extent to which such standards inhibit the purchase and securitization by the enterprises of mortgages described in paragraph (1); and

(A) establish a downpayment requirement for mortgagors of 5 percent or less;

(B) allow the use of cash on hand as a source for downpayments; and

(C) approve borrowers who have a credit history of delinquencies if the borrower can demonstrate a satisfactory credit history for at least the 12-month period ending on the date of the application for the mortgage.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than the expiration of the 1-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act, each enterprise shall submit to the Secretary, the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate a report regarding the study conducted by the enterprise under subsection (a). (a) IN GENERAL.—The Comptroller General of the United States, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Director of the Congressional Budget Office shall each conduct and submit to the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate, not later than the expiration of the 2-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act, a study regarding the desirability and feasibility of repealing the Federal charters of the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, eliminating any Federal sponsorship of the enterprises, and allowing the enterprises to continue to operate as fully private entities.

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—Each study shall particularly examine the effects of such privatization on—

(1) the requirements applicable to the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation under Federal law and the costs to the enterprises;

(2) the cost of capital to the enterprises;

(3) housing affordability and availability and the cost of homeownership;

(4) the level of secondary mortgage market competition subsequently available in the private sector;

(5) whether increased amounts of capital would be necessary for the enterprises to continue operation;

(6) the secondary market for residential loans and the liquidity of such loans; and

(7) any other factors that the Comptroller General, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of the Treasury, or the Director of the Congressional Budget Office deems appropriate to enable the Congress to evaluate the desirability and feasibility of privatization of the enterprises.

(c) INFORMATION.—The Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation shall provide full and prompt access to the Comptroller General, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Director of the Congressional Budget Office to any books, records, and other information requested for the purposes of conducting the studies under this section.

(d) VIEWS OF THE FNMA AND FHLMC.—

(1) CONSIDERATION IN STUDIES.—In conducting the studies under this section, the Comptroller General, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Director of the Congressional Budget Office shall each consider the views of the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation.

SEC. 1356. TRANSITION.

Before the expiration of the period ending 18 months after the appointment of the Director under section 1312, any rules and regulations promulgated before the date of the enactment of this Act by the Secretary pursuant to the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act or the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation Act shall remain in effect unless modified, terminated, superseded, or revoked by operation of law or in accordance with law. Such rules and regulations shall terminate, effective upon the expiration of such period.

Subtitle B—Required Capital Levels for Enterprises and Special Enforcement Powers

SEC. 1361. RISK-BASED CAPITAL LEVELS.

(a) RISK-BASED CAPITAL TEST.—The Director shall, by regulation, establish a risk-based capital test under this section for the enterprises. When applied to an enterprise, the risk-based capital test shall determine the amount of total capital for the enterprise that is sufficient for the enterprise to maintain positive capital during a 10-year period in which the following circumstances occur (in this section referred to as the "stress period"):

(1) CREDIT RISK.—With respect to mortgages owned or guaranteed by the enterprise and other obligations of the enterprise, losses occur throughout the United States at a rate of default and severity (based on any measurements of default reasonably related to prevailing practice for that industry in determining capital adequacy) reasonably related to the rate and severity that occurred in contiguous areas of the United States containing an aggregate of not less than 5 percent of the total population of the United States that, for a period of not less than 2 years, experienced the highest rates of default and severity of mortgage losses, in comparison with such rates of default and severity of mortgage losses in other such areas for any period of such duration.

(2) INTEREST RATE RISK.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Interest rates decrease as described in subparagraph (B) or increase as described in subparagraph (C), whichever would require more capital for the enterprise.

(B) DECREASES.—The 10-year constant maturity Treasury yield decreases during the first year of the stress period and will remain at the new level for the remainder of the stress period. The yield decreases to the lesser of—

(i) 600 basis points below the average yield during the preceding 9 months, or

(ii) 60 percent of the average yield during the preceding 3 years,

but in no case to a yield less than 50 percent of the average yield during the preceding 9 months.

(C) INCREASES.—The 10-year constant maturity Treasury yield increases during the first year of the stress period and will remain at the new level for the remainder of the stress period. The yield increases to the greater of—

(i) 600 basis points above the average yield during the preceding 9 months, or

but in no case to a yield greater than 175 percent of the average yield during the preceding 9 months.

(D) DIFFERENT TERMS TO MATURITY.—Yields of Treasury instruments with other terms to maturity will change relative to the 10-year constant maturity Treasury yield in patterns and for durations that are reasonably related to historical experience and are judged reasonable by the Director.

(E) LARGE INCREASES IN YIELDS.—If the 10-year constant maturity Treasury yield is assumed to increase by more than 50 percent over the average yield during the preceding 9 months, the Director shall adjust the losses in paragraphs (1) and (3) to reflect a correspondingly higher rate of general price inflation.

(3) NEW BUSINESS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Any contractual commitments of the enterprise to purchase mortgages or issue securities will be fulfilled. The characteristics of resulting mortgage purchases, securities issued, and other financing will be consistent with the contractual terms of such commitments, recent experience, and the economic characteristics of the stress period. No other purchases of mortgages shall be assumed, except as provided in subparagraph (B).

(B) ADDITIONAL NEW BUSINESS.—The Director may, after consideration of each of the studies required by subparagraph (C), assume that the enterprise conducts additional new business during the stress period consistent with the following—

(i) AMOUNT AND PRODUCT TYPES.—The amount and types of mortgages purchased and their financing will be reasonably related to recent experience and the economic characteristics of the stress period.

(ii) LOSSES.—Default and loss severity characteristics of mortgages purchased will be reasonably related to historical experience.

(iii) PRICING.—Prices charged by the enterprise in purchasing new mortgages will be reasonably related to recent experience and the economic characteristics of the stress period. The Director may assume that a reasonable period of time would lapse before the enterprise would recognize and react to the characteristics of the stress period.

(iv) INTEREST RATE RISK.—Interest rate risk on new mortgages purchased will occur to an extent reasonably related to historical experience.

(v) RESERVES.—The enterprise must maintain reserves during and at the end of the stress period on new business conducted during the first 5 years of the stress period reasonably related to the expected future losses on such business, consistent with generally accepted accounting principles and industry accounting practice.

(C) STUDIES.—Within 1 year after regulations are first issued under subsection (e), the Director of the Congressional Budget Office, and the Comptroller General of the United States shall each submit to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs of the House of Representatives a study of the advisability and appropriate form of any new business assumptions under subparagraph (B).

(D) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The provisions of subparagraph (B) shall become effective 4 years after regulations are first issued under subsection (e).

(4) OTHER ACTIVITIES.—Losses or gains on other activities, including interest rate and foreign exchange hedging activities, shall be determined by the Director, on the basis of available information, to be consistent with the stress period.

(b) CONSIDERATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In establishing the risk-based capital test under subsection (a), the Director shall take into account appropriate distinctions among types of mortgage products, differences in seasoning of mortgages, and any other factors the Director considers appropriate.

(A) PRIOR APPROVAL.—An enterprise that is classified as significantly undercapitalized may not make any capital distribution that would result in the enterprise being reclassified as critically undercapitalized. An enterprise that is classified as significantly undercapitalized enterprise may not make any other capital distribution unless the Director approves the distribution.

(B) STANDARD FOR APPROVAL.—The Director may approve a capital distribution by an enterprise classified as significantly undercapitalized only if the Director determines that the distribution (i) will enhance the ability of the enterprise to meet the risk-based capital level and the minimum capital level for the enterprise promptly, (ii) will contribute to the long-term financial safety and soundness of the enterprise, or (iii) is otherwise in the public interest.

(b) DISCRETIONARY SUPERVISORY ACTIONS.—In addition to any other actions taken by the Director (including actions under subsection (a)), the Director may, at any time, take any of the following actions with respect to an enterprise that is classified as significantly undercapitalized:

(2) EXCEPTION.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the Director may determine not to appoint a conservator for an enterprise classified as critically undercapitalized, but only pursuant to a written finding by the Director, with the written concurrence of the Secretary of the Treasury, that—

(A) the appointment of a conservator would have serious adverse effects on economic conditions of national financial markets or on the financial stability of the housing finance market; and

(B) the public interest would be better served by taking some other enforcement action authorized under this title.

(b) AUTHORITY.—The Director shall have the authority to take any actions under sections 1365 and 1366 with respect to an enterprise under conservatorship.

(1) CONSERVATOR.—The conservator of any enterprise classified as critically undercapitalized may undertake an activity subject to the approval of the Secretary under section 1322 of this title only with the additional approval of the Director.

(4) FAILURE TO RESPOND.—The failure of an enterprise to provide information during the response period under this subsection (as extended or shortened) shall waive any right of the enterprise to comment on the proposed action of the Director.

(d) CONSIDERATION OF INFORMATION AND DETERMINATION.—After the expiration of the response period under subsection (c) or upon receipt of information provided during such period by the enterprise, whichever occurs earlier, the Director shall determine whether to take the action proposed, taking into consideration any relevant information submitted by the enterprise during the response period. The Director shall provide written notice of a determination to take action and the reasons for such determination to the enterprise, the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate. (b) JUDICIAL REVIEW.—

(1) TIMING AND JURISDICTION.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), an enterprise for which a conservator is appointed (pursuant to this section or section 1366 or 1367) may bring an action in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia for an order requiring the Director to terminate the appointment of the conservator. (4) LIMITATION ON JURISDICTION.—Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, no court may take any action regarding the removal of a conservator or otherwise restrain or affect the exercise of powers or functions of a conservator.

(c) REPLACEMENT.—The Director may, without notice or hearing, replace a conservator with another conservator. Such replacement shall not affect the right of the enterprise under subsection (b) to obtain judicial review of the decision of the Director to appoint a conservator.

(d) EXAMINATIONS.—The Director may examine and supervise any enterprise in conservatorship during the period in which the enterprise continues to operate as a going concern.

(e) TERMINATION.—

(1) DISCRETIONARY.—At any time the Director determines that termination of a conservatorship pursuant to an appointment under subsection (a) is in the public interest and may safely be accomplished, the Director may terminate the conservatorship and permit the enterprise to resume the transaction of its business subject to such terms, conditions, and limitations as the Director may prescribe.

(2) MANDATORY.—The Director shall terminate a conservatorship initiated pursuant to section 1366 or 1367 upon a determination by the Director that the enterprise has maintained an amount of core capital that is equal to or exceeds the minimum capital level for the enterprise established under section 1362, and may by written order prescribe such terms, conditions, and limitations on the enterprise as the Director considers appropriate.

(d) ENFORCEMENT OF CONTRACTS.—

(3) APPLICABILITY.—This subsection and any regulation or order issued under this subsection shall apply only to contracts entered into, modified, extended, or renewed after the effective date of the regulation or order.

(e) STAYS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 45 days after appointment pursuant to section 1366, 1367, or 1369, or 45 days after receipt of actual notice of an action or proceeding that is pending at the time of appointment, a conservator may request that any judicial action or proceeding to which the conservator or the enterprise is or may become a party be stayed for a period not exceeding 45 days after the request. Upon petition, the court shall grant such stay as to all parties.

(2) FEDERAL AGENCY AS CONSERVATOR.—In any case in which the conservator appointed for an enterprise is a Federal agency or an officer or employee of the Federal Government, the conservator may make a request for a stay under paragraph (1) only with the prior consent of the Attorney General and subject to the direction and control of the Attorney General.

Compensation may not be provided in amounts greater than the compensation paid to employees of the Federal Government for similar services, except that the Director may provide for compensation at higher rates (but not in excess of rates prevailing in the private sector), if the Director determines that compensation at higher rates is necessary in order to recruit and retain competent personnel.

(h) EXPENSES.—All expenses of a conservatorship pursuant to this section (including compensation pursuant to subsection (f)) shall be paid by the enterprise under conservatorship and shall be secured by a lien on the enterprise, which shall have priority over any other lien.

(b) OTHER CONSERVATORS.—In any case where the conservator is not a conservator described in subsection (a), the conservator shall not be personally liable for damages in tort or otherwise for acts or omissions performed pursuant to and in the course of the duties and responsibilities of the conservatorship, unless such acts or omissions constitute gross negligence or any form of intentional tortious conduct or criminal conduct.

(b) DEADLINES FOR SUBMISSION.—The Director shall, by regulation, establish a deadline for submission of a capital restoration plan, which may not be more than 45 days after the enterprise is notified in writing that a plan is required. The regulations shall provide that the Director may extend the deadline to the extent that the Director determines it necessary. Any extension of the deadline shall be in writing and for a time certain.

(c) APPROVAL.—The Director shall review each capital restoration plan submitted under this section and, not later than 30 days after submission of the plan, approve or disapprove the plan. The Director may extend the period for approval or disapproval for any plan for a single additional 30-day period if the Director determines it necessary. The Director shall provide written notice to any enterprise submitting a plan of the approval or disapproval of the plan (which shall include the reasons for any disapproval of the plan) and of any extension of the period for approval or disapproval.

(d) RESUBMISSION.—If the Director disapproves the initial capital restoration plan submitted by the enterprise, the enterprise shall submit an amended plan acceptable to the Director within 30 days or such longer period that the Director determines is in the public interest.

(a) JURISDICTION.—

(1) FILING OF PETITION.—An enterprise that is not classified as critically undercapitalized and is the subject of a classification under section 1364 or a discretionary supervisory action taken under this subtitle by the Director (other than action to appoint a conservator under section 1366 or 1367 or action under section 1369) may obtain review of the classification or action by filing, within 10 days after receiving written notice of the Director's action, a written petition requesting that the classification or action of the Director be modified, terminated, or set aside.

(2) PLACE FOR FILING.—A petition filed pursuant to this subsection shall be filed in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

(b) SCOPE OF REVIEW.—The Court may modify, terminate, or set aside an action taken by the Director and reviewed by the Court pursuant to this section only if the court finds, on the record on which the Director acted, that the action of the Director was arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with applicable laws.

(c) UNAVAILABILITY OF STAY.—The commencement of proceedings for judicial review pursuant to this section shall not operate as a stay of any action taken by the Director. Pending judicial review of the action, the court shall not have jurisdiction to stay, enjoin, or otherwise delay any supervisory action taken by the Director with respect to an enterprise that is classified as significantly or critically undercapitalized or any action of the Director that results in the classification of an enterprise as significantly or critically undercapitalized.

(d) LIMITATION ON JURISDICTION.—Except as provided in this section, no court shall have jurisdiction to affect, by injunction or otherwise, the issuance or effectiveness of any classification or action of the Director under this subtitle (other than appointment of a conservator under section 1366 or 1367 or action under section 1369) or to review, modify, suspend, terminate, or set aside such classification or action.

"(4) If a State makes a determination under paragraph (1) that it is not appropriate for such State to revise its residential building code, such State shall submit to the Secretary, in writing, the reasons for such determination, and such statement shall be available to the public.

"(5)(A) Whenever CABO Model Energy Code, 1992, (or any successor of such code) is revised, the Secretary shall, not later than 12 months after such revision, determine whether such revision would improve energy efficiency in residential buildings. The Secretary shall publish notice of such determination in the Federal Register.

"(B) If the Secretary makes an affirmative determination under subparagraph (A), each State shall, not later than 2 years after the date of the publication of such determination, certify that it has reviewed the provisions of its residential building code regarding energy efficiency and made a determination as to whether it is appropriate for such State to revise such residential building code provisions to meet or exceed the revised code for which the Secretary made such determination.

(ii) $4,000.

(3) AUTHORITY FOR MORTGAGEES.—In granting mortgages under the pilot program established pursuant to this subsection, the Secretary shall grant mortgagees the authority—

(A) to permit the final loan amount to exceed the loan limits established under title II of the National Housing Act by an amount not to exceed 100 percent of the cost of the cost-effective energy efficiency improvements, if the mortgagor's request to add the cost of such improvements is received by the mortgagee prior to funding of the base loan;

(B) to hold in escrow all funds provided to the mortgagor to undertake the energy efficiency improvements until the efficiency improvements are actually installed; and

(C) to transfer or sell the energy efficient mortgage to the appropriate secondary market agency, after the mortgage is issued, but before the energy efficiency improvements are actually installed.

(4) PROMOTION OF PILOT PROGRAM.—The Secretary shall encourage participation in the energy efficient mortgage pilot program by—

(A) making available information to lending agencies and other appropriate authorities regarding the availability and benefits of energy efficient mortgages;

(B) requiring mortgagees and designated lending authorities to provide written notice of the availability and benefits of the pilot program to mortgagors applying for financing in those States designated by the Secretary as participating under the pilot program; and

(c) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section:

(1) The term "base loan" means any mortgage loan for a residential building eligible for insurance under title II of the National Housing Act or title 38, United States Code, that does not include the cost of cost-effective energy improvements.

(2) The term "cost-effective" means, with respect to energy efficiency improvements to a residential building, improvements that result in the total present value cost of the improvements (including any maintenance and repair expenses) being less than the total present value of the energy saved over the useful life of the improvement, when 100 percent of the cost of improvements is added to the base loan. For purposes of this paragraph, savings and cost-effectiveness shall be determined pursuant to a home energy rating report sufficient for purposes of the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, or by other technically accurate methods.

(3) The term "energy efficient mortgage" means a mortgage on a residential building that recognizes the energy savings of a home that has cost-effective energy saving construction or improvements (including solar water heaters, solar-assisted air conditioners and ventilators, super-insulation, and insulating glass and film) and that has the effect of not disqualifying a borrower who, but for the expenditures on energy saving construction or improvements, would otherwise have qualified for a base loan.

(4) The term "residential building" means any attached or unattached single family residence.

(d) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—This section may not be construed to affect any other programs of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development for energy-efficient mortgages. The pilot program carried out under this section shall not replace or result in the termination of such other programs.

(e) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall issue any regulations necessary to carry out this section not later than the expiration of the 180-day period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act. The regulations shall be issued after notice and opportunity for public comment pursuant to the provisions of section 553 of title 5, United States Code (notwithstanding subsections (a)(2), (b)(B), and (d)(3) of such section).

(a) AMENDMENT TO THE PUBLIC UTILITY REGULATORY POLICIES ACT.—The Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-617; 92 Stat. 3117; 16 U.S.C. 2601 and following) is amended by adding the following at the end of section 111(d):

"(7) INTEGRATED RESOURCE PLANNING.—Each electric utility shall employ integrated resource planning. All plans or filings before a State regulatory authority to meet the requirements of this paragraph must be updated on a regular basis, must provide the opportunity for public participation and comment, and contain a requirement that the plan be implemented.

"(8) INVESTMENTS IN CONSERVATION AND DEMAND MANAGEMENT.—The rates allowed to be charged by a State regulated electric utility shall be such that the utility's investment in and expenditures for energy conservation, energy efficiency resources, and other demand side management measures are at least as profitable, giving appropriate consideration to income lost from reduced sales due to investments in and expenditures for conservation and efficiency, as its investments in and expenditures for the construction of new generation, transmission, and distribution equipment. Such energy conservation, energy efficiency resources and other demand side management measures shall be appropriately monitored and evaluated.

"(9) ENERGY EFFICIENCY INVESTMENTS IN POWER GENERATION AND SUPPLY.— The rates charged by any electric utility shall be such that the utility is encouraged to make investments in, and expenditures for, all cost-effective improvements in the energy efficiency of power generation, transmission and distribution. In considering regulatory changes to achieve the objectives of this paragraph, State regulatory authorities and nonregulated electric utilities shall consider the disincentives caused by existing ratemaking policies, and practices, and consider incentives that would encourage better maintenance, and investment in more efficient power generation, transmission and distribution equipment.".

"(3) If a State regulatory authority implements a standard established by subsection (d)(7) or (8), such authority shall—

"(A) consider the impact that implementation of such standard would have on small businesses engaged in the design, sale, supply, installation or servicing of energy conservation, energy efficiency or other demand side management measures, and

"(B) implement such standard so as to assure that utility actions would not provide such utilities with unfair competitive advantages over such small businesses.".

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Section 112(b) of such Act is amended by inserting "(or after the enactment of the Comprehensive National Energy Policy Act in the case of standards under paragraphs (7), (8), and (9) of section 111(d)" after "Act" in both places such word appears in paragraphs (1) and (2).

(d) DEFINITIONS.—Section 3 of such Act is amended by adding the following new paragraphs at the end thereof:

"(19) The term 'integrated resource planning' means, in the case of an electric utility, a planning and selection process for new energy resources that evaluates the full range of alternatives, including new generating capacity, power purchases, energy conservation and efficiency, cogeneration and district heating and cooling applications, and renewable energy resources, in order to provide adequate and reliable service to its electric customers at the lowest system cost. The process shall take into account necessary features for system operation, such as diversity, reliability, dispatchability, and other factors of risk; shall take into account the ability to verify energy savings achieved through energy conservation and efficiency and the projected durability of such savings measured over time; and shall treat demand and supply resources on a consistent and integrated basis.

"(20) The term 'system cost' means all direct and quantifiable net costs for an energy resource over its available life, including the cost of production, distribution, transportation, utilization, waste management, and environmental compliance.

"(21) The term 'demand side management' includes load management techniques.".

(e) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall transmit a report to the President and to the Congress containing—

(1) a survey of all State laws, regulations, practices, and policies under which State regulatory authorities implement the provisions of paragraphs (7), (8), and (9) of section 111(d) of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978;

(2) an evaluation by the Secretary of whether and to what extent, integrated resource planning is likely to result in—

(A) higher or lower electricity costs to an electric utility's ultimate consumers or to classes or groups of such consumers;

(B) enhanced or reduced reliability of electric service; and

(C) increased or decreased dependence on particular energy resources; and

(3) a survey of practices and policies under which electric cooperatives prepare integrated resource plans, submit such plans to the Rural Electrification Administration and the extent to which such integrated resource planning is reflected in rates charged to customers.

The report shall include an analysis prepared in conjunction with the Federal Trade Commission, of the competitive impact of implementation of energy conservation, energy efficiency, and other demand side management programs by utilities on small businesses engaged in the design, sale, supply, installation, or servicing of similar energy conservation, energy efficiency, or other demand side management measures and whether any unfair, deceptive, or predatory acts exist, or are likely to exist, from implementation of such programs.

SEC. 112. ENERGY EFFICIENCY GRANTS TO STATE REGULATORY AUTHORITIES.

(a) ENERGY EFFICIENCY GRANTS.—The Secretary is authorized in accordance with the provisions of this section to provide grants to State regulatory authorities in an amount not to exceed $250,000 per authority, for purposes of encouraging demand-side management including energy conservation, energy efficiency and load management techniques and for meeting the requirements of paragraphs (7), (8), and (9) of section 111(d) of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 and as a means of meeting gas supply needs and to meet the requirements of paragraphs (3) and (4) of section 303(b) of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978. Such grants may be utilized by a State regulatory authority to provide financial assistance to nonprofit subgrantees of the Department of Energy's Weatherization Assistance Program in order to facilitate participation by such subgrantees in proceedings of such regulatory authority to examine energy conservation, energy efficiency, or other demand-side management programs.

(b) PLAN.—A State regulatory authority wishing to receive a grant under this section shall submit a plan to the Secretary that specifies the actions such authority proposes to take that would achieve the purposes of this section.

(c) SECRETARIAL ACTION.—(1) In determining whether, and in what amount, to provide a grant to a State regulatory authority under this section the Secretary shall consider, in addition to other appropriate factors, the actions proposed by the State regulatory authority to achieve the purposes of this section and to consider implementation of the ratemaking standards established in—

(A) paragraphs (7), (8) and (9) of section 111(d) of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978; or

(B) paragraphs (3) and (4) of section 303(b) of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978.

(2) Such actions—

(A) shall include procedures to facilitate the participation of grantees and nonprofit subgrantees of the Department of Energy's Weatherization Assistance Program in proceedings of such regulatory authorities examining demand-side management programs; and

(B) shall provide for coverage of the cost of such grantee and subgrantees' participation in such proceedings.

(d) RECORDKEEPING.—Each State regulatory authority that receives a grant under this section shall keep such records as the Secretary shall require.

(e) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section, the term "State regulatory authority" shall have the same meaning as provided by section 3 of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 in the case of electric utilities, and such term shall have the same meaning as provided by section 302 of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 in the case of gas utilities, except that in the case of any State without a statewide ratemaking authority, such term shall mean the State energy office.

(g) AUTHORIZATION.—There are authorized to be appropriated $5,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1994, 1995 and 1996 to carry out the purposes of this section.

SEC. 113. TENNESSEE VALLEY AUTHORITY LEAST-COST PLANNING PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Tennessee Valley Authority shall conduct a least-cost planning program in accordance with this section.

(b) CONDUCT OF PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In conducting a least-cost planning program under subsection (a), the Tennessee Valley Authority shall employ and implement a planning and selection process for new energy resources which evaluates the full range of existing and incremental resources (including new power supplies, energy conservation and efficiency, and renewable energy resources) in order to provide adequate and reliable service to electric customers of the Tennessee Valley Authority at the lowest system cost.

(2) PLANNING AND SELECTION PROCESS.—The planning and selection process referred to in paragraph (1) shall—

(A) take into account necessary features for system operation, including diversity, reliability, dispatchability, and other factors of risk;

(B) take into account the ability to verify energy savings achieved through energy conservation and efficiency and the projected durability of such savings measured over time; and

(C) treat demand and supply resources on a consistent and integrated basis.

(3) SYSTEM COST DEFINED.—As used in paragraph (1), the term "system cost" means all direct and quantifiable net costs for an energy resource over its available life, including the cost of production, transportation, utilization, waste management, environmental compliance, and, in the case of imported energy resources, maintaining access to foreign sources of supply.

(c) PARTICIPATION BY DISTRIBUTORS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In conducting a least-cost planning program under subsection (a), the Tennessee Valley Authority shall—

(A) provide an opportunity for distributors of the Tennessee Valley Authority to recommend cost-effective energy efficiency opportunities, rate structure incentives, and renewable energy proposals for inclusion in such program; and

(B) encourage and assist such distributors in the planning and implementation of cost-effective energy efficiency options.

(2) ASSISTANCE.—The Tennessee Valley Authority shall provide appropriate assistance to distributors under paragraph (1)(B). Such assistance shall, where cost effective, be provided by the Tennessee Valley Authority acting through, or in cooperation with, an association of distributors. Such assistance may include publications, workshops, conferences, one-on-one assistance, financial assistance, equipment loans, technology assessment studies, marketing studies, and other appropriate mechanisms to transfer information on energy efficiency and renewable energy options and programs to customers.

(d) PUBLIC REVIEW AND COMMENT.—Before the selection and addition of a major new energy resource on the Tennessee Valley Authority system, the Tennessee Valley Authority shall provide an opportunity for public review and comment and shall include a description of any such action in an annual report to the President and Congress.

(e) EXEMPTION FROM CERTAIN REQUIREMENTS.—The Tennessee Valley Authority shall not be subject to the least-cost planning requirements contained in section 111(d) of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 or any similar requirement which might arise out of the Tennessee Valley Authority's electric power transactions with the Southeastern Power Administration.

SEC. 114. AMENDMENT OF HOOVER POWER PLANT ACT.

Title II of the Hoover Power Plant Act of 1984 (42 U.S.C. 7275–7276, Public Law 98–381) is amended to read as follows:

"TITLE II—INTEGRATED RESOURCE PLANNING

"Sec. 201. Definitions.
"Sec. 202. Regulations to require integrated resource planning.
"Sec. 203. Technical assistance.
"Sec. 204. Integrated resource plans.
"Sec. 205. Miscellaneous provisions.

"SEC. 201. DEFINITIONS.

"As used in this title:

"(1) The term 'Administrator' means the Administrator of the Western Area Power Administration.

"(2) The term 'integrated resource planning' means a planning process for new energy resources that evaluates the full range of alternatives, including new generating capacity, power purchases, energy conservation and efficiency, cogeneration and district heating and cooling applications, and renewable energy resources, in order to provide adequate and reliable service to its electric customers at the lowest system cost. The process shall take into account necessary features for system operation, such as diversity, reliability, dispatchability, and other factors of risk; shall take into account the ability to verify energy savings achieved through energy conservation and efficiency and the projected durability of such savings measured over time; and shall treat demand and supply resources on a consistent and integrated basis.

"(3) The term 'least cost option' means an option for providing reliable electric services to electric customers which will, to the extent practicable, minimize life-cycle system costs, including adverse environmental effects, of providing such service. To the extent practicable, energy efficiency and renewable resources may be given priority in any least-cost option.

"(4) The term 'long-term firm power service contract' means any contract for the sale by Western Area Power Administration of firm capacity, with or without energy, which is to be delivered over a period of more than one year.

"(5) The terms 'customer' or 'customers' means any entity or entities purchasing firm capacity with or without energy, from the Western Area Power Administration under a long-term firm power service contract. Such terms include parent-type entities and their distribution or user members.

"(6) For any customer, the term 'applicable integrated resource plan' means the integrated resource plan approved by the Administrator under this title for that customer.

"SEC. 202. REGULATIONS TO REQUIRE INTEGRATED RESOURCE PLANNING.

"(a) REGULATIONS.—Within 1 year after the enactment of this section, the Administrator shall, by regulation, revise the Final Amended Guidelines and Acceptance Criteria for Customer Conservation and Renewable Energy Programs published in the Federal Register on August 21, 1985 (50 F.R. 33892), or any subsequent amendments thereto, to require each customer purchasing electric energy under a long-term firm power service contract with the Western Area Power Administration to implement, within 3 years after the enactment of this section, integrated resource planning in accordance with the requirements of this title.

"(b) CERTAIN SMALL CUSTOMERS.—Notwithstanding subsection (a), for customers with total annual energy sales or usage of 25 Gigawatt Hours or less which are not members of a joint action agency or a generation and transmission cooperative with power supply responsibility, the Administrator may establish different regulations and apply such regulations to customers that the Administrator finds have limited economic, managerial, and resource capability to conduct integrated resource planning. The regulations under this subsection shall require such customers to consider all reasonable opportunities to meet their future energy service requirements using demand-side techniques, new renewable resources and other programs that will provide retail customers with electricity at the lowest possible cost, and minimize, to the extent practicable, adverse environmental effects.

"SEC. 203. TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.

"The Administrator may provide technical assistance to customers to, among other things, conduct integrated resource planning, implement applicable integrated resource plans, and otherwise comply with the requirements of this title. Technical assistance may include publications, workshops, conferences, one-to-one assistance, equipment loans, technology and resource assessment studies, marketing studies, and other mechanisms to transfer information on energy efficiency and renewable energy options and programs to customers. The Administrator shall give priority to providing technical assistance to customers that have limited capability to conduct integrated resource planning.

"SEC. 204. INTEGRATED RESOURCE PLANS.

"(a) REVIEW BY WESTERN AREA POWER ADMINISTRATION.—Within 1 year after the enactment of this section, the Administrator shall, by regulation, revise the Final Amended Guidelines and Acceptance Criteria for Customer Conservation and Renewable Energy Programs published in the Federal Register on August 21, 1985 (50 F.R. 33892), or any subsequent amendments thereto, to require each customer to submit an integrated resource plan to the Administrator within 12 months after such regulations are amended. The regulation shall require a revision of such plan to be submitted every 5 years after the initial submission. The Administrator shall review the initial plan in accordance with a schedule established by the Administrator (which schedule will provide for the review of all initial plans within 24 months after such regulations are amended), and each revision thereof within 120 days after his receipt of the plan or revision and determine whether the customer has in the development of the plan or revision, complied with this title. Plan amendments may be submitted to the Administrator at any time and the Administrator shall review each such amendment within 120 days after receipt thereof to determine whether the customer in amending its plan has complied with this title. If the Administrator determines that the customer, in developing its plan, revision, or amendment, has not complied with the requirements of this title, the customer shall resubmit the plan at any time thereafter. Whenever a plan or revision or amendment is resubmitted the Administrator shall review the plan or revision or amendment within 120 days after his receipt thereof to determine whether the customer has complied with this title.

"(b) CRITERIA FOR APPROVAL OF INTEGRATED RESOURCE PLANS.—The Administrator shall approve an integrated resource plan submitted as required under subsection (a) if, in developing the plan, the customer has:

"(1) Identified and accurately compared all practicable energy efficiency and energy supply resource options available to the customer.

"(2) Included a 2-year action plan and a 5-year action plan which describe specific actions the customer will take to implement its integrated resource plan.

"(3) Designated 'least-cost options' to be utilized by the customer for the purpose of providing reliable electric service to its retail consumers and explained the reasons why such options were selected.

"(4) To the extent practicable, minimized adverse environmental effects of new resource acquisitions.

"(5) In preparation and development of the plan (and each revision or amendment of the plan) has provided for full public participation, including participation by governing boards.

"(6) Included load forecasting.

"(7) Provided methods of validating predicted performance in order to determine whether objectives in the plan are being met.

"(8) Met such other criteria as the Administrator shall require.

"(c) USE OF OTHER INTEGRATED RESOURCE PLANS.—Where a customer or group of customers are implementing integrated resource planning under a program responding to Federal, State, or other initiatives, including integrated resource planning considered and implemented pursuant to section 111(d) of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978, in evaluating that customer's integrated resource plan under this title, the Administrator shall accept such plan as fulfillment of the requirements of this title to the extent such plan substantially complies with the requirements of this title.

"(d) COMPLIANCE WITH INTEGRATED RESOURCE PLANS.—Within 1 year after the enactment of this section, the Administrator shall, by regulation, revise the Final Amended Guidelines and Acceptance Criteria for Customer Conservation and Renewable Energy Programs published in the Federal Register on August 21, 1985 (50 F.R. 33892), or any subsequent amendments thereto, to require each customer to fully comply with the applicable integrated resource plan and submit an annual report to the Administrator (in such form and containing such information as the Administrator may require) describing the customer's progress to the goals established in such plan. After the initial review under subsection (a) the Administrator shall periodically conduct reviews of a representative sample of applicable integrated resource plans and the customer's implementation of the applicable integrated resource plan to determine if the customers are in compliance with their plans. If the Administrator finds a customer out-of-compliance, the Administrator shall impose a surcharge under this section on all electric energy purchased by the customer from the Western Area Power Administration or reduce such customer's power allocation by 10 percent, unless the Administrator finds that a good faith effort has been made to comply with the approved plan.

"(e) ENFORCEMENT.—

"(1) NO APPROVED PLAN.—If an integrated resource plan for any customer is not submitted before the date 12 months after the guidelines are amended as required under this section or if the plan is disapproved by the Administrator and a revised plan is not resubmitted by the date 9 months after the date of such disapproval, the Administrator shall impose a surcharge of 10 percent of the purchase price on all power obtained by that customer from the Western Area Power Administration after such date. The surcharge shall remain in effect until an integrated resource plan is approved for that customer. If the plan is not submitted for more than one year after the required date, the surcharge shall increase to 20 percent for the second year (or any portion thereof prior to approval of the plan) and to 30 percent thereafter until the plan is submitted or the contract for the purchase of power by such customer from the Western Area Power Administration terminates.

"(2) FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH APPROVED PLAN.—After approval by the Administrator of an applicable integrated resource plan for any customer, the Administrator shall impose a 10 percent surcharge on all power purchased by such customer from the Western Area Power Administration whenever the Administrator determines that such customer's activities are not consistent with the applicable integrated resource plan. The surcharge shall remain in effect until the Administrator determines that the customer's activities are consistent with the applicable integrated resource plan. The surcharge shall be increased to 20 percent if the customer's activities are out of compliance for more than one year and to 30 percent after more than 2 years, except that no surcharge shall be imposed if the customer demonstrates, to the satisfaction of the Administrator, that a good faith effort has been made to comply with the approved plan.

"(3) REDUCTION IN POWER ALLOCATION.—In the case of any customer subject to a surcharge under paragraph (1) or (2), in lieu of imposing such surcharge the Administrator may reduce such customer's power allocation from the Western Area Power Administration by 10 percent. The Administrator shall provide by regulation the terms and conditions under which a power allocation terminated under this subsection may be reinstated.

"(f) INTEGRATED RESOURCE PLANNING COOPERATIVES.—With the approval of the Administrator, customers within any State or region may form integrated resource planning cooperatives for the purposes of complying with this title, and such customers shall be allowed an additional 6 months to submit an initial integrated resource plan to the Administrator.

"(g) CUSTOMERS WITH MORE THAN 1 CONTRACT.—If more than one long-term firm power service contract exists between the Administrator and a customer, only one integrated resource plan shall be required for that customer under this title.

"(h) PROGRAM REVIEW.—Within 1 year after January 1, 1999, and at appropriate intervals thereafter, the Administrator shall initiate a public process to review the program established by this section. The Administrator is authorized at that time to revise the criteria set forth in section 204(b) to reflect changes, if any, in technology, needs, or other developments.

"SEC. 205. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

"(a) ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENT.—The provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 shall apply to actions of the Administrator implementing this title in the same manner and to the same extent as such provisions apply to other major Federal actions significantly affecting the quality of the human environment.

"(b) ANNUAL REPORTS.—The Administrator shall include in the annual report submitted by the Western Area Power Administration (1) a description of the activities undertaken by the Administrator and by customers under this title and (2) an estimate of the energy savings and renewable resource benefits achieved as a result of such activities.

"(c) STATE REGULATED INVESTOR-OWNED UTILITIES.—Any State regulated electric utility (as defined in section 3(18) of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978) shall be exempt from the provisions of this title.

"(d) RURAL ELECTRIFICATION ADMINISTRATION REQUIREMENTS.—Nothing in this title shall require a customer to take any action inconsistent with a requirement imposed by the Rural Electrification Administration".

SEC. 115. ENCOURAGEMENT OF INVESTMENTS IN CONSERVATION AND ENERGY EFFICIENCY BY GAS UTILITIES.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—Section 302 of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 (15 U.S.C. 3202) is amended by adding the following at the end thereof:

"(9) The term 'integrated resource planning' means, in the case of a gas utility, planning by the use of any standard, regulation, practice, or policy to undertake a systematic comparison between demand-side management measures and the supply of gas by a gas utility to minimize life-cycle costs of adequate and reliable utility services to gas consumers. Integrated resource planning shall take into account necessary features for system operation such as diversity, reliability, dispatchability, and other factors of risk and shall treat demand and supply to gas consumers on a consistent and integrated basis.

"(10) The term 'demand-side management' includes energy conservation, energy efficiency and load management techniques.".

(b) IN GENERAL.—Section 303(b) of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 (15 U.S.C. 3202) is amended by inserting at the end the following new paragraphs:

"(3) INTEGRATED RESOURCE PLANNING.—Each gas utility shall employ a regulator, in order to provide adequate and reliable service to its gas customers at the lowest system cost. All plans or filings of a State regulated gas utility before a State regulatory authority to meet the requirements of this paragraph shall (A) be updated on a regular basis, (B) provide the opportunity for public participation and comment, (C) provide for methods of validating predicted performance, and (D) contain a requirement that the plan be implemented after approval of the State regulatory authority. Subsection (c) shall not apply to this paragraph to the extent that it could be construed to require the State regulatory authority to extend the record of a State proceeding in submitting reports to the Federal Government.

"(4) INVESTMENTS IN CONSERVATION AND DEMAND MANAGEMENT.—The rates charged by any State regulated gas utility shall be such that the utility's prudent investments in, and expenditures for, energy conservation and load shifting programs and for other demand-side management measures which are consistent with the findings and purposes of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 are at least as profitable (taking into account the income lost due to reduced sales resulting from such programs) as prudent investments in, and expenditures for, the acquisition or construction of supplies and facilities. This objective requires that (A) regulators link the utility's net revenues, at least in part, to the utility's performance in implementing cost-effective programs promoted by this section; and (B) regulators ensure that, for purposes of recovering fixed costs, including its authorized return, the utility's performance is not affected by reductions in its retail sales volumes.".

(c) IMPACT ON SMALL BUSINESS.—Section 303 of such Act is amended by inserting the following new subsection at the end thereof:

"(d) SMALL BUSINESS IMPACTS.—If a State regulatory authority implements a standard established by subsection (b) (3) or (4), such authority shall—

"(1) consider the impact that implementation of such standard would have on small businesses engaged in the design, sale, supply, installation, or servicing of energy conservation, energy efficiency, or other demand-side management measures, and

"(2) implement such standard so as to assure that utility actions would not provide such utilities with unfair competitive advantages over such small businesses.".

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Section 303(a) of such Act is amended by inserting "(or after the enactment of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 in the case of standards under paragraphs (3), and (4) of subsection (b))" after "Act" and by striking out "standard established by subsection (b)(2)" in paragraph (2) and inserting "standards established by paragraphs (2), (3) and (4) of subsection (b)".

(e) REPORT.—The report under section 111(e) of this Act transmitted by the Secretary of Energy to the President and to the Congress shall contain a survey of all State laws, regulations, practices, and policies under which State regulatory authorities implement the provisions of paragraphs (3) and (4) of section 303(b) of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978. The report shall include an analysis, prepared in conjunction, with the Federal Trade Commission, of the competitive impact of implementation of energy conservation, energy efficiency, and other demand side management programs by gas utilities on small businesses engaged in the design, sale, supply, installation, or servicing of similar energy conservation, energy efficiency, or other demand-side management measures and whether any unfair, deceptive, or predatory acts or practices exist, or are likely to exist, from implementation of such programs.

SEC. 121. ENERGY EFFICIENCY LABELING FOR WINDOWS AND WINDOW SYSTEMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—(1) The Secretary shall, after consulting with the National Fenestration Rating Council, industry representatives, and other appropriate organizations, provide financial assistance to support a voluntary national window rating program that will develop energy ratings and labels for windows and window systems.

(2) Such rating program shall include—

(A) specifications for testing procedures and labels that will enable window buyers to make more informed purchasing decisions about the energy efficiency of windows and window systems; and

(B) information (which may be disseminated through catalogs, trade publications, labels, or other mechanisms) that will allow window buyers to assess the energy consumption and potential cost savings of alternative window products.

(3) Such rating program shall be developed by the National Fenestration Rating Council according to commonly accepted procedures for the development of national testing procedures and labeling programs.

(b) MONITORING.—The Secretary shall monitor and evaluate the efforts of the National Fenestration Rating Council and, not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, make a determination as to whether the program developed by the Council is consistent with the objectives of subsection (a).

(c) ALTERNATIVE SYSTEM.—(1) If the Secretary makes a determination under subsection (b) that a voluntary national window rating program consistent with the objectives of subsection (a) has not been developed, the Secretary shall, after consultation with the National Institute of Standards and Technology, develop, not later than two years after such determination, test procedures under section 323 of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (42 U.S.C. 6293) for windows and window systems.

(2) Not later than one year after the Secretary develops test procedures under paragraph (1), the Federal Trade Commission (hereafter in this section referred to as the "Commission") shall prescribe labeling rules under section 324 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 6294) for those windows and window systems for which the Secretary has prescribed test procedures under paragraph (1) except that, with respect to any type of window or window system (or class thereof), the Secretary may determine that such labeling is not technologically feasible or economically justified or is not likely to assist consumers in making purchasing decisions.

(3) For purposes of sections 323, 324, and 327 of such Act, each product for which the Secretary has established test procedures or labeling rules pursuant to this subsection shall be considered a new covered product under section 322 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 6292) to the extent necessary to carry out this subsection.

(4) For purposes of section 327(a) of such Act, the term "this part" includes this subsection to the extent necessary to carry out this subsection.

"(6)(A) If ASHRAE/IES Standard 90.1, as in effect on the date of enactment of the Energy Policy Act of 1992, is amended with respect to any small commercial package air conditioning and heating equipment, large commercial package air conditioning and heating equipment, packaged terminal air conditioners, packaged terminal heat pumps, warm-air furnaces, packaged boilers, storage water heaters, instantaneous water heaters, or unfired hot water storage tanks, the Secretary shall establish an amended uniform national standard for that product at the minimum level for each effective date specified in the amended ASHRAE/IES Standard 90.1, unless the Secretary determines, by rule published in the Federal Register and supported by clear and convincing evidence, that adoption of a uniform national standard more stringent than such amended ASHRAE/IES Standard 90.1 for such product would result in significant additional conservation of energy and is technologically feasible and economically justified.

"(B)(i) If the Secretary issues a rule containing such a determination, the rule shall establish such amended standard. In determining whether a standard is economically justified for the purposes of subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall, after receiving views and comments furnished with respect to the proposed standard, determine whether the benefits of the standard exceed its burdens by, to the greatest extent practicable, considering—

"(I) the economic impact of the standard on the manufacturers and on the consumers of the products subject to such standard;

"(II) the savings in operating costs throughout the estimated average life of the product in the type (or class) compared to any increase in the price of, or in the initial charges for, or maintenance expenses of, the products which are likely to result from the imposition of the standard;

"(III) the total projected amount of energy savings likely to result directly from the imposition of the standard;

"(IV) any lessening of the utility or the performance of the products likely to result from the imposition of the standard;

"(V) the impact of any lessening of competition, as determined in writing by the Attorney General, that is likely to result from the imposition of the standard;

"(VI) the need for national energy conservation; and

"(VII) other factors the Secretary considers relevant.

"(ii) The Secretary may not prescribe any amended standard under this paragraph which increases the maximum allowable energy use, or decreases the minimum required energy efficiency, of a covered product. The Secretary may not prescribe an amended standard under this subparagraph if the Secretary finds (and publishes such finding) that interested persons have established by a preponderance of the evidence that a standard is likely to result in the unavailability in the United States in any product type (or class) of performance characteristics (including reliability), features, sizes, capacities, and volumes that are substantially the same as those generally available in the United States at the time of the Secretary's finding. The failure of some types (or classes) to meet this criterion shall not affect the Secretary's determination of whether to prescribe a standard for other types or classes.

"(C) A standard amended by the Secretary under this paragraph shall become effective for products manufactured—

"(i) with respect to small commercial package air conditioning and heating equipment, packaged terminal air conditioners, packaged terminal heat pumps, warm-air furnaces, packaged boilers, storage water heaters, instantaneous water heaters, and unfired hot water storage tanks, on or after a date which is two years after the effective date of the applicable minimum energy efficiency requirement in the amended ASHRAE/IES standard referred to in subparagraph (A); and

"(ii) with respect to large commercial package air conditioning and heating equipment, on or after a date which is three years after the effective date of the applicable minimum energy efficiency requirement in the amended ASHRAE/IES standard referred to in subparagraph (A);

except that an energy conservation standard amended by the Secretary pursuant to a rule under subparagraph (B) shall become effective for products manufactured on or after a date which is four years after the date such rule is published in the Federal Register.

"(b) ELECTRIC MOTORS.—(1) Except for definite purpose motors, special purpose motors, and those motors exempted by the Secretary under paragraph (2), each electric motor manufactured (alone or as a component of another piece of equipment) after the 60-month period beginning on the date of the enactment of this subsection, or in the case of an electric motor which requires listing or certification by a nationally recognized safety testing laboratory, after the 84-month period beginning on such date, shall have a nominal full load efficiency of not less than the following:

"(2)(A) The Secretary may, by rule, provide that the standards specified in paragraph (1) shall not apply to certain types or classes of electric motors if—

"(i) compliance with such standards would not result in significant energy savings because such motors cannot be used in most general purpose applications or are very unlikely to be used in most general purpose applications; and

"(ii) standards for such motors would not be technologically feasible or economically justified.

"(B) Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this subsection, a manufacturer seeking an exemption under this paragraph with respect to a type or class of electric motor developed on or before the date of the enactment of such subsection shall submit a petition to the Secretary requesting such exemption. Such petition shall include evidence that the type or class of motor meets the criteria for exemption specified in subparagraph (A).

shall rule on each petition for exemption submitted pursuant to subparagraph (B). In making such ruling, the Secretary shall afford an opportunity for public comment.

"(D) Manufacturers of types or classes of motors developed after the date of the enactment of this subsection to which standards under paragraph (1) would be applicable may petition the Secretary for exemptions from compliance with such standards based on the criteria specified in subparagraph (A).

"(3)(A) The Secretary shall publish a final rule no later than the end of the 24-month period beginning on the effective date of the standards established under paragraph (1) to determine if such standards should be amended. Such rule shall provide that any amendment shall apply to electric motors manufactured on or after a date which is five years after the effective date of the standards established under paragraph (1).

"(B) The Secretary shall publish a final rule no later than 24 months after the effective date of the previous final rule to determine whether to amend the standards in effect for such product. Any such amendment shall apply to electric motors manufactured after a date which is five years after—

"(i) the effective date of the previous amendment; or

"(b)(1) The provisions of section 326(a), (b), and (d), section 327(a), and sections 328 through 336 shall apply with respect to the equipment specified in subparagraphs (B), (C), (D), (E), and (F) of section 340(1) to the same extent and in the same manner as they apply in part B. In applying such provisions for the purposes of such equipment, paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) of subsection (a) shall apply.

"(2)(A) A standard prescribed or established under section 342(a) shall, beginning on the effective date of such standard, supersede any State or local regulation concerning the energy efficiency or energy use of a product for which a standard is prescribed or established pursuant to such section.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF REQUIREMENTS.—The Federal Trade Commission, in consultation with the Secretary, the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Secretary of Transportation, shall, within 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, issue a notice of proposed rulemaking for a rule to establish uniform labeling requirements, to the greatest extent practicable, for alternative fuels and alternative fueled vehicles, including requirements for appropriate information with respect to costs and benefits, so as to reasonably enable the consumer to make choices and comparisons. Required labeling under the rule shall be simple and, where appropriate, consolidated with other labels providing information to the consumer. In formulating the rule, the Federal Trade Commission shall give consideration to the problems associated with developing and publishing useful and timely cost and benefit information, taking into account lead time, costs, the frequency of changes in costs and benefits that may occur, and other relevant factors. The Commission shall obtain the views of affected industries, consumer organizations, Federal and State agencies, and others in formulating the rule. A final rule shall be issued within 1 year after the notice of proposed rulemaking is issued. Such rule shall be updated periodically to reflect the most recent available information.

(b) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE AND COORDINATION.—The Secretary shall provide technical assistance to the Federal Trade Commission in developing labeling requirements under subsection (a). The Secretary shall coordinate activities under this section with activities under section 405.

SEC. 407. DATA ACQUISITION PROGRAM.

(a) Not later than one year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary, through the Energy Information Administration, and in cooperation with appropriate State, regional, and local authorities, shall establish a data collection program to be conducted in at least 5 geographically and climatically diverse regions of the United States for the purpose of collecting data which would be useful to persons seeking to manufacture, convert, sell, own, or operate alternative fueled vehicles or alternative fueling facilities. Such data shall include—

(1) identification of the number and types of motor vehicle trips made daily and miles driven per trip, including commuting, business, and recreational trips;

(2) the projections of the Secretary as to the most likely combination of alternative fueled vehicle use and other forms of transit, including rail and other forms of mass transit;

(3) cost, performance, environmental, energy, and safety data on alternative fuels and alternative fueled vehicles; and

(4) other appropriate demographic information and consumer preferences.

(b) The Secretary shall consult with interested parties, including other appropriate Federal agencies, manufacturers, public utilities, owners and operators of fleets of light duty motor vehicles, and State or local governmental entities, to determine the types of data to be collected and analyzed under subsection (a).

SEC. 408. FEDERAL ENERGY REGULATORY COMMISSION AUTHORITY TO APPROVE RECOVERY OF CERTAIN EXPENSES IN ADVANCE.

(a) NATURAL GAS MOTOR VEHICLES.—The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission may, under section 4 of the Natural Gas Act, allow recovery of expenses in advance by natural-gas companies for research, development, and demonstration activities by the Gas Research Institute for projects on the use of natural gas, including fuels derived from natural gas, for transportation, and projects on the use of natural gas to control pollutants and to control emissions from the combustion of other fuels, if the Commission finds that the benefits, including environmental benefits, to existing and future ratepayers resulting from such activities exceed all direct costs to existing and future ratepayers. To the maximum extent practicable, through the establishment of cofunding requirements applicable to such projects, the Commission shall ensure that the costs of such activities shall be provided in part, through contributions of cash, personnel, services, equipment, and other resources, by sources other than the recovery of expenses pursuant to this section.

(b) ELECTRIC MOTOR VEHICLES.—The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission may, under section 205 of the Federal Power Act, allow recovery of expenses in advance by electric utilities for research, development, and demonstration activities by the Electric Power Research Institute for projects on electric motor vehicles, if the Commission finds that the benefits, including environmental benefits, to existing and future ratepayers resulting from such activities exceed all direct costs to existing and future ratepayers. To the maximum extent practicable, through the establishment of cofunding requirements applicable to each project, the costs of such activities shall be provided, in part, through contributions of cash, personnel, services, equipment, and other resources, by sources other than the recovery of expenses pursuant to this section.

(c) REPEAL.—The second paragraph of the matter under the heading "FEDERAL ENERGY REGULATORY COMMISSION, SALARIES AND EXPENSES" in title III of the Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act, 1992, is repealed.

SEC. 409. STATE AND LOCAL INCENTIVES PROGRAMS.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF PROGRAM.—(1) The Secretary shall, within one year after the date of enactment of this Act, issue regulations establishing guidelines for comprehensive State alternative fuels and alternative fueled vehicle incentives and program plans designed to accelerate the introduction and use of such fuels and vehicles. Such guidelines shall address the development, modification, and implementation of such State plans and shall describe those program elements, as described in paragraph (3), to be addressed in such plans.

(2) The Secretary, after consultation with the Secretary of Transportation and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, shall invite the Governor of each State to submit to the Secretary a State plan within one year after the effective date of the regulations issued under paragraph (1). Such plan shall include—

(A) provisions designed to result in scheduled progress toward, and achievement of, the goal of introducing substantial numbers of alternative fueled vehicles in such State by the year 2000; and

(B) a detailed description of the requirements, including the estimated cost of implementation, of such plan.

(3) Each proposed State plan, in order to be eligible for Federal assistance under this section, shall describe the manner in which coordination shall be achieved with Federal and local governmental entities in implementing such plan, and shall include an examination of—

(A) exemption from State sales tax or other State or local taxes or surcharges (other than such taxes or surcharges which are dedicated for transportation purposes) with respect to alternative fueled vehicles, alternative fuels, or alternative fueling facilities;

(B) the introduction of alternative fueled vehicles into State-owned or operated motor vehicle fleets;

(C) special parking at public buildings and airport and transportation facilities;

(E) the treatment of sales of alternative fuels for use in alternative fueled vehicles;

(F) methods by which State and local governments might facilitate—

(i) the availability of alternative fuels; and

(ii) the ability to recharge electric motor vehicles at public locations;

(G) allowing public utilities to include in rates the incremental cost of—

(i) new alternative fueled vehicles;

(ii) converting conventional vehicles to operate on alternative fuels; and

(iii) installing alternative fuel fueling facilities, but only to the extent that the inclusion of such costs in rates would not create competitive disadvantages for other market participants, and taking into consideration the effect inclusion of such costs would have on rates, service, and reliability to other utility customers;

(H) such other programs and incentives as the State may describe;

(I) whether accomplishing any of the goals in this subsection would require amendment to State law or regulation, including traffic safety prohibitions;

(J) services provided by municipal, county, and regional transit authorities; and

(K) effects of such plan on programs authorized by the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 and amendments made by that Act.

(b) FEDERAL ASSISTANCE TO STATES.—(1) Upon request of the Governor of any State with a plan approved under this section, the Secretary may provide to such State—

(A) information and technical assistance, including model State laws and proposed regulations relating to alternative fueled vehicles;

(B) grants of Federal financial assistance for the purpose of assisting such State in the implementation of such plan or any part thereof; and

(C) grants of Federal financial assistance for the acquisition of alternative fueled vehicles.

(2) In determining whether to approve a State plan submitted under subsection (a), and in determining the amount of Federal financial assistance, if any, to be provided to any State under this subsection, the Secretary shall take into account—

(A) the energy-related and environmental-related impacts, on a life cycle basis, of the introduction and use of alternative fueled vehicles included in the plan compared to conventional motor vehicles;

(B) the number of alternative fueled vehicles likely to be introduced by the year 2000, as a result of successful implementation of the plan; and

(C) such other factors as the Secretary considers appropriate.

(3) The Secretary, in consultation with the Administrator of General Services, shall provide assistance to States in procuring alternative fueled vehicles, including coordination with Federal procurements of such vehicles.

(4) The Secretary may not approve a State plan submitted under subsection (a) unless the State agrees to provide at least 20 percent of the cost of activities for which assistance is provided under paragraph (1).

(c) GENERAL PROVISIONS.—(1) In carrying out this section, the Secretary shall consult with the Secretary of Transportation on matters relating to transportation and with other appropriate Federal and State departments and agencies.

(2) The Secretary shall report annually to the President and the Congress, and shall furnish copies of such report to the Governor of each State participating in the program, on the operation of the program under this section. Such report shall include—

(A) an estimate of the number of alternative fueled vehicles in use in each State;

(B) the degree of each State's participation in the program;

(C) a description of Federal, State, and local programs undertaken in the various States, whether pursuant to a State plan under this section or not, to provide incentives for introduction of alternative fueled vehicles;

(D) an estimate of the energy and environmental benefits of the program; and

(E) the recommendations of the Secretary, if any, for additional action by the Federal Government.

(d) DEFINITIONS.—For the purposes of this section, the following definitions apply:

(1) GOVERNOR.—The term "Governor" means the chief executive of a State.

(2) STATE.—The term "State" means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the United States Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and any other Commonwealth, territory, or possession of the United States.

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated for carrying out this section, $10,000,000 for each of the 5 fiscal years beginning after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 410. ALTERNATIVE FUEL BUS PROGRAM.

(a) COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS AND JOINT VENTURES.—(1) The Secretary of Transportation, in consultation with the Secretary, may enter into cooperative agreements and joint ventures proposed by any municipal, county, or regional transit authority in an urban area with a population over 100,000 (according to latest available census information) to demonstrate the feasibility of commercial application, including safety of specific vehicle design, of using alternative fuels for urban buses and other motor vehicles used for mass transit.

(2) The cooperative agreements and joint ventures under paragraph (1) may include interested or affected private firms willing to provide assistance in cash, or in kind, for any such demonstration.

(3) Federal assistance provided under cooperative agreements and joint ventures entered into under paragraph (1) to demonstrate the feasibility of commercial application of using alternative fuels for urban buses shall be in addition to Federal assistance provided under any other law for such purpose.

(b) LIMITATIONS.—(1) The Secretary of Transportation may not enter into cooperative agreement or joint venture under subsection (a) with any municipal, county, or regional transit authority, unless such government body agrees to provide 20 percent of the costs of such demonstration.

(2) The Secretary of Transportation may grant such priority under this section to any entity that demonstrates that the use of alternative fuels for transportation would have a significant beneficial effect on the environment.

(c) SCHOOL BUSES.—The Secretary of Transportation may also provide, in accordance with such rules as he may prescribe, financial assistance to any agency, municipality, or political subdivision in an urban area referred to in subsection (a), of any State or the District of Columbia for the purpose of meeting the incremental costs of school buses that are dedicated vehicles and used regularly for such transportation during the school term. Such costs may include the purchase and installation of alternative fuel refueling facilities to be used for school bus refueling, and the conversion of school buses to dedicated vehicles. The Secretary of Transportation may provide such assistance directly to a person who is a contractor of such agency, municipality, or political subdivision, upon the request of the agency, municipality, or political subdivision, and who, under such contract, provides for such transportation. Any conversion under this subsection shall comply with the warranty and safety requirements for alternative fuel conversions contained in section 247 of the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1990.

(d) FUNDING AUTHORIZATION.—There are authorized to be appropriated not more than $30,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1993, 1994, and 1995 for purposes of this section.

SEC. 411. CERTIFICATION OF TRAINING PROGRAMS.

The Secretary shall ensure that the Federal Government establishes and carries out a program for the certification of training programs for technicians who are responsible for motor vehicle installation of equipment that converts gasoline or diesel-fueled motor vehicles into dedicated vehicles or dual fueled vehicles, and for the maintenance of such converted motor vehicles. A training program shall not be certified under the program established under this section unless it provides technicians with instruction on the proper and safe installation procedures and techniques, adherence to specifications (including original equipment manufacturer specifications), motor vehicle operating procedures, emissions testing, and other appropriate mechanical concerns applicable to these motor vehicle conversions. The Secretary shall ensure that, in the development of the program required under this section, original equipment manufacturers, fuel suppliers, companies that convert conventional vehicles to use alternative fuels, and other affected persons are consulted.

SEC. 412. ALTERNATIVE FUEL USE IN NONROAD VEHICLES AND ENGINES.

(a) NONROAD VEHICLES AND ENGINES.—(1) The Secretary shall conduct a study to determine whether the use of alternative fuels in nonroad vehicles and engines would contribute substantially to reduced reliance on imported energy sources. Such study shall be completed, and the results thereof reported to Congress, within 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) The study shall assess the potential of nonroad vehicles and engines to run on alternative fuels. Taking into account the nonroad vehicles and engines for which running on alternative fuels is feasible, the study shall assess the potential reduction in reliance on foreign energy sources that could be achieved if such vehicles were to run on alternative fuels.

(3) The report required under paragraph (1) may include the Secretary's recommendations for encouraging or requiring nonroad vehicles and engines which can feasibly be run on alternative fuels, to utilize such alternative fuels.

(b) DEFINITION OF NONROAD VEHICLES AND ENGINES.—Nonroad vehicles and engines, for purposes of this section, shall include nonroad vehicles and engines used for surface transportation or principally for industrial or commercial purposes, vehicles used for rail transportation, vehicles used at airports, vehicles or engines used for marine purposes, and other vehicles or engines at the discretion of the Secretary.

(c) DESIGNATION.—Upon completion of the study required pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, the Secretary may designate such vehicles and engines as qualifying for loans pursuant to section 414 of this title.

SEC. 413. REPORTS TO CONGRESS.

Within 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall—

(1) identify and report to Congress on purchasing policies of the Federal Government which inhibit or prevent the purchase by the Federal Government of alternative fueled vehicles; and

(2) report to Congress on Federal, State, and local traffic control measures and policies and how the use of alternative fueled vehicles could be promoted by granting such vehicles exemptions or preferential treatment under such measures.

SEC. 414. LOW INTEREST LOAN PROGRAM.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—Within 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall establish a program for making low interest loans, giving preference to small businesses that own or operate fleets, for—

(1) the conversion of motor vehicles to operation on alternative fuels;

(2) covering the incremental costs of the purchase of motor vehicles which operate on alternative fuels, when compared with purchase costs of comparable conventionally fueled motor vehicles; or

(3) covering the incremental costs of purchase of non-road vehicles and engines designated by the Secretary pursuant to section 412(c) of this title.

(b) LOAN TERMS.—The Secretary, to the extent practicable, shall establish reasonable terms for loans made under this subsection, with preference given to repayment schedules that enable such loans to be repaid by the borrower from the cost differential between gasoline and the alternative fuel on which the motor vehicle operates.

(c) CRITERIA.—In deciding to whom loans shall be made under this subsection, the Secretary shall consider—

(1) the financial need of the applicant;

(2) the goal of assisting the greatest number of applicants; and

(3) the ability of an applicant to repay the loan, taking into account the fuel cost savings likely to accrue to the applicant.

(d) PRIORITIES.—Priority shall be given under this section to fleets where the use of alternative fuels would have a significant beneficial effect on energy security and the environment.

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary for carrying out this section, $25,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1993, 1994, and 1995.

(3)(A) In the case of a covered person described in paragraph (2) with more than one affiliate, division, or other business unit, only an affiliate, division, or business unit which is substantially engaged in the alternative fuels business (as determined by the Secretary by rule) shall be subject to this subsection.

(B) No covered person or affiliate, division, or other business unit of such person whose principal business is—

(i) transforming alternative fuels into a product that is not an alternative fuel; or

(ii) consuming alternative fuels as a feedstock or fuel in the manufacture of a product that is not an alternative fuel, shall be subject to this subsection.

(4) The vehicles purchased pursuant to this section shall be operated solely on alternative fuels except when operating in an area where the appropriate alternative fuel is unavailable.

(5) Regulations issued under paragraph (1) shall provide for the prompt exemption by the Secretary, through a simple and reasonable process, from the requirements of paragraph (1) of any covered person, in whole or in part, if such person demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that—

(A) alternative fueled vehicles that meet the normal requirements and practices of the principal business of that person are not reasonably available for acquisition; or

(B) alternative fuels that meet the normal requirements and practices of the principal business of that person are not available in the area in which the vehicles are to be operated.

(b) REVISIONS AND EXTENSIONS.—With respect to model years 1997 and thereafter, the Secretary may—

(1) revise the percentage requirements under subsection (a)(1) downward, except that under no circumstances shall the percentage requirement for a model year be less than 20 percent; and

(2) extend the time under subsection (a)(1) for up to 2 model years.

SEC. 502. REPLACEMENT FUEL SUPPLY AND DEMAND PROGRAM.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF PROGRAM.—The Secretary shall establish a program to promote the development and use in light duty motor vehicles of domestic replacement fuels. Such program shall promote the replacement of petroleum motor fuels with replacement fuels to the maximum extent practicable. Such program shall, to the extent practicable, ensure the availability of those replacement fuels that will have the greatest impact in reducing oil imports, improving the health of our Nation's economy and reducing greenhouse gas emissions.

(b) DEVELOPMENT PLAN AND PRODUCTION GOALS.—Under the program established under subsection (a), the Secretary, before October 1, 1993, in consultation with the Administrator, the Secretary of Transportation, the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of Commerce, and the heads of other appropriate agencies, shall review appropriate information and—

(1) estimate the domestic and nondomestic production capacity for replacement fuels and alternative fueled vehicles needed to implement this section;

(2) determine the technical and economic feasibility of achieving the goals of producing sufficient replacement fuels to replace, on an energy equivalent basis—

(A) at least 10 percent by the year 2000; and

(B) at least 30 percent by the year 2010,

of the projected consumption of motor fuel in the United States for each such year, with at least one half of such replacement fuels being domestic fuels;

(3) determine the most suitable means and methods of developing and encouraging the production, distribution, and use of replacement fuels and alternative fueled vehicles in a manner that would meet the program goals described in subsection (a);

(4) identify ways to encourage the development of reliable replacement fuels and alternative fueled vehicle industries in the United States, and the technical, economic, and institutional barriers to such development; and

(5) determine the greenhouse gas emission implications of increasing the use of replacement fuels, including an estimate of the maximum feasible reduction in such emissions from the use of replacement fuels.

The Secretary shall publish in the Federal Register the results of actions taken under this subsection, and provide for an opportunity for public comment.

SEC. 503. REPLACEMENT FUEL DEMAND ESTIMATES AND SUPPLY INFORMATION.

(a) ESTIMATES.—Not later than October 1, 1993, and annually thereafter, the Secretary, in consultation with the Administrator, the Secretary of Transportation, and other appropriate State and Federal officials, shall estimate for the following calendar year—

(1) the number of each type of alternative fueled vehicle likely to be in use in the United States;

(2) the probable geographic distribution of such vehicles;

(3) the amount and distribution of each type of replacement fuel; and

(4) the greenhouse gas emissions likely to result from replacement fuel use.

(b) INFORMATION.—Beginning on October 1, 1994, the Secretary shall annually require—

(1) fuel suppliers to report to the Secretary on the amount of each type of replacement fuel that such supplier—

(A) has supplied in the previous calendar year; and

(B) plans to supply for the following calendar year;

(2) suppliers of alternative fueled vehicles to report to the Secretary on the number of each type of alternative fueled vehicle that such supplier—

(A) has made available in the previous calendar year; and

(B) plans to make available for the following calendar year; and

(3) such fuel suppliers to provide the Secretary information necessary to determine the greenhouse gas emissions from the replacement fuels used, taking into account the entire fuel cycle.

(c) PROTECTION OF INFORMATION.—Information provided to the Secretary under subsection (b) shall be subject to applicable provisions of law protecting the confidentiality of trade secrets and business and financial information, including section 1905 of title 18, United States Code.

SEC. 504. MODIFICATION OF GOALS; ADDITIONAL RULEMAKING AUTHORITY.

(a) EXAMINATION OF GOALS.—Within 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act, and periodically thereafter, the Secretary shall examine the goals established under section 502(b)(2), in the context of the program goals stated under section 502(a), to determine if the goals under section 502(b)(2), including the applicable percentage requirements and dates, should be modified under this section. The Secretary shall publish in the Federal Register the results of each examination under this subsection and provide an opportunity for public comment.

(b) MODIFICATION OF GOALS.—If, after analysis of information obtained in connection with carrying out subsection (a) or section 502, or other information, and taking into account the determination of technical and economic feasibility made under section 502(b)(2), the Secretary determines that goals described in section 502(b)(2), including the percentage requirements or dates, are not achievable, the Secretary, in consultation with appropriate Federal agencies, shall, by rule, establish goals that are achievable, for purposes of this title. The modification of goals under this section may include changing the target dates specified in section 502(b)(2).

(c) ADDITIONAL RULEMAKING AUTHORITY.—If the Secretary determines that the achievement of goals described in section 502(b)(2) would result in a significant and correctable failure to meet the program goals described in section 502(a), the Secretary shall issue such additional regulations as are necessary to remedy such failure. The Secretary shall have no authority under this Act to mandate the production of alternative fueled vehicles or to specify, as applicable, the models, lines, or types of, or marketing or pricing practices, policies, or strategies for, vehicles subject to this Act. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to give the Secretary authority to mandate marketing or pricing practices, policies, or strategies for alternative fuels or to mandate the production or delivery of such fuels.

SEC. 505. VOLUNTARY SUPPLY COMMITMENTS.

The Secretary shall, by January 1, 1994, and thereafter, undertake to obtain voluntary commitments in geographically diverse regions of the United States—

(1) from fuel suppliers to make available to the public replacement fuels, including providing for the construction or availability of related fuel delivery systems;

(2) from owners of 10 or more motor vehicles to acquire and use alternative fueled vehicles and alternative fuels; and

(3) from suppliers of alternative fueled vehicles to make available to the public alternative fueled vehicles and to ensure the availability of necessary related services, in sufficient volume to achieve the goals described in section 502(b)(2) or as modified under section 504, and in order to meet any fleet requirement program established by rule under this title. The Secretary shall periodically report to the Congress on the results of efforts under this section. All voluntary commitments obtained pursuant to this section shall be available to the public, except to the extent provided in applicable provisions of law protecting the confidentiality of trade secrets and business and financial information, including section 1905 of title 18, United States Code.

SEC. 506. TECHNICAL AND POLICY ANALYSIS.

(a) REQUIREMENT.—Not later than March 1, 1995, and March 1, 1997, the Secretary shall prepare and transmit to the President and the Congress a technical and policy analysis under this section. The Secretary shall utilize the analytical capability and authorities of the Energy Information Administration and such other offices of the Department of Energy as the Secretary considers appropriate.

(b) PURPOSES.—The technical and policy analysis prepared under this section shall be based on the best available data and information obtainable by the Secretary under section 503, or otherwise, and on experience under this title and other provisions of law in the development and use of replacement fuels and alternative fueled vehicles, and shall evaluate—

(1) progress made in achieving the goals described in section 502(b)(2), as modified under section 504;

(2) the actual and potential role of replacement fuels and alternative fueled vehicles in significantly reducing United States reliance on imported oil to the extent of the goals referred to in paragraph (1); and

(3) the actual and potential availability of various domestic replacement fuels and dedicated vehicles and dual fueled vehicles.

(c) PUBLICATION.—The Secretary shall publish a proposed version of each analysis under this section in the Federal Register for public comment before transmittal to the President and the Congress. Public comment received in response to such publication shall be preserved for use in rulemaking proceedings under section 507.

SEC. 507. FLEET REQUIREMENT PROGRAM.

(a) FLEET PROGRAM PURCHASE GOALS.—(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), the following percentages of new light duty motor vehicles acquired in each model year for a fleet, other than a Federal fleet, State fleet, or fleet owned, operated, leased, or otherwise controlled by a covered person subject to section 501, shall be alternative fueled vehicles:

(A) 20 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model years 1999, 2000, and 2001;

(B) 30 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 2002;

(C) 40 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 2003;

(D) 50 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 2004;

(E) 60 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 2005; and

(F) 70 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 2006 and thereafter.

(2) The Secretary may not establish percentage requirements higher than those described in paragraph (1). The Secretary may, if appropriate, and pursuant to a rule under subsection (b), establish a lesser percentage requirement for any model year. The Secretary may, by rule, establish a date later than 1998 (or model year 1999) for initiating the fleet requirements under paragraph (1).

(3) The Secretary shall publish an advance notice of proposed rulemaking for the purpose of—

(A) evaluating the progress toward achieving the goals of replacement fuel use described in section 502(b)(2), as modified under section 504;

(B) identifying the problems associated with achieving those goals;

(C) assessing the adequacy and practicability of those goals; and

(D) considering all actions needed to achieve those goals.

The Secretary shall provide for at least 3 regional hearings on the advance notice of proposed rulemaking, with respect to which official transcripts shall be maintained. The comment period in connection with such advance notice of proposed rulemaking shall be completed within 7 months after publication of the advance notice.

(4) After the completion of such advance notice of proposed rulemaking, the Secretary shall publish in the Federal Register a proposed rule for the rule required under subsection (b), and shall provide for a public comment period, with hearings, of not less than 90 days.

(b) EARLY RULEMAKING.—(1) Not earlier than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, and after carrying out the requirements of subsection (a), the Secretary shall initiate a rulemaking to determine whether a fleet requirement program to begin in calendar year 1998 (when model year 1999 begins), or such other later date as he may select pursuant to subsection (a), is necessary under this section. Such rule, consistent with subsection (a)(1), shall establish the annual applicable model year percentage. No rule under this subsection may be promulgated after December 15, 1996, and be enforceable. A fleet requirement program shall be considered necessary and a rule therefor shall be promulgated if the Secretary finds that—

(A) the goal of replacement fuel use described in section 502(b)(2)(B), as modified under section 504, is not expected to be actually achieved by 2010, or such other date as is established under section 504, by voluntary means or pursuant to this title or any other law without such a fleet requirement program, taking into consideration the status of the achievement of the interim goal described in section 502(b)(2)(A), as modified under section 504;

(B) such goal is practicable and actually achievable within periods specified in section 502(b)(2), as modified under section 504, through implementation of such a fleet requirement program in combination with voluntary means and the application of other programs relevant to achieving such goals; and

(C) by 1998 (when model year 1999 begins) or the date specified by the Secretary in such rule for initiating a fleet requirement program—

(i) there exists sufficient evidence to ensure that the fuel and the needed infrastructure, including the supply and deliverability systems, will be installed and located at convenient places in the fleet areas subject to the rule and will be fully operational when the rule is effective to offer a reliable and timely supply of the applicable alternative fuel at reasonable costs (as compared to conventional fuels) to meet the fleet requirement program, as demonstrated through use of the provisions of section 505(1) of this title regarding voluntary commitments or other adequate, reliable, and convincing forms of agreements, arrangements, or representations that such fuels and infrastructure are in existence or will exist when the rule is effective and will be expanded as the percentages increase annually;

(ii) there will be a sufficient number of new alternative fueled vehicles from original equipment manufacturers that comply with all applicable requirements of the Clean Air Act and the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966;

(iii) such new vehicles will meet the applicable non-Federal and non-State fleet performance requirements of such fleets (including range, passenger or cargo-carrying capacity, reliability, refueling capability, vehicle mix, and economical operation and maintenance); and

(iv) establishment of a fleet requirement program by rule under this subsection will not result in unfair competitive advantages or disadvantages, or result in undue economic hardship, to the affected fleets.

(2) The Secretary shall not promulgate a rule under this subsection if he is unable to make affirmative findings in the case of each of the subparagraphs under paragraph (1), and each of the clauses under subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1).

(3) If the Secretary does not determine that such program is necessary under this subsection, the provisions of subsection (e) shall apply to the consideration in the future of any fleet requirement program. The record of this rulemaking, including the Secretary's findings, shall be incorporated into a rulemaking under that subsection. If the Secretary determines under this subsection that such program is necessary, the Secretary shall not initiate the later rulemaking under subsection (e).

(c) ADVANCE NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULEMAKING.—Not later than April 1, 1998, the Secretary shall publish an advance notice of proposed rulemaking for the purpose of—

(1) evaluating the progress toward achieving the goals of replacement fuel use described in section 502(b)(2), as modified under section 504;

(2) identifying the problems associated with achieving those goals;

(3) assessing the adequacy and practicability of those goals; and

(4) considering all actions needed to achieve those goals.

The Secretary shall provide for at least 3 regional hearings on the advance notice of proposed rulemaking, with respect to which official transcripts shall be maintained. The comment period in connection with such advance notice of proposed rulemaking shall be completed within 7 months after publication of the advance notice.

(d) PROPOSED RULE.—Before May 1, 1999, the Secretary shall publish in the Federal Register a proposed rule for the rule required under subsection (g), and shall provide for a public comment period, with hearings, of not less than 90 days.

(e) DETERMINATION.—(1) Not later than January 1, 2000, the Secretary shall, through the rule required under subsection (g), determine whether a fleet requirement program is necessary under this section. Such a program shall be considered necessary and a rule therefor shall be promulgated if the Secretary finds that—

(A) the goal of replacement fuel use described in section 502(b)(2)(B), as modified under section 504, is not expected to be actually achieved by 2010, or such other date as is established under section 504, by voluntary means or pursuant to this title or any other law without such a fleet requirement program, taking into consideration the status of the achievement of the interim goal described in section 502(b)(2)(A), as modified under section 504; and

(B) such goal is practicable and actually achievable within periods specified in section 502(b)(2), as modified under section 504, through implementation of such a fleet requirement program in combination with voluntary means and the application of other programs relevant to achieving such goals.

(2) The rule under subsection (b) or (g) shall also modify the goal described in section 502(b)(2)(B) and establish a revised goal pursuant to section 504 if the Secretary determines, based on the proceeding required under subsection (a) or (c), that the goal in effect at the time of that proceeding is inadequate or impracticable, and not expected to be achievable. Such goal as modified and established shall be applicable in making the findings described in paragraph (1). If the Secretary modifies the goal under this paragraph, he may also modify the percentages stated in subsection (a)(1) or (g)(1) and the minimum percentage stated in subsection (a)(2) or (g)(2) shall be not less than 10 percent.

(f) EXPLANATION OF DETERMINATION THAT FLEET REQUIREMENT PROGRAM IS NOT NECESSARY.—If the Secretary determines, based on findings under subsection (b) or (e), that a fleet requirement program under this section is not necessary, the Secretary shall—

(1) by December 15, 1996, with respect to a rulemaking under subsection (b); and

publish such determination in the Federal Register as a final agency action, including an explanation of the findings on which such determination is made and the basis for the determination.

(g) FLEET REQUIREMENT PROGRAM.—(1) If the Secretary determines under subsection (e) that a fleet requirement program is necessary, the Secretary shall, by January 1, 2000, by rule require that, except as provided in paragraph (2), of the total number of new light duty motor vehicles acquired for a fleet, other than a Federal fleet, State fleet, or fleet owned, operated, leased, or otherwise controlled by a covered person under section 501—

(A) 20 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 2002;

(B) 40 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 2003;

(C) 60 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 2004; and

(D) 70 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 2005 and thereafter, shall be alternative fueled vehicles.

(2) The Secretary may not establish percentage requirements higher than those described in paragraph (1). The Secretary may, if appropriate, and pursuant to a rule under subsection (g), establish a lesser percentage requirement for any model year. The Secretary may, by rule, establish a date later than 2002 (when model year 2003 begins) for initiating the fleet requirements under paragraph (1).

(3) Nothing in this title shall be construed as requiring any fleet to acquire alternative fueled vehicles or alternative fuels that do not meet the normal business requirements and practices and needs of that fleet.

(4) A vehicle operating only on gasoline that complies with applicable requirements of the Clean Air Act shall not be considered an alternative fueled vehicle under subsection (b) or this subsection, except that the Secretary, as part of the rule under subsection (b) or this subsection, may determine that such vehicle should be treated as an alternative fueled vehicle for purposes of this section, for fleets subject to part C of title II of the Clean Air Act, taking into consideration the impact on energy security and the goals stated in section 502(a).

(h) EXTENSION OF DEADLINES.—The Secretary may, by notice published in the Federal Register, extend the deadlines established under subsections (e), (f)(2), and (g) for an additional 90 days if the Secretary is unable to meet such deadlines. Such extension shall not be reviewable.

(i) EXEMPTIONS.—(1) A rule issued under subsection (b), (g), or (o) shall provide for the prompt exemption by the Secretary, through a simple and reasonable process, of any fleet from the requirements of subsection (b), (g), or (o), in whole or in part, if it is demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Secretary that—

(A) alternative fueled vehicles that meet the normal requirements and practices of the principal business of the fleet owner are not reasonably available for acquisition;

(B) alternative fuels that meet the normal requirements and practices of the principal business of the fleet owner are not available in the area in which the vehicles are to be operated; or

(C) in the case of State and local government entities, the application of such requirements would pose an unreasonable financial hardship.

(2) In the case of private fleets, if the motor vehicles, when under normal operations, are garaged at personal residences at night, such motor vehicles shall be exempt from the requirements of subsections (b) and (g).

(j) CONVERSIONS.—Nothing in this title or the amendments made by this title shall require a fleet owner to acquire conversion vehicles.

(k) INCLUSION OF LAW ENFORCEMENT VEHICLES AND URBAN BUSES.—(1) If the Secretary determines, by rule, that the inclusion of fleets of law enforcement motor vehicles in the fleet requirement program established under subsection (g) would contribute to achieving the goal described in section 502(b)(2)(B), as modified under section 504, and the Secretary finds that such inclusion would not hinder the use of the motor vehicles for law enforcement purposes, the Secretary may include such fleets in such program. The Secretary may only initiate one rulemaking under this paragraph.

(2) If the Secretary determines, by rule, that the inclusion of new urban buses, as defined by the Administrator under title II of the Clean Air Act, in a fleet requirement program established under subsection (g) would contribute to achieving the goal described in section 502(b)(2)(B), as modified under section 504, the Secretary may include such urban buses in such program, if the Secretary finds that such application will be consistent with energy security goals and the needs and objectives of encouraging and facilitating the greater use of such urban buses by the public, taking into consideration the impact of such application on public transit entities. The Secretary may only initiate one rulemaking under this paragraph.

(3) Rulemakings under paragraph (1) or (2) shall be separate from a rulemaking under subsection (g), but may not occur unless a rulemaking is carried out under subsection (g).

(l) CONSIDERATION OF FACTORS.—In carrying out this section, the Secretary shall take into consideration energy security, costs, safety, lead time requirements, vehicle miles traveled annually, effect on greenhouse gases, technological feasibility, energy requirements, economic impacts, including impacts on workers and the impact on consumers (including users of the alternative fuel for purposes such as for residences, agriculture, process use, and non-fuel purposes) and fleets, the availability of alternative fuels and alternative fueled vehicles, and other relevant factors.

(m) CONSULTATION AND PARTICIPATION OF OTHER FEDERAL AGENCIES.—In carrying out this section and section 506, the Secretary shall consult with the Secretary of Transportation, the Administrator, and other appropriate Federal agencies. The Secretary shall provide for the participation of the Secretary of Transportation and the Administrator in the development and issuance of the rule under this section, including the public process concerning such rule.

(n) PETITIONS.—As part of the rule promulgated either pursuant to subsection (b) or (g) of this section, the Secretary shall establish procedures for any fleet owner or operator or motor vehicle manufacturer to request that the Secretary modify or suspend a fleet requirement program established under either subsection nationally, by region, or in an applicable fleet area because, as demonstrated by the petitioner, the infrastructure or fuel supply or distribution system for an applicable alternative fuel is inadequate to meet the needs of a fleet. In the event that the Secretary determines that a modification or suspension of the fleet requirement program on a regional basis would detract from the nationwide character of any fleet requirement program established by rule or would sufficiently diminish the economies of scale for the production of alternative fueled vehicles or alternative fuels and thereafter the practicability and effectiveness of such program, the Secretary may only modify or suspend the program nationally. The procedures shall include provisions for notice and public hearings. The Secretary shall deny or grant the petition within 180 days after filing.

(o) Mandatory State Fleet Programs.—(1) Pursuant to a rule promulgated by the Secretary, beginning in calendar year 1995 (when model year 1996 begins), the following percentages of new light duty motor vehicles acquired annually for State government fleets, including agencies thereof, but not municipal fleets, shall be alternative fueled vehicles:

(A) 10 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 1996;

(B) 15 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 1997;

(C) 25 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 1998;

(D) 50 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 1999;

(E) 75 percent of the motor vehicles acquired in model year 2000 and thereafter.

(2)(A) The Secretary shall within 18 months after the date of the enactment of this Act promulgate a rule providing that a State may submit a plan within 12 months after such promulgation containing a light duty alternative fueled vehicle plan for State fleets to meet the annual percentages established under paragraph (1) for the acquisition of light duty motor vehicles. The plan shall provide for the voluntary conversion or acquisition or combination thereof, beyond any acquisition required by this title, of such motor vehicles by State, local, or private fleets, in numbers greater than or equal to the number of State alternative fueled vehicles required pursuant to paragraph (1).

(B) The plan, if approved by the Secretary, would be in lieu of the State meeting such annual percentages solely through purchases of new State-owned vehicles. All conversions or acquisitions or combinations thereof of any alternative fueled vehicles under the plan must be voluntary and must conform with the requirements of section 247 of the Clean Air Act and must comply with applicable safety requirements. The Secretary of Transportation shall within 3 years after enactment promulgate rules setting forth safety standards in accordance with the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 applicable to all conversions.

SEC. 508. CREDITS.

(a) In General.—The Secretary shall allocate a credit to a fleet or covered person that is required to acquire an alternative fueled vehicle under this title, if that fleet or person acquires an alternative fueled vehicle in excess of the number that fleet or person is required to acquire under this title or acquires an alternative fueled vehicle before the date that fleet or person is required to acquire an alternative fueled vehicle under such title.

(b) Allocation.—In allocating credits under subsection (a), the Secretary shall allocate one credit for each alternative fueled vehicle the fleet or covered person acquires that exceeds the number of alternative fueled vehicles that fleet or person is required to acquire under this title or that is acquired before the date that fleet or person is required to acquire an alternative fueled vehicle under such title. In the event that a vehicle is acquired before the date otherwise required, the Secretary shall allocate one credit per vehicle for each year the vehicle is acquired before the required date. The credit shall be allocated for the same type vehicle as the excess vehicle or earlier acquired vehicle.

(c) Use of Credits.—At the request of a fleet or covered person allocated a credit under this section, the Secretary shall treat the credit as the acquisition of one alternative fueled vehicle of the type for which the credit is allocated in the year designated by that fleet or person when determining whether that fleet or person has complied with this title in the year designated. A credit may be counted toward compliance for only one year.

(d) Transferability.—A fleet or covered person allocated a credit under this section or to whom a credit is transferred under this section, may transfer freely the credit to another fleet or person who is required to comply with this title. At the request of the fleet or person to whom a credit is transferred, the Secretary shall treat the transferred credit as the acquisition of one alternative fueled vehicle of the type for which the credit is allocated in the year designated by the fleet or person to whom the credit is transferred when determining whether that fleet or person has complied with this title in the year designated. A transferred credit may be counted toward compliance for only one year. In the case of the alternative fuel provider program under section 501, a transferred credit may be counted toward compliance only if the requirement of section 501(a)(4) is met.

SEC. 509. SECRETARY'S RECOMMENDATIONS TO CONGRESS.

(a) Recommendations To Require Availability or Acquisition.—If the Secretary determines, under section 507(f), that a fleet requirement program under section 507 is not necessary, the Secretary shall so notify the Congress. If the Secretary so notifies the Congress, the Secretary shall, within 2 years after such notification and by rule, prepare and submit to the Congress recommendations for requirements or incentives for—

(1) fuel suppliers to make available to the public replacement fuels, including providing for the construction or availability of related fuel delivery systems;

(2) suppliers of alternative fueled vehicles to make available to the public alternative fueled vehicles and to ensure the availability of necessary related services; and to the extent necessary to achieve such goals of replacement fuel use and to ensure that the availability of alternative fuels and of alternative fueled vehicles are consistent with each other.

(3) motor vehicle drivers to use replacement fuels,

(b) Fair and Equitable Application.—In carrying out this section, the Secretary shall recommend the imposition of requirements proportionately on all appropriate fuel suppliers and purchasers of motor fuels and suppliers and purchasers of motor vehicles in a fair and equitable manner.

SEC. 510. EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.

(a) In General.—Nothing in this Act or the amendments made by this Act shall be construed to alter, affect, or modify the provisions of the Clean Air Act, or regulations issued thereunder.

(b) Compliance by Alternative Fueled Vehicles.—Alternative fueled vehicles, whether dedicated vehicles or dual fueled vehicles, and the alternative fuels for operating such vehicles, shall comply with requirements of the Clean Air Act applicable to such vehicles and fuels.

SEC. 511. PROHIBITED ACTS.

It shall be unlawful for any person to violate any provision of section 501, 503(b), or 507, or any regulation issued under such sections.

SEC. 512. ENFORCEMENT.

(a) Whoever violates section 511 shall be subject to a civil penalty of not more than $5,000 for each violation.

(b) Whoever willfully violates section 511 shall be fined not more than $10,000 for each violation.

(c) Any person who knowingly and willfully violates section 511 after having been subjected to a civil penalty for a prior violation of section 511 shall be fined not more than $50,000.

SEC. 513. POWERS OF THE SECRETARY.

For the purpose of carrying out title III, title IV, this title, and title VI, the Secretary, or the duly designated agent of the Secretary, may hold such hearings, take such testimony, sit and act at such times and places, administer such oaths, and require, by subpena, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, correspondence, memorandums, contracts, agreements, or other records as the Secretary of Transportation is authorized to do under section 505(b)(1) of the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act (15 U.S.C. 2005(b)(1)).

SEC. 514. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary for carrying out this title $10,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1993 through 1997, and such sums as may be necessary for fiscal years 1998 through 2000.

(b) SOLICITATION.—(1) Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall solicit proposals to demonstrate electric motor vehicles and associated equipment in one or more eligible metropolitan areas. The Secretary may make additional solicitations for proposals if the Secretary determines that such solicitations are necessary to carry out this subtitle.

(2)(A) Solicitations for proposals under this subsection shall require the proposer to include a description, including the manufacturer or manufacturers of the electric motor vehicles; the proposed users of the electric motor vehicles; the eligible metropolitan area or areas involved; the number of electric motor vehicles to be demonstrated and their type, characteristics, and life-cycle costs; the price differential; the proposed discount payment; the contributions of State or local governments and other persons to the demonstration project; the type of associated equipment to be demonstrated; the domestic content of the electric motor vehicles and associated equipment; and any other information the Secretary considers appropriate.

(3) The solicitation for proposals under this subsection shall establish a closing date for receipt of proposals. The Secretary may, if necessary, extend the closing date for receipt of proposals for a period not to exceed 90 days.

SEC. 612. SELECTION OF PROPOSALS.

(a) SELECTION.—(1) The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Transportation, the Secretary of Commerce, and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, shall, not later than 120 days after the closing date, as established by the Secretary, for receipt of proposals under section 611, select at least one, but not more than 10, proposals to receive financial assistance under section 613.

(2) The Secretary may select more than 10 proposals under this section, if the Secretary determines that the total amount of available funds is not likely to be otherwise utilized.

(3) Any proposal selected under paragraph (1) must satisfy the limitations set forth in section 613(c).

(4) No one project selected under this section shall receive more than 25 percent of the funds authorized under section 616.

(5) A demonstration project may not include electric motor vehicles in more than one eligible metropolitan area, unless the total number of electric motor vehicles in that project is equal to, or greater than, 100.

(b) CRITERIA.—In selecting a proposal and in negotiating financial assistance under this section, the Secretary shall consider—

(1) the ability of the manufacturer, directly, indirectly, or in combination with the proposer, to develop, assist in the demonstration of, manufacture, distribute, sell, provide warranties for, service, and ensure the continued availability of parts for, electric motor vehicles in the demonstration project;

(2) the geographic and climatic diversity of the eligible metropolitan area or areas in which the demonstration project is to be undertaken, when considered in combination with other proposals and other selected demonstration projects;

(3) the long-term technical and competitive viability of the electric motor vehicles;

(4) the suitability of the electric motor vehicles for their intended uses;

(5) the environmental effects of the use of the proposed electric motor vehicles;

(8) the proportion of domestic content of the electric motor vehicles and associated equipment;

(9) the safety of the electric motor vehicles; and

(10) such other criteria as the Secretary considers appropriate.

(c) CONDITIONS.—The Secretary shall require that—

(1) as a part of a demonstration project, the user or users of the electric motor vehicles will provide to the proposer and the manufacturer information regarding the operation, maintenance, performance, and use of the electric motor vehicles for 5 years after the beginning of the demonstration project;

(2) the proposer shall provide to the Secretary such information regarding the operation, maintenance, performance, and use of the electric motor vehicles as the Secretary may request during the period of the demonstration project;

(3) in the case of a demonstration project including automobiles or light duty trucks, the number of electric motor vehicles to be included in the demonstration project shall be no less than 50, except that the Secretary may select a demonstration project with fewer than 50 electric motor vehicles if the Secretary determines that selection of such a proposal will ensure that there is geographic or climatic diversity among the proposals selected and that an adequate demonstration to accelerate the development and use of electric motor vehicles can be undertaken with fewer than 50 electric motor vehicles; and

(4) the procurement practices of the manufacturer do not discriminate against United States producers of vehicle parts.

SEC. 613. DISCOUNT PAYMENTS.

(a) CERTIFICATION.—The Secretary shall provide a discount payment to a proposer of a proposal selected under this subtitle for purposes of reimbursing the proposer for a discount provided to the users if the proposer certifies to the Secretary that—

(2) the proposer has provided to the user or users a discount payment in accordance with the requirements of this subtitle.

(b) PAYMENT.—Not later than 30 days after receipt from the proposer of certification that the Secretary determines satisfies the requirements of subsection (a), the Secretary shall pay to the proposer the full amount of the discount payment, to the extent provided in advance in appropriations Acts.

(c) CALCULATIONS OF DISCOUNT PAYMENTS.—(1) The discount payment shall be no greater than—

(A) the price differential; or

(B) the price of the comparable conventionally fueled motor vehicle.

(2) The purchase price of the electric motor vehicle, less the discount payment and less any additional reduction in the purchase price of the electric motor vehicle that may result from contributions provided by other parties, may not be less than the manufacturer's suggested retail price of a comparable conventionally fueled motor vehicle.

(3) The maximum discount payment shall be no greater than $10,000 per electric motor vehicle.

SEC. 614. COST-SHARING.

(a) REQUIREMENT.—The Secretary shall require at least 50 percent of the costs directly and specifically related to any project under this subtitle to be from non-Federal sources. Such share may be in the form of cash, personnel, services, equipment, and other resources.

(b) REDUCTION.—The Secretary may reduce the amount of costs required to be provided by non-Federal sources under subsection (a) if the Secretary determines that the reduction is necessary and appropriate—

(1) considering the technological risks involved in the project; and

(2) in order to meet the objectives of this subtitle.

SEC. 615. REPORTS TO CONGRESS.

(a) PROGRESS REPORTS.—The Secretary shall report annually to Congress on the progress being made, through demonstration projects supported under this subtitle, to accelerate the development and use of electric motor vehicles.

(b) REPORT ON ENCOURAGING THE PURCHASE AND USE OF ELECTRIC MOTOR VEHICLES.—Within 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress a report on methods for encouraging the purchase and use of electric motor vehicles. Such report shall—

(1) address the potential cost of purchasing and maintaining electric motor vehicles, including the initial cost of the batteries and the cost of replacement batteries;

(2) identify methods for reducing, subsidizing, or sharing such costs; and

(a) IN GENERAL.—In the case of activities, including joint venture activities, under this title, and in the case of any existing or future activities, including joint venture activities, related primarily to battery technology for electric motor vehicles under other provisions of law, where the knowledge resulting from research and development activities conducted pursuant to such activities, including joint venture activities, is for the benefit of the participants (particularly domestic companies) that provide financial resources to a project under this title, the Secretary, for a period of up to 5 years after the development of information that—

(1) results from research and development activities conducted under this title; and

(2) would be a trade secret or commercial or financial information that is privileged or confidential if the information had been obtained from a participant, shall, notwithstanding any other provision of law, provide appropriate protections against the dissemination of such information to the public, and the provisions of section 1905 of title 18, United States Code, shall apply to such information. Nothing in this subsection provides protections against the dissemination of such information to Congress.

(b) DEFINITION.—For purposes of subsection (a), the term "domestic companies" means entities which are substantially involved in the United States in the domestic production of motor vehicles for sale in the United States and have a substantial percentage of their production facilities in the United States.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary for purposes of this subtitle $40,000,000 for the 5-year period beginning with the first full fiscal year after the date of enactment of this Act, to remain available until expended.

TITLE VII—ELECTRICITY

Subtitle A—Exempt Wholesale Generators

SEC. 711. PUBLIC UTILITY HOLDING COMPANY ACT REFORM.

The Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 (15 U.S.C. 79 and following) is amended by redesignating sections 32 and 33 as sections 34 and 35 respectively and by adding the following new section after section 31:

"SEC. 32. EXEMPT WHOLESALE GENERATORS.

"(a) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) EXEMPT WHOLESALE GENERATOR.—The term 'exempt wholesale generator' means any person determined by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to be engaged directly, or indirectly through one or more affiliates as defined in section 2(a)(11)(B), and exclusively in the business of owning or operating, or both owning and operating, all or part of one or more eligible facilities and selling electric energy at wholesale. No person shall be deemed to be an exempt wholesale generator under this section unless such person has applied to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for a determination under this paragraph. A person applying in good faith for such a determination shall be deemed an exempt wholesale generator under this section, with all of the exemptions provided by this section, until the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission makes such determination. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission shall make such determination within 60 days of its receipt of such application and shall notify the Commission whenever a determination is made under this paragraph that any person is an exempt wholesale generator. Not later than 12 months after the date of enactment of this section, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission shall promulgate rules implementing the provisions of this paragraph. Applications for determination filed after the effective date of such rules shall be subject thereto.

"(2) ELIGIBLE FACILITY.—The term 'eligible facility' means a facility, wherever located, which is either—

"(A) used for the generation of electric energy exclusively for sale at wholesale, or

"(B) used for the generation of electric energy and leased to one or more public utility companies; Provided, That any such lease shall be treated as a sale of electric energy at wholesale for purposes of sections 205 and 206 of the Federal Power Act.

Such term shall not include any facility for which consent is required under subsection (c) if such consent has not been obtained. Such term includes interconnecting transmission facilities necessary to effect a sale of electric energy at wholesale. For purposes of this paragraph, the term 'facility' may include a portion of a facility subject to the limitations of subsection (d) and shall include a facility the construction of which has not been commenced or completed.

"(3) SALE OF ELECTRIC ENERGY AT WHOLESALE.—The term 'sale of electric energy at wholesale' shall have the same meaning as provided in section 201(d) of the Federal Power Act (16 U.S.C. 824(d)).

"(4) RETAIL RATES AND CHARGES.—The term 'retail rates and charges' means rates and charges for the sale of electric energy directly to consumers.

"(b) FOREIGN RETAIL SALES.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (a), retail sales of electric energy produced by a facility located in a foreign country shall not prevent such facility from being an eligible facility, or prevent a person owning or operating, or both owning and operating, such facility from being an exempt wholesale generator if none of the electric energy generated by such facility is sold to consumers in the United States.

"(c) STATE CONSENT FOR EXISTING RATE-BASED FACILITIES.—If a rate or charge for, or in connection with, the construction of a facility, or for electric energy produced by a facility (other than any portion of a rate or charge which represents recovery of the cost of a wholesale rate or charge) was in effect under the laws of any State as of the date of enactment of this section, in order for the facility to be considered an eligible facility, every State commission having jurisdiction over any such rate or charge must make a specific determination that allowing such facility to be an eligible facility (1) will benefit consumers, (2) is in the public interest, and (3) does not violate State law; Provided, That in the case of such a rate or charge which is a rate or charge of an affiliate of a registered holding company:

"(A) such determination with respect to the facility in question shall be required from every State commission having jurisdiction over the retail rates and charges of the affiliates of such registered holding company; and

"(B) the approval of the Commission under this Act shall not be required for the transfer of the facility to an exempt wholesale generator.

"(d) HYBRIDS.—(1) No exempt wholesale generator may own or operate a portion of any facility if any other portion of the facility is owned or operated by an electric utility company that is an affiliate or associate company of such exempt wholesale generator.

"(2) ELIGIBLE FACILITY.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), an exempt wholesale generator may own or operate a portion of a facility identified in paragraph (1) if such portion has become an eligible facility as a result of the operation of subsection (c).

"(e) EXEMPTION OF EWGS.—An exempt wholesale generator shall not be considered an electric utility company under section 2(a)(3) of this Act and, whether or not a subsidiary company, an affiliate, or an associate company of a holding company, an exempt wholesale generator shall be exempt from all provisions of this Act.

"(f) OWNERSHIP OF EWGS BY EXEMPT HOLDING COMPANIES.—Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, a holding company that is exempt under section 3 of this Act shall be permitted, without condition or limitation under this Act, to acquire and maintain an interest in the business of one or more exempt wholesale generators.

"(g) Ownership of EWGS by Registered Holding Companies.—Notwithstanding any provision of this Act and the Commission's jurisdiction as provided under subsection (h) of this section, a registered holding company shall be permitted (without the need to apply for, or receive, approval from the Commission, and otherwise without condition under this Act) to acquire and hold the securities, or an interest in the business, of one or more exempt wholesale generators.

"(h) Financing and Other Relationships Between EWGS and Registered Holding Companies.—The issuance of securities by a registered holding company for purposes of financing the acquisition of an exempt wholesale generator, the guarantee of securities of an exempt wholesale generator by a registered holding company, the entering into service, sales or construction contracts, and the creation or maintenance of any other relationship in addition to that described in subsection (g) between an exempt wholesale generator and a registered holding company, its affiliates and associate companies, shall remain subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission under this Act: Provided, That—

"(1) section 11 of this Act shall not prohibit the ownership of an interest in the business of one or more exempt wholesale generators by a registered holding company (regardless of where facilities owned or operated by such exempt wholesale generators are located), and such ownership by a registered holding company shall be deemed consistent with the operation of an integrated public utility system;

"(2) the ownership of an interest in the business of one or more exempt wholesale generators by a registered holding company (regardless of where facilities owned or operated by such exempt wholesale generators are located) shall be considered as reasonably incidental, or economically necessary or appropriate, to the operations of an integrated public utility system;

"(3) in determining whether to approve (A) the issue or sale of a security by a registered holding company for purposes of financing the acquisition of an exempt wholesale generator, or (B) the guarantee of a security of an exempt wholesale generator by a registered holding company, the Commission shall not make a finding that such security is not reasonably adapted to the earning power of such company or to the security structure of such company and other companies in the same holding company system, or that the circumstances are such as to constitute the making of such guarantee an improper risk for such company, unless the Commission first finds that the issue or sale of such security, or the making of the guarantee, would have a substantial adverse impact on the financial integrity of the registered holding company system;

"(4) in determining whether to approve (A) the issue or sale of a security by a registered holding company for purposes other than the acquisition of an exempt wholesale generator, or (B) other transactions by such registered holding company or by its subsidiaries other than with respect to exempt wholesale generators, the Commission shall not consider the effect of the capitalization or earnings of any subsidiary which is an exempt wholesale generator upon the registered holding company system, unless the approval of the issue or sale or other transaction, together with the effect of such capitalization and earnings, would have a substantial adverse impact on the financial integrity of the registered holding company system;

"(5) the Commission shall make its decision under paragraph (3) to approve or disapprove the issue or sale of a security or the guarantee of a security within 120 days of the filing of a declaration concerning such issue, sale or guarantee; and

"(6) the Commission shall promulgate regulations with respect to the actions which would be considered, for purposes of this subsection, to have a substantial adverse impact on the financial integrity of the registered holding company system; such regulations shall ensure that the action has no adverse impact on any utility subsidiary or its customers, or on the ability of State commissions to protect such subsidiary or customers, and shall take into account the amount and type of capital invested in exempt wholesale generators, the ratio of such capital to the total capital invested in utility operations, the availability of books and records, and the financial and operating experience of the registered holding company and the exempt wholesale generator; the Commission shall promulgate such regulations within 6 months after the enactment of this section; after such 6-month period the Commission shall not approve any actions under paragraph (3), (4) or (5) except in accordance with such issued regulations.

"(i) Application of Act to Other Eligible Facilities.—In the case of any person engaged directly and exclusively in the business of owning or operating (or both owning and operating) all or part of one or more eligible facilities, an advisory letter issued by the Commission staff under this Act after the date of enactment of this section, or an order issued by the Commission under this Act after the date of enactment of this section, shall not be required for the purpose, or have the effect, of exempting such person from treatment as an electric utility company under section 2(a)(3) or exempting such person from any provision of this Act.

"(j) Ownership of Exempt Wholesale Generators and Qualifying Facilities.—The ownership by a person of one or more exempt wholesale generators shall not result in such person being considered as being primarily engaged in the generation or sale of electric power within the meaning of sections 3(17)(C)(ii) and 3(18)(B)(ii) of the Federal Power Act (16 U.S.C. 796 (17)(C)(ii) and 796(18)(B)(ii)).

"(k) Protection Against Abusive Affiliate Transactions.—

"(1) Prohibition.—After the date of enactment of this section, an electric utility company may not enter into a contract to purchase electric energy at wholesale from an exempt wholesale generator if the exempt wholesale generator is an affiliate or associate company of the electric utility company.

"(2) State Authority To Exempt From Prohibition.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), an electric utility company may enter into a contract to purchase electric energy at wholesale from an exempt wholesale generator that is an affiliate or associate company of the electric utility company—

"(A) if every State commission having jurisdiction over the retail rates of such electric utility company makes each of the following specific determinations in advance of the electric utility company entering into such contract:

"(i) A determination that such commission has sufficient regulatory authority, resources and access to books and records of the electric utility company and any relevant associate, affiliate or subsidiary company to exercise its duties under this subparagraph.

"(ii) A determination that the transaction—

"(I) will benefit consumers,

"(II) does not violate any State law (including where applicable, least cost planning),

"(III) would not provide the exempt wholesale generator any unfair competitive advantage by virtue of its affiliation or association with the electric utility company, and

"(IV) is in the public interest; or

"(B) if such electric utility company is not subject to State commission retail rate regulation and the purchased electric energy:

"(i) would not be resold to any affiliate or associate company, or

"(ii) the purchased electric energy would be resold to an affiliate or associate company and every State commission having jurisdiction over the retail rates of such affiliate or associate company makes each of the determinations provided under subparagraph (A), including the determination concerning a State commission's duties.

"(l) Reciprocal Arrangements Prohibited.—Reciprocal arrangements among companies that are not affiliates or associate companies of each other that are entered into in order to avoid the provisions of this section are prohibited.".

SEC. 712. STATE CONSIDERATION OF THE EFFECTS OF POWER PURCHASES ON UTILITY COST OF CAPITAL; CONSIDERATION OF THE EFFECTS OF LEVERAGED CAPITAL STRUCTURES ON THE RELIABILITY OF WHOLESALE POWER SELLERS; AND CONSIDERATION OF ADEQUATE FUEL SUPPLIES.

Section 111 of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 (16 U.S.C. 2601 and following) is amended by inserting the following new paragraph after paragraph (9):

"(10) Consideration of the Effects of Wholesale Power Purchases on Utility Cost of Capital; Effects of Leveraged Capital Structures on the Reliability of Wholesale Power Sellers; and Assurance of Adequate Fuel Supplies.—(A) To the extent that a State regulatory authority requires or allows electric utilities for which it has ratemaking authority to consider the purchase of long-term wholesale power supplies as a means of meeting electric demand, such authority shall perform a general evaluation of:

"(i) the potential for increases or decreases in the costs of capital for such utilities, and any resulting increases or decreases in the retail rates paid by electric consumers, that may result from purchases of long-term wholesale power supplies in lieu of the construction of new generation facilities by such utilities;

"(ii) whether the use by exempt wholesale generators (as defined in section 32 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935) of capital structures which employ proportionally greater amounts of debt than the capital structures of such utilities threatens reliability or provides an unfair advantage for exempt wholesale generators over such utilities;

"(iii) whether to implement procedures for the advance approval or disapproval of the purchase of a particular long-term wholesale power supply; and

"(iv) whether to require as a condition for the approval of the purchase of power that there be reasonable assurances of fuel supply adequacy.

"(B) For purposes of implementing the provisions of this paragraph, any reference contained in this section to the date of enactment of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 shall be deemed to be a reference to the date of enactment of this paragraph.

"(C) Notwithstanding any other provision of Federal law, nothing in this paragraph shall prevent a State regulatory authority from taking such action, including action with respect to the allowable capital structure of exempt wholesale generators, as such State regulatory authority may determine to be in the public interest as a result of performing evaluations under the standards of subparagraph (A).

"(D) Notwithstanding section 124 and paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 112(a), each State regulatory authority shall consider and make a determination concerning the standards of subparagraph (A) in accordance with the requirements of subsections (a) and (b) of this section, without regard to any proceedings commenced prior to the enactment of this paragraph.

"(E) Notwithstanding subsections (b) and (c) of section 112, each State regulatory authority shall consider and make a determination concerning whether it is appropriate to implement the standards set out in subparagraph (A) not later than one year after the date of enactment of this paragraph.".

SEC. 713. PUBLIC UTILITY HOLDING COMPANIES TO OWN INTERESTS IN COGENERATION FACILITIES.

Public Law 99–186 (99 Stat. 1180, as amended by Public Law 99–553, 100 Stat. 3087), is amended to read as follows:

"SECTION 1. Notwithstanding section 11(b)(1) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, a company registered under said Act, or a subsidiary company of such registered company, may acquire or retain, in any geographic area, an interest in any qualifying cogeneration facilities and qualifying small power production facilities as defined pursuant to the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978, and shall qualify for any exemption relating to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 prescribed pursuant to section 210 of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978.

"SEC. 2. Nothing herein shall be construed to affect the applicability of section 3(17)(C) or section 3(18)(B) of the Federal Power Act or any provision of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, other than section 11(b)(1), to the acquisition or retention of any such interest by any such company.".

SEC. 714. BOOKS AND RECORDS.

Section 201 of the Federal Power Act is amended by adding the following new subsection at the end thereof:

"(g) BOOKS AND RECORDS.—(1) Upon written order of a State commission, a State commission may examine the books, accounts, memoranda, contracts, and records of—

"(A) an electric utility company subject to its regulatory authority under State law,

"(B) any exempt wholesale generator selling energy at wholesale to such electric utility, and

"(C) any electric utility company, or holding company thereof, which is an associate company or affiliate of an exempt wholesale generator which sells electric energy to an electric utility company referred to in subparagraph (A), wherever located, if such examination is required for the effective discharge of the State commission's regulatory responsibilities affecting the provision of electric service.

"(2) Where a State commission issues an order pursuant to paragraph (1), the State commission shall not publicly disclose trade secrets or sensitive commercial information.

"(3) Any United States district court located in the State in which the State commission referred to in paragraph (1) is located shall have jurisdiction to enforce compliance with this subsection.

"(4) Nothing in this section shall—

"(A) preempt applicable State law concerning the provision of records and other information; or

"(B) in any way limit rights to obtain records and other information under Federal law, contracts, or otherwise.

"(5) As used in this subsection the terms 'affiliate', 'associate company', 'electric utility company', 'holding company', 'subsidiary company', and 'exempt wholesale generator' shall have the same meaning as when used in the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935.".

SEC. 715. INVESTMENT IN FOREIGN UTILITIES.

The Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 (15 U.S.C. 79 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 32 the following new section:

"SEC. 33. TREATMENT OF FOREIGN UTILITIES.

"(a) EXEMPTIONS FOR FOREIGN UTILITY COMPANIES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—A foreign utility company shall be exempt from all of the provisions of this Act, except as otherwise provided under this section, and shall not, for any purpose under this Act, be deemed to be a public utility company under section 2(a)(5), notwithstanding that the foreign utility company may be a subsidiary company, an affiliate, or an associate company of a holding company or of a public utility company.

"(2) STATE COMMISSION CERTIFICATION.—Section (a)(1) shall not apply or be effective unless every State commission having jurisdiction over the retail electric or gas rates of a public utility company that is an associate company or an affiliate of a company otherwise exempted under section (a)(1) (other than a public utility company that is an associate company or an affiliate of a registered holding company) has certified to the Commission that it has the authority and resources to protect ratepayers subject to its jurisdiction and that it intends to exercise its authority. Such certification, upon the filing of a notice by such State commission, may be revised or withdrawn by the State commission prospectively as to any future acquisition. The requirement of State certification shall be deemed satisfied if the relevant State commission had, prior to the date of enactment of this section, on the basis of prescribed conditions of general applicability, determined that ratepayers of a public utility company are adequately insulated from the effects of diversification and the diversification would not impair the ability of the State commission to regulate effectively the operations of such company.

"(3) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section, the term 'foreign utility company' means any company that—

"(A) owns or operates facilities that are not located in any State and that are used for the generation, transmission, or distribution of electric energy for sale or the distribution at retail of natural or manufactured gas for heat, light, or power, if such company—

"(i) derives no part of its income, directly or indirectly, from the generation, transmission, or distribution of electric energy for sale or the distribution at retail of natural or manufactured gas for heat, light, or power, within the United States; and

"(ii) neither the company nor any of its subsidiary companies is a public utility company operating in the United States; and

"(B) provides notice to the Commission, in such form as the Commission may prescribe, that such company is a foreign utility company.

"(b) OWNERSHIP OF FOREIGN UTILITY COMPANIES BY EXEMPT HOLDING COMPANIES.—Notwithstanding any provision of this Act except as provided under this section, a holding company that is exempt under section 3 of the Act shall be permitted without condition or limitation under the Act to acquire and maintain an interest in the business of one or more foreign utility companies.

"(c) REGISTERED HOLDING COMPANIES.—

"(1) OWNERSHIP OF FOREIGN UTILITY COMPANIES BY REGISTERED HOLDING COMPANIES.—Notwithstanding any provision of this Act except as otherwise provided under this section, a registered holding company shall be permitted as of the date of enactment of this section (without the need to apply for, or receive approval from the Commission) to acquire and hold the securities or an interest in the business, of one or more foreign utility companies. The Commission shall promulgate rules or regulations regarding registered holding companies' acquisition of interests in foreign utility companies which shall provide for the protection of the customers of a public utility company which is an associate company of a foreign utility company and the maintenance of the financial integrity of the registered holding company system.

"(2) ISSUANCE OF SECURITIES.—The issuance of securities by a registered holding company for purposes of financing the acquisition of a foreign utility company, the guarantee of securities of a foreign utility company by a registered holding company, the entering into service, sales, or construction contracts, and the creation or maintenance of any other relationship between a foreign utility company and a registered holding company, its affiliates and associate companies, shall remain subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission under this Act (unless otherwise exempted under this Act, in the case of a transaction with an affiliate or associate company located outside of the United States). Any State commission with jurisdiction over the retail rates of a public utility company which is part of a registered holding company system may make such recommendations to the Commission regarding the registered holding company's relationship to a foreign utility company, and the Commision shall reasonably and fully consider such State recommendation.

"(3) CONSTRUCTION.—Any interest in the business of 1 or more foreign utility companies, or 1 or more companies organized exclusively to own, directly or indirectly, the securities or other interest in a foreign utility company, shall for all purposes of this Act, be considered to be—

"(A) consistent with the operation of a single integrated public utility system, within the meaning of section 11; and

"(B) reasonably incidental, or economically necessary or appropriate, to the operations of an integrated public utility system, within the meaning of section 11.

"(d) EFFECT ON EXISTING LAW; NO STATE PREEMPTION.—Nothing in this section shall—

"(1) preclude any person from qualifying for or maintaining any exemption otherwise provided for under this Act or the rules, regulations, or orders promulgated or issued under this Act; or

"(2) be deemed or construed to limit the authority of any State (including any State regulatory authority) with respect to—

"(A) any public utility company or holding company subject to such State's jurisdiction; or

"(B) any transaction between any foreign utility company (or any affiliate or associate company thereof) and any public utility company or holding company subject to such State's jurisdiction.

(e) REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.—

"(1) FILING OF REPORTS.—A public utility company that is an associate company of a foreign utility company shall file with the Commission such reports (with respect to such foreign utility company) as the Commission may by rules, regulations, or order prescribe as necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors or consumers.

"(2) NOTICE OF ACQUISITIONS.—Not later than 30 days after the consummation of the acquisition of an interest in a foreign utility company by an associate company of a public utility company that is subject to the jurisdiction of a State commission with respect to its retail electric or gas rates or by such public utility company, such associate company or such public utility company, shall provide notice of such acquisition to every State commission having jurisdiction over the retail electric or gas rates of such public utility company, in such form as may be prescribed by the State commission.

"(f) PROHIBITION ON ASSUMPTION OF LIABILITIES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—No public utility company that is subject to the jurisdiction of a State commission with respect to its retail electric or gas rates shall issue any security for the purpose of financing the acquisition, or for the purposes of financing the ownership or operation, of a foreign utility company, nor shall any such public utility company assume any obligation or liability as guarantor, endorser, surety, or otherwise in respect of any security of a foreign utility company.

"(2) EXCEPTION FOR HOLDING COMPANIES WHICH ARE PREDOMINANTLY PUBLIC UTILITY COMPANIES.—Subsection (f)(1) shall not apply if:

"(A) the public utility company that is subject to the jurisdiction of a State commission with respect to its retail electric or gas rates is a holding company and is not an affiliate under section 2(a)(11)(B) of another holding company or is not subject to regulation as a holding company and has no affiliate as defined in section 2(a)(11)(A) that is a public utility company subject to the jurisdiction of a State commission with respect to its retail electric or gas rates; and

"(B) each State commission having jurisdiction with respect to the retail electric and gas rates of such public utility company expressly permits such public utility to engage in a transaction otherwise prohibited under section (f)(1); and

"(C) the transaction (aggregated with all other then-outstanding transactions exempted under this subsection) does not exceed 5 per centum of the then-outstanding total capitalization of the public utility.

"(g) PROHIBITION ON PLEDGING OR ENCUMBERING UTILITY ASSETS.—No public utility company that is subject to the jurisdiction of a State commission with respect to its retail electric or gas rates shall pledge or encumber any utility assets or utility assets of any subsidiary thereof for the benefit of an associate foreign utility company.".

Subtitle B—Federal Power Act; Interstate Commerce in Electricity

SEC. 721. AMENDMENTS TO SECTION 211 OF FEDERAL POWER ACT.

Section 211 of the Federal Power Act (16 U.S.C. 824j) is amended as follows:

(1) The first sentence of subsection (a) is amended to read as follows: "Any electric utility, Federal power marketing agency, or any other person generating electric energy for sale for resale, may apply to the Commission for an order under this subsection requiring a transmitting utility to provide transmission services (including any enlargement of transmission capacity necessary to provide such services) to the applicant.".

(2) In the second sentence of subsection (a), strike "the Commission may" and all that follows and insert "the Commission may issue such order if it finds that such order meets the requirements of section 212, and would otherwise be in the public interest. No order may be issued under this subsection unless the applicant has made a request for transmission services to the transmitting utility that would be the subject of such order at least 60 days prior to its filing of an application for such order.".

(3) Amend subsection (b) to read as follows:

"(b) RELIABILITY OF ELECTRIC SERVICE.—No order may be issued under this section or section 210 if, after giving consideration to consistently applied regional or national reliability standards, guidelines, or criteria, the Commission finds that such order would unreasonably impair the continued reliability of electric systems affected by the order.".

(4) In subsection (c)—

(A) Strike out paragraph (1).

(B) In paragraph (2) strike "which requires the electric" and insert "which requires the transmitting".

(C) Strike out paragraphs (3) and (4).

(5) In subsection (d)—

(A) In the first sentence of paragraph (1), strike "electric" and insert "transmitting" in each place it appears.

(B) In the second sentence of paragraph (1) before "and each affected electric utility," insert "each affected transmitting utility,".

(C) In paragraph (3), strike "electric" and insert "transmitting".

(D) Strike the period in subparagraph (B) of paragraph (1) and insert ", or" and after subparagraph (B) insert the following new subparagraph:

"(C) the ordered transmission services require enlargement of transmission capacity and the transmitting utility subject to the order has failed, after making a good faith effort, to obtain the necessary approvals or property rights under applicable Federal, State, and local laws.".

SEC. 722. TRANSMISSION SERVICES.

Section 212 of the Federal Power Act is amended as follows:

(1) Strike subsections (a) and (b) and insert the following:

"(a) RATES, CHARGES, TERMS, AND CONDITIONS FOR WHOLESALE TRANSMISSION SERVICES.—An order under section 211 shall require the transmitting utility subject to the order to provide wholesale transmission services at rates, charges, terms, and conditions which permit the recovery by such utility of all the costs incurred in connection with the transmission services and necessary associated services, including, but not limited to, an appropriate share, if any, of legitimate, verifiable and economic costs, including taking into account any benefits to the transmission system of providing the transmission service, and the costs of any enlargement of transmission facilities. Such rates, charges, terms, and conditions shall promote the economically efficient transmission and generation of electricity and shall be just and reasonable, and not unduly discriminatory or preferential. Rates, charges, terms, and conditions for transmission services provided pursuant to an order under section 211 shall ensure that, to the extent practicable, costs incurred in providing the wholesale transmission services, and properly allocable to the provision of such services, are recovered from the applicant for such order and not from a transmitting utility's existing wholesale, retail, and transmission customers.".

(2) Subsection (e) is amended to read as follows:

"(e) SAVINGS PROVISIONS.—(1) No provision of section 210, 211, 214, or this section shall be treated as requiring any person to utilize the authority of any such section in lieu of any other authority of law. Except as provided in section 210, 211, 214, or this section, such sections shall not be construed as limiting or impairing any authority of the Commission under any other provision of law.

"(2) Sections 210, 211, 213, 214, and this section, shall not be construed to modify, impair, or supersede the antitrust laws. For purposes of this section, the term 'antitrust laws' has the meaning given in subsection (a) of the first sentence of the Clayton Act, except that such term includes section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act to the extent that such section relates to unfair methods of competition.".

(3) Add the following new subsections at the end thereof:

"(g) PROHIBITION ON ORDERS INCONSISTENT WITH RETAIL MARKETING AREAS.—No order may be issued under this Act which is inconsistent with any State law which governs the retail marketing areas of electric utilities.

"(h) PROHIBITION ON MANDATORY RETAIL WHEELING AND SHAM WHOLESALE TRANSACTIONS.—No order issued under this Act shall be conditioned upon or require the transmission of electric energy:

"(1) directly to an ultimate consumer, or

"(2) to, or for the benefit of, an entity if such electric energy would be sold by such entity directly to an ultimate consumer, unless:

"(A) such entity is a Federal power marketing agency; the Tennessee Valley Authority; a State or any political subdivision of a State (or an agency, authority, or instrumentality of a State or a political subdivision); a corporation or association that has ever received a loan for the purposes of providing electric service from the Administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration under the Rural Electrification Act of 1936; a person having an obligation arising under State or local law (exclusive of an obligation arising solely from a contract entered into by such person) to provide electric service to the public; or any corporation or association which is wholly owned, directly or indirectly, by any one or more of the foregoing; and

"(B) such entity was providing electric service to such ultimate consumer on the date of enactment of this subsection or would utilize transmission or distribution facilities that it owns or controls to deliver all such electric energy to such electric consumer.

Nothing in this subsection shall affect any authority of any State or local government under State law concerning the transmission of electric energy directly to an ultimate consumer.".

"(i) LAWS APPLICABLE TO FEDERAL COLUMBIA RIVER TRANSMISSION SYSTEM.—(1) The Commission shall have authority pursuant to section 210, section 211, this section, and section 213 to (A) order the Administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration to provide transmission service and (B) establish the terms and conditions of such service. In applying such sections to the Federal Columbia River Transmission System, the Commission shall assure that—

"(i) the provisions of otherwise applicable Federal laws shall continue in full force and effect and shall continue to be applicable to the system; and

"(ii) the rates for the transmission of electric power on the system shall be governed only by such otherwise applicable provisions of law and not by any provision of section 210, section 211, this section, or section 213, except that no rate for the transmission of power on the system shall be unjust, unreasonable, or unduly discriminatory or preferential, as determined by the Commission.

"(2) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act with respect to the procedures for the determination of terms and conditions for transmission service—

"(A) when the Administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration either (i) in response to a written request for specific transmission service terms and conditions does not offer the requested terms and conditions, or (ii) proposes to establish terms and conditions of general applicability for transmission service on the Federal Columbia River Transmission System, then the Administrator may provide opportunity for a hearing and, in so doing, shall—

"(I) give notice in the Federal Register and state in such notice the written explanation of the reasons why the specific terms and conditions for transmission services are not being offered or are being proposed;

"(II) adhere to the procedural requirements of paragraphs (1) through (3) of section 7(i) of the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 839(i)(1) through (3)), except that the hearing officer shall, unless the hearing officer becomes unavailable to the agency, make a recommended decision to the Administrator that states the hearing officer's findings and conclusions, and the reasons or basis thereof, on all material issues of fact, law, or discretion presented on the record; and

"(III) make a determination, setting forth the reasons for reaching any findings and conclusions which may differ from those of the hearing officer, based on the hearing record, consideration of the hearing officer's recommended decision, section 211 and this section, as amended by the Energy Policy Act of 1992, and the provisions of law as preserved in this section; and

"(B) if application is made to the Commission under section 211 for transmission service under terms and conditions different than those offered by the Administrator, or following the denial of a request for transmission service by the Administrator, and such application is filed within 60 days of the Administrator's final determination and in accordance with Commission procedures, the Commission shall—

"(i) in the event the Administrator has conducted a hearing as herein provided for (I) accord parties to the Administrator's hearing the opportunity to offer for the Commission record materials excluded by the Administrator from the hearing record, (II) accord such parties the opportunity to submit for the Commission record comments on appropriate terms and conditions, (III) afford those parties the opportunity for a hearing if and to the extent that the Commission finds the Administrator's hearing record to be inadequate to support a decision by the Commission, and (IV) establish terms and conditions for or deny transmission service based on the Administrator's hearing record, the Commission record, section 211 and this section, as amended by the Energy Policy Act of 1992, and the provisions of law as preserved in this section, or

"(ii) in the event the Administrator has not conducted a hearing as herein provided for, determine whether to issue an order for transmission service in accordance with section 211 and this section, including providing the opportunity for a hearing.

"(3) Notwithstanding those provisions of section 313(b) of this Act (16 U.S.C. 825l) which designate the court in which review may be obtained, any party to a proceeding concerning transmission service sought to be furnished by the Administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration seeking review of an order issued by the Commission in such proceeding shall obtain a review of such order in the United States Court of Appeals for the Pacific Northwest, as that region is defined by section 3(14) of the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 839a(14)).

"(4) To the extent the Administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration cannot be required under section 211, as a result of the Administrator's other statutory mandates, either to (A) provide transmission service to an applicant which the Commission would otherwise order, or (B) provide such service under rates, terms, and conditions which the Commission would otherwise require, the applicant shall not be required to provide similar transmission services to the Administrator or to provide such services under similar rates, terms, and conditions.

Such penalty shall be assessed by the Commission, after notice and opportunity for public hearing, in accordance with the same provisions as are applicable under section 31(d) in the case of civil penalties assessed under section 31. Such standards shall prescribe the maximum annual effective dose equivalent to individual members of the public from releases to the accessible environment from radioactive materials stored or disposed of in the repository. The standards shall be promulgated not later than 1 year after the Administrator receives the findings and recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences under paragraph (2) and shall be the only such standards applicable to the Yucca Mountain site.

(2) STUDY BY NATIONAL ACADEMY OF SCIENCES.—Within 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall contract with the National Academy of Sciences to conduct a study to provide, by not later than December 31, 1993, findings and recommendations on reasonable standards for protection of the public health and safety, including—

(B) whether it is reasonable to assume that a system for post-closure oversight of the repository can be developed, based upon active institutional controls, that will prevent an unreasonable risk of breaching the repository's engineered or geologic barriers or increasing the exposure of individual members of the public to radiation beyond allowable limits; and

(C) whether it is possible to make scientifically supportable predictions of the probability that the repository's engineered or geologic barriers will be breached as a result of human intrusion over a period of 10,000 years.

(3) APPLICABILITY.—The provisions of this section shall apply to the Yucca Mountain site, rather than any other authority of the Administrator to set generally applicable standards for radiation protection.

(b) NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION REQUIREMENTS AND CRITERIA.—

(A) prevent any activity at the site that poses an unreasonable risk of breaching the repository's engineered or geologic barriers; and

(B) prevent any increase in the exposure of individual members of the public to radiation beyond allowable limits.

(c) POST-CLOSURE OVERSIGHT.—Following repository closure, the Secretary of Energy shall continue to oversee the Yucca Mountain site to prevent any activity at the site that poses an unreasonable risk of—

The Secretary shall prepare the report for submission to the President and the Congress within 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act. The report shall examine any new relevant issues related to management of spent nuclear fuel and high-level radioactive waste that might be raised by the addition of new nuclear-generated electric capacity, including anticipated increased volumes of spent nuclear fuel or high-level radioactive waste, any need for additional interim storage capacity prior to final disposal, transportation of additional volumes of waste, and any need for additional repositories for deep geologic disposal.

(k) REPORTS TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary and the Administrator of the Agency for International Development shall report annually to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources of the Senate and the appropriate committees of the House of Representatives on the progress being made to introduce clean coal technologies into foreign countries.

(l) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section, the term "host country" means a foreign country which is—

(1) the participant in or the site of the proposed clean coal technology project; and

(2) either—

(A) classified as a country eligible to participate in development assistance programs of the Agency for International Development pursuant to applicable law or regulation; or

(B) a developing country or country with an economy in transition from a nonmarket to a market economy.

(m) AUTHORIZATION FOR PROGRAM.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary to carry out the program required by this section, $100,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1993, 1994, 1995, 1996, 1997, and 1998.

SEC. 1333. CONVENTIONAL COAL TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER.

If the Secretary determines that the utilization of a clean coal technology is not practicable for a proposed project and that a United States conventional coal technology would constitute a substantial improvement in efficiency, costs, and environmental performance relative to the technology being used in a developing country or country making the transition from nonmarket to market economies, with significant indigenous coal resources, such technology shall, for purposes of sections 1321 and 1322, be considered a clean coal technology. In the case of combustion technologies, only the retrofit, repowering, or replacement of a conventional technology shall constitute a substantial improvement for purposes of this section. In carrying out this section, the Secretary shall give highest priority to promoting the most environmentally sound and energy efficient technologies.

SEC. 1334. STUDY OF UTILIZATION OF COAL COMBUSTION BYPRODUCTS.

(a) DEFINITION.—As used in this section, the term "coal combustion byproducts" means the residues from the combustion of coal including ash, slag, and flue gas desulfurization materials.

(b) STUDY AND REPORT TO CONGRESS.—(1) The Secretary shall conduct a detailed and comprehensive study on the institutional, legal, and regulatory barriers to increased utilization of coal combustion byproducts by potential governmental and commercial users. Such study shall identify and investigate barriers found to exist at the Federal, State, or local level, which may have limited or may have the foreseeable effect of limiting the quantities of coal combustion byproducts that are utilized. In conducting this study, the Secretary shall consult with other departments and agencies of the Federal Government, appropriate State and local governments, and the private sector.

(2) Not later than one year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress containing the results of the study required by paragraph (1) and the Secretary's recommendations for action to be taken to increase the utilization of coal combustion byproducts. At a minimum, such report shall identify actions that would increase the utilization of coal combustion byproducts in—

(A) bridge and highway construction;

(B) stabilizing wastes;

(C) procurement by departments and agencies of the Federal Government and State and local governments; and

(D) federally funded or federally subsidized procurement by the private sector.

SEC. 1335. CALCULATION OF AVOIDED COST.

Nothing in section 210 of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 (Public Law 95-617) requires a State regulatory authority or nonregulated electric utility to treat a cost reasonably identified to be incurred or to have been incurred in the construction or operation of a facility or a project which has been selected by the Department of Energy and provided Federal funding pursuant to the Clean Coal Program authorized by Public Law 98–473 as an incremental cost of alternative electric energy.

SEC. 1336. COAL FUEL MIXTURES.

Within one year following the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Committee on Energy and Commerce and the Committee on Science, Space, and Technology of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources of the Senate on the status of technologies for combining coal with other materials, such as oil or water fuel mixtures. The report shall include—

(1) a technical and economic feasibility assessment of such technologies;

(2) projected developments in such technologies;

(3) an assessment of the market potential of such technologies, including the potential to displace imported crude oil and refined petroleum products;

(4) identification of barriers to commercialization of such technologies; and

(5) recommendations for addressing barriers to commercialization.

SEC. 1337. NATIONAL CLEARINGHOUSE.

(a) FEASIBILITY.—(1) The Secretary shall assess the feasibility of establishing a national clearinghouse for the exchange and dissemination of technical information on technology relating to coal and coal-derived fuels.

(2) In assessing the feasibility, the Secretary shall consider whether such a clearinghouse would be appropriate for purposes of—

(A) collecting information and data on technology relating to coal, and coal-derived fuels, which can be utilized to improve environmental quality and increase energy independence;

(B) disseminating to appropriate individuals, governmental departments, agencies, and instrumentalities, institutions of higher education, and other entities, information and data collected pursuant to this section;

(C) maintaining a library of technology publications and treatises relating to technology information and data collected pursuant to this section;

(D) organizing and conducting seminars for government officials, utilities, coal companies, and other entities or institutions relating to technology using coal and coal-derived fuels that will improve environmental quality and increase energy independence;

(E) gathering information on research grants made for the purpose of improving or enhancing technology relating to the use of coal, and coal-derived fuels, which will improve environmental quality and increase energy independence;

(F) translating into English foreign research papers, articles, seminar proceedings, test results that affect, or could affect, clean coal use technology, and other documents;

(G) encouraging, during the testing of technologies, the use of coal from a variety of domestic sources, and collecting or developing, or both, complete listings of test results using coals from all sources;

(H) establishing and maintaining an index or compilation of research projects relating to clean coal technology carried out throughout the world; and

(I) conducting economic modeling for feasibility of projects.

(b) Authority To Establish Clearinghouse.—Based upon the assessment under subsection (a), the Secretary may establish a clearinghouse.

SEC. 1338. COAL EXPORTS.

(a) Plan.—Within 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Commerce, in cooperation with the Secretary and other appropriate Federal agencies, shall submit to the appropriate committees of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources of the Senate a plan for expanding exports of coal mined in the United States.

(b) Plan Contents.—The plan submitted under subsection (a) shall include—

(1) a description of the location, size, and projected growth in potential export markets for coal mined in the United States;

(2) the identification by country of the foreign trade barriers to the export of coal mined in the United States, including foreign coal production and utilization subsidies, tax treatment, labor practices, tariffs, quotas, and other nontariff barriers;

(3) recommendations and a plan for addressing any such trade barriers;

(4) an evaluation of existing infrastructure in the United States and any new infrastructure requirements in the United States to support an expansion of exports of coal mined in the United States, including ports, vessels, rail lines, and any other supporting infrastructure; and

(5) an assessment of environmental implications of coal exports and the identification of export opportunities for blending coal mined in the United States with coal indigenous to other countries to enhance energy efficiency and environmental performance.

SEC. 1339. OWNERSHIP OF COALBED METHANE.

(a) Federal Lands and Mineral Rights.—In the case of any deposit of coalbed methane where the United States is the owner of the surface estate or where the United States has transferred the surface estate but reserved the subsurface mineral estate, the Secretary of the Interior shall administer this section. This section and the definitions contained herein shall be applicable only on lands within Affected States.

(b) Affected States.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Interior, with the participation of the Secretary of Energy, shall publish in the Federal Register a list of Affected States which shall be comprised of States—

(1) in which the Secretary of the Interior, with the participation of the Secretary of Energy, determines that disputes, uncertainty, or litigation exist, regarding the ownership of coalbed methane gas;

(2) in which the Secretary of the Interior, with the participation of the Secretary of Energy, determines that development of significant deposits of coalbed methane gas is being impeded by such existing disputes, uncertainty, or litigation regarding ownership of such coalbed methane;

(3) which do not have in effect a statutory or regulatory procedure or existing case law permitting and encouraging the development of coalbed methane gas within that State; and

(4) which do not have extensive development of coalbed methane gas.

The Secretary of the Interior, with the participation of the Secretary of Energy, shall revise such list of Affected States from time to time. Any Affected State shall be deleted from the list of Affected States upon the receipt by the Secretary of the Interior of a Governor's petition requesting such deletion, a State law requesting such deletion, or a resolution requesting such deletion enacted by the legislative body of the State. A Governor intending to petition the Secretary of the Interior to delete a State from the list of Affected States shall provide the State's legislative body with 6 months notice of such petition during a legislative session. At the end of such 6-month period, the Governor may petition the Secretary of the Interior to delete a State from the list of Affected States, unless during such 6-month period, the State's legislative body has enacted a law or resolution disapproving the Governor's petition. Until the Secretary of the Interior, with the participation of the Secretary of Energy, publishes a different list, the States of West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee, Indiana, and Illinois shall be the Affected States, effective on the date of the enactment of this Act. The States of Colorado, Montana, New Mexico, Wyoming, Utah, Virginia, Washington, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Alabama shall not be included on the Secretary of the Interior's list of Affected States or any extension or revision thereof.

(c) Failure to Adopt Statutory or Regulatory Procedure.—If an Affected State has not placed in effect, by statute or by regulation, a substantial program promoting the permitting, drilling and production of coalbed methane wells (including pooling arrangements) within that State within 3 years after becoming an Affected State, the Secretary of the Interior, with the participation of the Secretary of Energy, shall administer this section and shall promulgate such regulations as are necessary to carry out this section in that State.

(d) Implementation by the Secretary of the Interior.—In implementing this section, the Secretary of the Interior, with the participation of the Secretary of Energy, shall—

(A) consider existing and future coal mining plans,

(B) preserve the mineability of coal seams, and

(C) provide for the prevention of waste and maximization of recovery of coal and coalbed methane gas in a manner which will protect the rights of all entities owning an interest in such coalbed methane resource.

(e) Spacing.—Except where State law in an Affected State contains existing spacing requirements regarding the minimum distance between coalbed methane wells and the minimum distance of a coalbed methane well from a property line, the Secretary of the Interior shall establish such requirements within 90 days after the assertion of jurisdiction pursuant to subsection (c) of this section.

(f) Spacing Units.—Applications to establish spacing units for the drilling and operation of coalbed methane gas wells may be filed by any entity claiming a coalbed methane ownership interest within a proposed spacing unit. Upon receipt and approval of an application, the Secretary of the Interior shall issue an order establishing the boundaries of the coalbed methane spacing unit. Spacing units shall generally be uniform in size.

(g) Development Under Pooling Arrangement.—Following issuance of an order establishing a spacing unit under subsection (f), and pursuant to an application for pooling filed by the entity claiming a coalbed methane ownership interest and proposing to drill a coalbed methane gas well, the Secretary of the Interior shall hold a hearing to consider the application for pooling and shall, if the criteria of this section are met, issue an order allowing the proposed pooling of acreage within the designated spacing unit for purposes of drilling and production of coalbed methane from the spacing unit. The pooling order shall not be issued before notice or a reasonable and diligent effort to provide notice has been made to each entity which may claim an ownership interest in the coalbed methane gas within such spacing unit and each such entity has been offered an opportunity to appear before the Secretary of the Interior at the hearing. Upon issuance of a pooling order, each owner or claimant of an ownership interest shall be allowed to make one of the following elections:

(1) An election to sell or lease its coalbed methane ownership interest to the unit operator at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Interior as set forth in the pooling order.

(2) An election to become a participating working interest owner by bearing a share of the risks and costs of drilling, completing, equipping, gathering, operating (including all disposal costs), plugging and abandoning the well, and receiving a share of production from the well.

(3) An election to share in the operation of the well as a nonparticipating working interest owner by relinquishing its working interest to participating working interest owners until the proceeds allocable to its share equal 300 percent of the share of such costs allocable to its interest. Thereafter, the nonparticipating working interest owner shall become a participating working interest owner.

The pooling order shall designate a unit operator who shall be authorized to drill and operate the spacing unit. The pooling order shall provide that any entity claiming an ownership interest in the coalbed methane within such spacing unit which does not make an election under the pooling order shall be deemed to have leased its coalbed methane interest to the unit operator under such terms and conditions as the pooling order may provide. No pooling order may be issued under this paragraph for any spacing unit if all entities claiming an ownership interest in the coalbed methane in the spacing unit have entered into a voluntary agreement providing for the drilling and operation of the coalbed methane gas well for the spacing unit.

(h) Escrow Account.—(1) Each pooling order issued under subsection (g) shall provide for the establishment of an escrow account into which the payment of costs and proceeds attributable to the conflicting interests shall be deposited and held for the interest of the claimants as follows:

(A) Each participating working interest owner, except for the unit operator, shall deposit in the escrow account its proportionate share of the costs allocable to the ownership interest claimed by each such participating working interest owner as set forth in the pooling order issued by the Secretary of the Interior.

(B) The unit operator shall deposit in the escrow account all proceeds attributable to the conflicting interests of lessees, plus all proceeds in excess of ongoing operational expenses (including reasonable overhead costs) attributable to conflicting working interests.

(2) The Secretary of the Interior shall order payment of principal and accrued interest from the escrow account to all legally entitled entities within 30 days of receipt by the Secretary of the Interior of notification of the final legal determination of entitlement or upon agreement of all entities claiming an ownership interest in the coalbed methane gas. Upon such final determination—

(A) each legally entitled participating working interest owner shall receive a proportionate share of the proceeds attributable to the conflicting ownership interest;

(B) each legally entitled nonparticipating working interest owner shall receive a proportionate share of the proceeds attributable to the conflicting ownership interest, less the cost of being carried as a nonparticipating working interest owner (as determined by the election of the entity under the applicable pooling order);

(C) each entity leasing (or deemed to have leased) its coalbed methane ownership interest to the unit operator shall receive a share of the royalty proceeds (as set out in the applicable pooling order) attributable to the conflicting interests of lessees; and

(D) the unit operator shall receive the costs contributed to the escrow account by each legally entitled participating working interest owner.

The Secretary of the Interior shall enact rules and regulations for the administration and protection of funds delivered to the escrow accounts.

(i) APPROVAL OF THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.—No entity may drill any well for the production of coalbed methane gas from a coal seam, subject to the provisions of subsection (g), in an Affected State unless the drilling of such well has been approved by the Secretary of the Interior.

(j) AUTHORIZATION TO STIMULATE A COAL SEAM.—(1) No operator of a coalbed methane well may stimulate a coal seam without the written consent of each entity which, at the time that the coalbed methane operator applies for a drilling permit, is operating a coal mine, or has by virtue of his property rights in the coal the ability to operate a coal mine, located within a horizontal or vertical distance from the point of stimulation as established by the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to paragraph (3) of this subsection. In seeking the coal operator's consent, a coalbed methane well operator shall provide the coal operator with necessary information about such stimulation, including relevant information to ensure compliance with coal mine safety laws and rules.

(2) In the absence of a written consent pursuant to pargraph (1) and at the request of a coalbed methane operator, the Secretary of the Interior shall make a determination regarding stimulation of a coal seam. Such request shall include an affidavit which shall—

(A) state that an entity from which consent is required pursuant to paragraph (1) has refused to provide written consent;

(B) set forth in detail the efforts undertaken by the applicant to obtain such written consent;

(C) state the known reasons for the consent not being provided;

(D) set forth the conditions and compensation, if any, offered by the applicant as part of the efforts to obtain consent; and

(E) provide prima facie evidence that the method of stimulation proposed by the coalbed methane operator will not (i) cause unreasonable loss or damage to the coal seam considering all factors, including the prospect, taking into consideration the economics of the coal industry, that coal seams for which no actual or proposed mining plans exist will be mined at some future date, or (ii) violate mine safety requirements. If a denial of consent by a coal operator is based on reasons related to safety, the Secretary of the Interior shall seek the views and recommendations of the appropriate State or Federal coal mine safety agency. Any determination by the Secretary of the Interior shall be in accordance with all applicable Federal and State coal mine safety laws and such views and recommendations. A determination by the Secretary of the Interior approving a method of stimulation may include reasonable conditions including, but not limited to, conditions to mitigate, to the extent practicable, economic damage to the coal seam. Any determination approving or denying a method of stimulation by the Secretary of the Interior shall be subject to appeal. Interested entities shall be allowed to participate in and comment on proceedings under this paragraph.

(3) The Secretary of the Interior shall by rule establish, for an Affected State, a region thereof, or a multi-State region comprised of Affected States, the boundaries within which a coalbed methane operator shall be required to obtain written consent from a coal operator pursuant to paragraph (1). Such boundaries shall be stated in terms of a horizontal and a vertical distance from the point of stimulation and shall be determined based on an evaluation of the maximum length, height and depth of fracture producible in a coal seam in such Affected State, region thereof, or multi-State region comprised of Affected States.

(4) The consent required under this subsection shall in no way be deemed to impair, abridge, or affect any contractual rights or objections arising out of a coalbed methane gas contract or coalbed methane gas lease in existence as of the effective date of this section between the coalbed methane operator and the coal operator, and the existence of such lease or contractual agreement and any extensions or renewals of such lease shall be deemed to fully meet the requirements of this section.

(5) Nothing in this subsection precludes either a coal operator or a coalbed methane operator from seeking in the appropriate State forum compensation for the consequences of a determination by the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to paragraph (2).

(k) NOTICE AND OBJECTION.—(1) The Secretary of the Interior shall not approve the drilling of any coalbed methane well unless the unit operator has notified each entity which is operating, or has the ability, by virtue of his property rights in the coal, to operate, a coal mine in any portion of the coalbed that would be affected by such well within the distances established pursuant to the rules promulgated under subsection (j)(3). Any notified entity may object to the drilling of such well within 30 days after receipt of a notice. Upon receipt of a timely objection to the drilling of any coalbed methane gas well submitted by a notified entity, the Secretary of the Interior may refuse to approve the drilling of the well based on any of the following:

(A) The proposed activity, due to its proximity to any coal mine opening, shaft, underground workings, or to any proposed extension of the coal mine, would adversely affect any operating, inactive or abandoned coal mine, including any coal mine already surveyed and platted but not yet being operated.

(B) The proposed activity would not conform with a coal operator's development plan for an existing or proposed operation.

(C) There would be an unreasonable interference from the proposed activity with present or future coal mining operations, including the ability to comply with other applicable laws and regulations.

(D) The presence of evidence indicating that the proposed drilling activities would be unsafe, taking into consideration the dangers from creeps, squeezes or other disturbances due to the extraction of coal.

(E) The proposed activity would unreasonably interfere with the safe recovery of coal, oil and gas.

(2) In the event the Secretary of the Interior does not approve the drilling of a coalbed methane well pursuant to paragraph (1), the Secretary of the Interior shall consider whether such drilling could be approved if the unit operator modifies the proposed activities to take into account any of the following:

(A) The proposed activity could instead be reasonably done through an existing or planned pillar of coal, or in close proximity to an existing well or such pillar of coal, taking into consideration surface topography.

(B) The proposed activity could instead be moved to a mined-out area, below the coal outcrop or to some other feasible area.

(C) The unit operator agrees to a drilling moratorium of not more than two years in order to permit completion of coal mining operations.

(D) The practicality of locating the proposed spacing unit or well on a uniform pattern with other spacing units or wells.

(l) PLUGGING.—All coalbed methane wells drilled after enactment of this Act that penetrate coal seams with remaining reserves shall provide for subsequent safe mining through the well in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, in consultation with any Federal and State agencies having authority over coal mine safety. Well plugging costs should be allocated in accordance with State law or private contractual arrangement, as the case may be.

(m) NOTICE AND OBJECTION BY OTHER PARTIES.—The Secretary of the Interior shall not approve the drilling of any coalbed methane well unless such well complies with the spacing and other requirements established by the Secretary of the Interior and each of the following:

(1) The unit operator of such well has notified, or has made a reasonable and diligent effort to notify, all entities claiming ownership of coalbed methane to be drained by such well and provided an opportunity to object in accordance with requirements established by the Secretary of the Interior.

(2) Where conflicting interests exist, an order under subsection (g) establishing pooling requirements has been issued.

The notification requirements of this subsection shall be additional to the notification referred to in subsection (k). The Secretary of the Interior shall establish the conditions under which entities claiming ownership of coalbed methane may object to the drilling of a coalbed methane well.

(n) VENTING FOR SAFETY.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent or inhibit the entity which has the right to develop and mine coal in any mine from venting coalbed methane gas to ensure safe mine operations.

(o) OTHER LAWS.—The Secretary of the Interior shall comply with all applicable Federal and State coal mine safety laws and regulations.

(p) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this section—

(1) The term "Affected State" means a State listed by the Secretary of the Interior, with the participation of the Secretary of Energy, under subsection (b).

(2) The term "coalbed methane gas" means occluded natural gas produced (or which may be produced) from coalbeds and rock strata associated therewith.

(3) The term "unit operator" means the entity designated in a pooling order to develop a spacing unit by the drilling of one or more wells on the unit.

(4) The term "nonparticipating working interest owner" means a gas or oil owner of a tract included in a spacing unit which elects to share in the operation of the well on a carried basis by agreeing to have its proportionate share of the costs allocable to its interest charged against its share of production of the well in accordance with subsection (f)(3).

(5) The term "participating working interest owner" means a gas or oil owner which elects to bear a share of the risks and costs of drilling, completing, equipping, gathering, operating (including any and all disposal costs) plugging, and abandoning a well on a spacing unit and to receive a share of production from the well equal to the proportion which the acreage in the spacing unit it owns or holds under lease bears to the total acreage of the spacing unit.

(6) The term "coal seam" means any stratum of coal 20 inches or more in thickness, unless a stratum of less thickness is being commercially worked, or can in the judgment of the Secretary of the Interior forseeably be commercially worked and will require protection if wells are being drilled through it.

SEC. 1340. ESTABLISHMENT OF DATA BASE AND STUDY OF TRANSPORTATION RATES.

(a) DATA BASE.—The Secretary shall review the information currently collected by the Federal Government and shall determine whether information on transportation rates for rail and pipeline transport of domestic coal, oil, and gas during the period of January 1, 1988, through December 31, 1997, is reasonably available. If he determines that such information is not reasonably available, the Secretary shall establish a data base containing, to the maximum extent practicable, information on all such rates. The confidentiality of contract rates shall be preserved. To obtain data pertaining to rail contract rates, the Secretary shall acquire such data in aggregate form only from the Interstate Commerce Commission, under terms and conditions that maintain the confidentiality of such rates.

(b) STUDY.—The Energy Information Administration shall determine the extent to which any agency of the Federal Government is studying the rates and distribution patterns of domestic coal, oil, and gas to determine the impact of the Clean Air Act as amended by the Act entitled "An Act to amend the Clean Air Act to provide for attainment and maintenance of health protective national ambient air quality standards, and for other purposes.", enacted November 15, 1990 (Public Law 101-549), and other Federal policies on such rates and distribution patterns. If the Energy Information Administration finds that no such study is underway, or that reports of the results of such study will not be available to the Congress providing the information specified in this subsection and subsection (a) by the dates established in subsection (c), the Energy Information Administration shall initiate such a study.

(c) REPORTS TO CONGRESS.—Within one year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall report to the Congress on the determination the Energy Information Administration is required to make under subsection (b). Within three years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit reports on any data base or study developed under this section. Any such reports shall be updated and resubmitted to the Congress within eight years after such date of enactment. If the Energy Information Administration has determined pursuant to subsection (b) that another study or studies will provide all or part of the information called for in this section, the Secretary shall transmit the results of that study by the dates established in this subsection, together with his comments.

(d) CONSULTATION WITH OTHER AGENCIES.—The Secretary and the Energy Information Administration shall consult with the Chairmen of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission in implementing this section.

SEC. 1341. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary for carrying out this subtitle, other than section 1322, such sums as may be necessary for fiscal years 1993 through 1998.

Any proposed rates derived from implementation of such procedures shall be considered by the Commission on an expedited basis for approval.

SEC. 1803. PROTECTION OF CERTAIN EXISTING RATES.

(a) RATES DEEMED JUST AND REASONABLE.—Except as provided in subsection (b)—

(2) the person filing the complaint was under a contractual prohibition against the filing of a complaint which was in effect on the date of enactment of this Act and had been in effect prior to January 1, 1991, provided that a complaint by a party bound by such prohibition is brought within 30 days after the expiration of such prohibition.

If the Commission determines pursuant to a proceeding instituted as a result of a complaint under section 13 of the Interstate Commerce Act that the rate is not just and reasonable, the rate shall not be deemed to be just and reasonable. Any tariff reduction or refunds that may result as an outcome of such a complaint shall be prospective from the date of the filing of the complaint.

(c) LIMITATION REGARDING UNDULY DISCRIMINATORY OR PREFERENTIAL TARIFFS.—Nothing in this section shall prohibit any aggrieved person from filing a complaint under section 13 or section 15(l) of the Interstate Commerce Act challenging any tariff provision as unduly discriminatory or unduly preferential.

The Secretary shall be advised whether the search disclosed the information requested, and, if so, such information shall be promptly transmitted to the Secretary, except that if the disclosure of any requested information would contravene national policy or security interests of the United States, or the confidentiality of census data, the information shall not be transmitted and the Secretary shall be so advised.

"(B) Limitation.—Any information provided under subparagraph (A) shall be limited to information necessary for the Secretary to carry out his duties under this section.

"(f) Reconsideration by Secretary.—

"(1) In general.—Any assigned operator receiving a notice under subsection (e)(2) with respect to an eligible beneficiary may, within 30 days of receipt of such notice, request from the Secretary of Health and Human Services detailed information as to the work history of the beneficiary and the basis of the assignment.

"(2) Review.—An assigned operator may, within 30 days of receipt of the information under paragraph (1), request review of the assignment. The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall conduct such review if the Secretary finds the operator provided evidence with the request constituting a prima facie case of error.

"(3) Results of review.—

"(A) Error.—If the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines under a review under paragraph (2) that an assignment was in error—

"(i) the Secretary shall notify the assigned operator and the trustees of the Combined Fund and the trustees shall reduce the premiums of the operator under section 9704 by (or if there are no such premiums, repay) all premiums paid under section 9704 with respect to the eligible beneficiary, and

"(ii) the Secretary shall review the beneficiary's record for reassignment under subsection (a).

"(B) No error.—If the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines under a review conducted under paragraph (2) that no error occurred, the Secretary shall notify the assigned operator.

"(2) Corrections.—No penalty shall be imposed by subsection (a) on any failure if—

"(A) such failure was due to reasonable cause and not to willful neglect, and

"(B) such failure is corrected during the 30-day period beginning on the 1st date that any of the persons responsible for such failure knew, or exercising reasonable diligence would have known, that such failure existed.

"(3) Waiver.—In the case of a failure that is due to reasonable cause and not to willful neglect, the Secretary of the Treasury may waive all or part of the penalty imposed by subsection (a) for failures to the extent that the Secretary determines, in his sole discretion, that the payment of such penalty would be excessive relative to the failure involved.

"(e) Liability for Penalty.—The person failing to meet the requirements of section 9704 shall be liable for the penalty imposed by subsection (a).

"(f) Treatment.—For purposes of this title, the penalty imposed by this section shall be treated in the same manner as the tax imposed by section 4980B.

"Sec. 9712. Establishment and coverage of 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan.

"SEC. 9712. ESTABLISHMENT AND COVERAGE OF 1992 UMWA BENEFIT PLAN.

"(a) CREATION OF PLAN.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—As soon as practicable after the enactment date, the settlors shall create a separate private plan which shall be known as the United Mine Workers of America 1992 Benefit Plan. For purposes of this title, the 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan shall be treated as an organization exempt from taxation under section 501(a). The settlors shall be responsible for designing the structure, administration and terms of the 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan, and for appointment and removal of the members of the board of trustees. The board of trustees shall initially consist of five members and shall thereafter be the number set by the settlors.

"(2) TREATMENT OF PLAN.—The 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan shall be—

"(A) a plan described in section 302(c)(5) of the Labor Management Relations Act, 1947 (29 U.S.C. 186(c)(5)), and any individual who is eligible for benefits by reason of a relationship to an individual described in subparagraph (A) or (B). In no event shall the 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan provide health benefits coverage to any eligible beneficiary who is a coal industry retiree who retired from the coal industry after September 30, 1994, or any beneficiary of such individual.

"(c) HEALTH BENEFITS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan shall provide health care benefits coverage to each eligible beneficiary which is substantially the same as (and subject to all the limitations of) coverage provided under the 1950 UMWA Benefit Plan and the 1974 UMWA Benefit Plan as of January 1, 1992.

"(2) MANAGED CARE.—The 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan shall develop managed care and cost containment rules which shall be applicable to the payment of benefits under this subsection. Application of such rules shall not cause the plan to be treated as failing to meet the requirements of this subsection. Such rules shall preserve freedom of choice while reinforcing managed care network use by allowing a point of service decision as to whether a network medical provider will be used. Major elements of such rules may include, but are not limited to, elements described in paragraph (3).

"(3) MAJOR ELEMENTS OF RULES.—Elements described in this paragraph are—

"(A) implementing formulary for drugs and subjecting the prescription program to a rigorous review of appropriate use,

"(D) utilizing, in the claims payment function 'appropriateness of service' protocols under title XVIII of the Social Security Act if more stringent,

"(E) creating mandatory utilization review (UR) procedures, but placing the responsibility to follow such procedures on the physician or hospital, not the beneficiaries,

"(F) selecting the most efficient physicians and state-of-the-art utilization management techniques, including ambulatory care techniques, for medical services delivered by the managed care network, and

"(G) utilizing a managed care network provider system, as practiced in the health care industry, at the time medical services are needed (point-of-service) in order to receive maximum benefits available under this subsection.

"(4) LAST SIGNATORY OPERATORS.—The board of trustees of the 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan shall permit any last signatory operator required to maintain an individual employer plan under section 9711 to utilize the managed care and cost containment rules and programs developed under this subsection if the operator elects to do so.

"(5) STANDARDS OF QUALITY.—Any managed care system or cost containment adopted by the board of trustees of the 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan or by a last signatory operator may not be implemented unless it is approved by, and meets the standards of quality adopted by, a medical peer review panel, which has been established—

"(A) by the settlors, or

"(B) by the United Mine Workers of America and a last signatory operator or group of operators.

Standards of quality shall include accessibility to medical care, taking into account that accessibility requirements may differ depending on the nature of the medical need.

"(d) GUARANTEE OF BENEFITS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—All 1988 last signatory operators shall be responsible for financing the benefits described in subsection (c), in accordance with contribution requirements established in the 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan. Such contribution requirements, which shall be applied uniformly to each 1988 last signatory operator, on the basis of the number of eligible and potentially eligible beneficiaries attributable to each operator, shall include:

"(A) the payment of an annual prefunding premium for all eligible and potentially eligible beneficiaries attributable to a 1988 last signatory operator,

"(B) the payment of a monthly per beneficiary premium by each 1988 last signatory operator for each eligible beneficiary of such operator who is described in subsection (b)(2) and who is receiving benefits under the 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan, and

"(C) the provision of security (in the form of a bond, letter of credit or cash escrow) in an amount equal to a portion of the projected future cost to the 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan of providing health benefits for eligible and potentially eligible beneficiaries attributable to the 1988 last signatory operator. If a 1988 last signatory operator is unable to provide the security required, the 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan shall require the operator to pay an annual prefunding premium that is greater than the premium otherwise applicable.

"(2) ADJUSTMENTS.—The 1992 UMWA Benefit Plan shall provide for—

. "(A) annual adjustments of the per beneficiary premium to cover changes in the cost of providing benefits to eligible beneficiaries, and

"(B) adjustments as necessary to the annual prefunding premium to reflect changes in the cost of providing benefits to eligible beneficiaries for whom per beneficiary premiums are not paid.

"(3) ADDITIONAL LIABILITY.—Any last signatory operator who is not a 1988 last signatory operator shall pay the monthly per beneficiary premium under paragraph (1)(B) for each eligible beneficiary described in such paragraph attributable to that operator.

"(4) JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY.—A 1988 last signatory operator or last signatory operator described in paragraph (3), and any related person to any such operator, shall be jointly and severally liable with such operator for any amount required to be paid by such operator under this section.

"(5) DEDUCTIBILITY.—Any premium required by this section shall be deductible without regard to any limitation on deductibility based on the prefunding of health benefits.

(1) by inserting in subsection (a) after "public lands" the following: "(including public lands, as defined in section 103(e) of this Act, which are reserved from entry pursuant to section 24 of the Federal Power Act (16 U.S.C. 818))";

(2) in paragraph (4) of subsection (a), by striking "Federal Power Commission under the Federal Power Act of 1935 (49 Stat. 847; 16 U.S.C. 791) and inserting in lieu thereof "Federal Energy Regulatory Commission under the Federal Power Act, including part 1 thereof (41 Stat. 1063, 16 U.S.C. 791a-825r)."; and

(3) by adding the following new subsection at the end thereof:

"(d) With respect to any project or portion thereof that was licensed pursuant to, or granted an exemption from, part I of the Federal Power Act which is located on lands subject to a reservation under section 24 of the Federal Power Act and which did not receive a permit, right-of-way or other approval under this section prior to enactment of this subsection, no such permit, right-of-way, or other approval shall be required for continued operation, including continued operation pursuant to section 15 of the Federal Power Act, of such project unless the Commission determines that such project involves the use of any additional public lands or National Forest lands not subject to such reservation.".

SEC. 2402. DAMS IN NATIONAL PARK SYSTEM UNITS.

After the date of enactment of this Act, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission may not issue an original license under Part I of the Federal Power Act (nor an exemption from such Part) for any new hydroelectric power project located within the boundaries of any unit of the National Park System that would have a direct adverse effect on Federal lands within any such unit. Nothing in this section shall be construed as repealing any existing provision of law (or affecting any treaty) explicitly authorizing a hydroelectric power project.

SEC. 2403. THIRD PARTY CONTRACTING BY FERC.

(a) Environmental Impact Statements.—Where the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission is required to prepare a draft or final environmental impact statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 and following) in connection with an application for a license under part I of the Federal Power Act, the Commission may permit, at the election of the applicant, a contractor, consultant or other person funded by the applicant and chosen by the Commission from among a list of such individuals or companies determined by the Commission to be qualified to do such work, to prepare such statement for the Commission. The contractor shall execute a disclosure statement prepared by the Commission specifying that it has no financial or other interest in the outcome of the project. The Commission shall establish the scope of work and procedures to assure that the contractor, consultant or other person has no financial or other potential conflict of interest in the outcome of the proceeding. Nothing herein shall affect the Commission's responsibility to comply with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

(b) Environmental Assessments.—Where an environmental assessment is required under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 and following) in connection with an application for a license under part I of the Federal Power Act, the Commission may permit an applicant, or a contractor, consultant or other person selected by the applicant, to prepare such environmental assessment. The Commission shall institute procedures, including pre-application consultations, to advise potential applicants of studies or other information foreseeably required by the Commission. The Commission may allow the filing of such applicant-prepared environmental assessments as part of the application. Nothing herein shall affect the Commission's responsibility to comply with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

(c) Effective Date.—This section shall take effect with respect to license applications filed after the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 2404. IMPROVEMENT AT EXISTING FEDERAL FACILITIES.

(a) Studies of Opportunities for Increased Hydroelectric Generation.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Army, shall perform reconnaissance level studies of cost effective opportunities to increase hydropower production at existing federally-owned or operated water regulation, storage, and conveyance facilities. Such studies shall be completed within 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act and transmitted to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources and the Committee on Environment and Public Works of the United States Senate and to the Committee on Energy and Commerce, the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, and the Committee on Public Works and Transportation of the United States House of Representatives. An individual study shall be prepared for each of the Nation's principal river basins. Each such study shall identify and describe with specificity the following matters:

(1) opportunities to improve the efficiency of hydroelectric generation at such facilities through, but not limited to, mechanical, structural, or operational changes;

(2) opportunities to improve the efficiency of the use of water supplied or regulated by Federal projects where such improvement could, in the absence of legal or administrative constraints, make additional water supplies available for hydroelectric generation or reduce project energy use;

(3) opportunities to create additional generating capacity at existing facilities through, but not limited to, the construction of additional generating units, the uprating of generators and turbines, and the construction of pumped storage facilities; and

(4) preliminary assessment of the costs and the economic and environmental consequences of such measures.

(b) EXCEPTION FOR PREVIOUS STUDIES.—In those cases where studies of the type required by this section have been prepared by any agency of the United States and published within the ten years prior to the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary may choose not to perform new studies but incorporate the information developed by such studies into the study reports required by this section.

(c) AUTHORIZATION.—There is authorized to be appropriated in each of the fiscal years 1993, 1994, and 1995 such sums as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

SEC. 2405. WATER CONSERVATION AND ENERGY PRODUCTION.

(a) STUDIES.—The Secretary of the Interior, acting pursuant to the Federal reclamation laws (Act of June 17, 1902, 32 Stat. 388), and Acts supplementary thereto and amendatory thereof, is authorized and directed to conduct feasibility investigations of opportunities to increase the amount of hydroelectric energy available for marketing by the Secretary from Federal hydroelectric power generation facilities resulting from a reduction in the consumptive use of such power for Federal reclamation project purposes or as a result of an increase in the amount of water available for such generation because of water conservation efforts on Federal reclamation projects or a combination thereof. The Secretary of the Interior is further authorized and directed to conduct feasibility investigations of opportunities to mitigate damages to or enhance fish and wildlife as a result of increasing the amount of water available for such purposes because of water conservation efforts on Federal reclamation projects. Such feasibility investigations shall include, but not be limited to—

(1) an analysis of the technical, environmental, and economic feasibility of reducing the amount of water diverted upstream of such Federal hydroelectric power generation facilities by Federal reclamation projects;

(2) an estimate of the reduction, if any, of project power consumed as a result of the decreased amount of diversion;

(3) an estimate of the increase in the amount of electrical energy and related revenues which would result from the marketing of such power by the Secretary;

(4) an estimate of the fish and wildlife benefits which would result from the decreased or modified diversions;

(5) a finding by the Secretary of the Interior that the activities proposed in the feasibility study can be carried out in accordance with applicable Federal and State law, interstate compacts and the contractual obligations of the Secretary; and

(6) a finding by the affected Federal Power Marketing Administrator that the hydroelectric component of the proposed water conservation feature is cost-effective and that the affected Administrator is able to market the hydro-electric power expected to be generated.

(b) CONSULTATION.—In preparing feasibility studies pursuant to this section, the Secretary of the Interior shall consult with, and seek the recommendations of, affected State, local and Indian tribal interests, and shall provide for appropriate public comment.

(c) AUTHORIZATION.—There is hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of the Interior such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section.

SEC. 2406. FEDERAL PROJECTS IN THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST.

Without further appropriation and without fiscal year limitation, the Secretaries of the Interior and Army are authorized to plan, design, construct, operate and maintain generation additions, improvements and replacements, at their respective Federal projects in the Pacific Northwest Region as defined in the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act (Northwest Power Act), Public Law 96-501 (16 U.S.C. 839a(14)), and to operate and maintain the respective Secretary's power facilities in the Region, that the respective Secretary determines necessary or appropriate and that the Bonneville Power Administrator subsequently determines necessary or appropriate, with any funds that the Administrator determines to make available to the respective Secretary for such purposes. Each Secretary is authorized, without further appropriation, to accept and use such funds for such purposes: Provided, That, such funds shall continue to be exempt from sequestration pursuant to section 255(g)(1) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985: Provided further, That this section shall not modify or affect the applicability of any provision of the Northwest Power Act. This provision shall be effective on October 1, 1993.

SEC. 2407. CERTAIN PROJECTS IN ALASKA.

(a) AUTHORITY TO ISSUE EXEMPTIONS.—Except as provided in subsection (b) or (c), upon receipt of an application under this section, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "Commission") may grant, notwithstanding the provisions of section 2402, an exemption in whole or in part from the requirements of part I of the Federal Power Act, including any license requirements contained in Part I of the Federal Power Act, to the following facilities located in the State of Alaska:

(1) a project located at Sitka, Alaska, with application numbered UL89-08-000;

(1) such terms and conditions as the Fish and Wildlife Service, National Marine Fisheries Service, and the State agency each determine are appropriate to prevent loss of, or damage to, such resources and to otherwise carry out the purposes of such Act, and

(2) such terms and conditions as the Commission deems appropriate to ensure that such facility continues to comply with the provisions of this section and terms and conditions included in any such exemption.

(d) ENFORCEMENT.—Any violation of a term or condition of any exemption granted under subsection (a) shall be treated as a violation of a rule or order of the Commission under the Federal Power Act.

(e) FEES.—The Commission may establish fees which shall be paid by an applicant for a license or exemption for a project that is required to meet terms and conditions set by fish and wildlife agencies under subsection (c). Such fees shall be adequate to reimburse the fish and wildlife agencies referred to in subsection (c) for any reasonable costs incurred in connection with any studies or other reviews carried out by such agencies for purposes of compliance with this section. SEC. 2408. PROJECTS ON FRESH WATERS IN STATE OF HAWAII.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, in consultation with the State of Hawaii, shall carry out a study of hydroelectric licensing in the State of Hawaii. For purposes of considering whether such licensing should be transferred to the State, within 18 months after the enactment of this Act, the Commission shall complete the study and submit a report containing the results of the study to the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the United States House of Representatives and to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources of the United States Senate. The study shall examine, and the report shall at a minimum contain an analysis of, each of the following:

(1) The State regulatory programs applicable to hydroelectric power production and the extent to which such programs are suitable as a substitute for regulation of such projects under the Federal Power Act, taking into considertaion all aspects of such regulation, including energy, environmental, and safety considerations.

(2) Any unique geographical, hydrological, or other characteristics of waterways in Hawaii or any other aspects of hydroelectric power development and natural resource protection in Hawaii that would justify or not justify the permanent transfer of Federal Energy Regulatory Commission jurisdiction over hydroelectric power projects to that State.

(3) The adequacy of mechanisms and procedures for consideration of fish and wildlife and other environmental values applicable in connection with hydroelectric power development in Hawaii under the State programs referred to in paragraph (1).

(4) Any national policy considerations that would justify or not justify the removal of Federal Energy Regulatory Commission jurisdiction over hydroelectric power projects in Hawaii.

(5) The precedent-setting effect, if any, of provisions of law adopted by the Congress removing Federal Energy Regulatory Commission jurisdiction over hydroelectric power projects in Hawaii.

SEC. 2409. EVALUATION OF DEVELOPMENT POTENTIAL.

TITLE XXV—COAL, OIL, AND GAS

SEC. 2501. HOT DRY ROCK GEOTHERMAL ENERGY.

(a) USGS Program.—The Secretary of the Interior, acting through the United States Geological Survey, and in consultation with the Secretary of Energy, shall establish a cooperative Government-private sector program with respect to hot dry rock geothermal energy resources on public lands (as such term is defined in section 103(e) of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976) and lands managed by the Department of Agriculture, other than any such public or other lands that are withdrawn from geothermal leasing. Such program shall include, but shall not be limited to, activities to identify, select, and classify those areas throughout the United States that have a high potential for hot dry rock geothermal energy production and activities to develop and disseminate information regarding the utilization of such areas for hot dry rock energy production. Such information may include information regarding field test processes and techniques for assuring that hot dry rock geothermal energy development projects are developed in an economically feasible manner without adverse environmental consequences. Utilizing the information developed by the Secretary, together with information developed in connection with other related programs carried out by other Federal agencies, the Secretary, acting through the United States Geological Survey, may also enter into contracts and cooperative agreements with any public or private entity to provide assistance to any such entity to enable such entity to carry out additional projects with respect to the utilization of hot dry rock geothermal energy resources which will further the purposes of this section.

(b) Authorization of Appropriations.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necesary to carry out this section.

SEC. 2502. HOT DRY ROCK GEOTHERMAL ENERGY IN EASTERN UNITED STATES.

The United States Geological Survey, in collaboration with the Secretary of Energy, shall convene a workshop of interested governmental and private parties to discuss the regional potential for hot dry rock geothermal energy in the Eastern United States. The purpose of the workshop shall be to review the status of recoverability of hot dry rock energy in the Eastern United States and to determine what geologic, technological, and economic obstacles need to be overcome to make the utilization of hot dry rock energy feasible. The workshop shall be convened within 6 months after enactment of this Act and the United States Geological Survey shall submit a report to Congress within 6 months after the workshop containing a summary of the findings and conclusions of the workshop.

SEC. 2503. COAL REMINING.

(a) Modification of Prohibition.—Section 510 of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (30 U.S.C. 1260) is amended by adding the following new subsection at the end thereof:

"(e) Modification of Prohibition.—After the date of enactment of this subsection, the prohibition of subsection (c) shall not apply to a permit application due to any violation resulting from an unanticipated event or condition at a surface coal mining operation on lands eligible for remining under a permit held by the person making such application. As used in this subsection, the term 'violation' has the same meaning as such term has under subsection (c). The authority of this subsection and section 515(b)(20)(B) shall terminate on September 30, 2004.".

(b) Period of Responsibility.—Section 515(b)(20) of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (30 U.S.C. 1265(b)(20)) is amended as follows:

(1) Insert "(A)" after "(20)".

(2) Add the following new subparagraph at the end thereof:

"(B) on lands eligible for remining assume the responsibility for successful revegetation for a period of two full years after the last year of augmented seeding, fertilizing, irrigation, or other work in order to assure compliance with the applicable standards, except in those areas or regions of the country where the annual average precipitation is twenty-six inches or less, then the operator's assumption of responsibility and liability will be extended for a period of five full years after the last year of augmented seeding, fertilizing, irrigation, or other work in order to assure compliance with the applicable standards.".

(c) Definitions.—Section 701 of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (30 U.S.C. 1291) is amended by striking the period at the end of paragraph (32) and inserting a semicolon in lieu thereof, and by adding the following new paragraphs at the end thereof:

"(33) the term 'unanticipated event or condition' as used in section 510(e) means an event or condition encountered in a remining operation that was not contemplated by the applicable surface coal mining and reclamation permit; and

"(34) the term 'lands eligible for remining' means those lands that would otherwise be eligible for expenditures under section 404 or under section 402(g)(4).".

(d) Eligibility.—Section 404 of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (30 U.S.C. 1234) is amended by adding the following new sentence at the end thereof: "Surface coal mining operations on lands eligible for remining shall not affect the eligibility of such lands for reclamation and restoration under this title after the release of the bond or deposit for any such operation as provided under section 519. In the event the bond or deposit for a surface coal mining operation on lands eligible for remining is forfeited, funds available under this title may be used if the amount of such bond or deposit is not sufficient to provide for adequate reclamation or abatement, except that if conditions warrant the Secretary shall immediately exercise his authority under section 410.".

(e) Abandoned Coal Refuse Sites.—(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 to the contrary, the Secretary of the Interior shall, within one year after the enactment of this Act, publish proposed regulations in the Federal Register, and after opportunity for public comment publish final regulations, establishing environmental protection performance and reclamation standards, and separate permit systems applicable to operations for the on-site reprocessing of abandoned coal refuse and operations for the removal of abandoned coal refuse on lands that would otherwise be eligible for expenditure under section 404 and section 402(g)(4) of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977.

(2) The standards and permit systems referred to in paragraph (1) shall distinguish between those operations which reprocess abandoned coal refuse on-site, and those operations which completely remove abandoned coal refuse from a site for the direct use of such coal refuse, or for the reprocessing of such coal refuse, at another location. Such standards and permit systems shall be premised on the distinct differences between operations for the on-site reprocessing, and operations for the removal, of abandoned coal refuse and other types of surface coal mining operations.

(3) The Secretary of the Interior may devise a different standard than any of those set forth in section 515 and section 516 of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, and devise a separate permit system, if he determines, on a standard-by-standard basis, that a different standard may facilitate the on-site reprocessing, or the removal, of abandoned coal refuse in a manner that would provide the same level of environmental protection as under section 515 and section 516.

(4) Not later than 30 days prior to the publication of the proposed regulations referred to in this subsection, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs of the United States House of Representatives, and the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources of the United States Senate containing a detailed description of any environmental protection performance and reclamation standards, and separate permit systems, devised pursuant to this subsection.

Repair of damage shall include rehabilitation, restoration, or replacement of the damaged occupied residential dwelling and structures related thereto, or non-commercial building. Compensation shall be provided to the owner of the damaged occupied residential dwelling and structures related thereto or non-commercial building and shall be in the full amount of the diminution in value resulting from the subsidence. Compensation may be accomplished by the purchase, prior to mining, of a noncancellable premium-prepaid insurance policy.

"(2) Promptly replace any drinking, domestic, or residential water supply from a well or spring in existence prior to the application for a surface coal mining and reclamation permit, which has been affected by contamination, diminution, or interruption resulting from underground coal mining operations.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit or interrupt underground coal mining operations.

"(b) Regulations.—Within one year after the date of enactment of this section, the Secretary shall, after providing notice and opportunity for public comment, promulgate final regulations to implement subsection (a).".

(2)(A) The Secretary of the Interior shall review existing requirements related to underground coal mine subsidence and natural gas and petroleum pipeline safety. Such review shall consider the following with respect to subsidence: notification; mitigation; coordination; requirements of the Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act and the Hazardous Liquid Pipeline Safety Act; and the status of Federal, State and local laws, as well as common law, with respect to prevention or mitigation of damage from subsidence.

(B) The review shall also include a survey of the status of Federal, State, and local laws, as well as common law, with respect to the responsibilities of the relevant parties for costs resulting from damage due to subsidence or from mitigation efforts undertaken to prevent damage from subsidence.

(C) In conducting the review, the Secretary of the Interior shall consult with the Secretary of

Prior to approving any such studies, research or demonstration projects the Director, Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, shall first consult with the Director, Bureau of Mines, and obtain a determination from such Director that the Bureau of Mines is not already conducting like or similar studies, research or demonstration projects. Studies, research and demonstration projects for the purposes of title IV of this Act shall only be conducted in accordance with section 401(c)(6).".

(d) Coal Formations.—(1) In furtherance of the purposes of the Act of August 31, 1954 (30 U.S.C. 551–558) the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Director of the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, shall, upon application by a State, enter into a cooperative agreement with any such State that has an approved abandoned mine reclamation program pursuant to section 405 of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 to undertake the activities referred to in section 3(b) of the Act of August 31, 1954 (30 U.S.C. 553(b)). The Secretary shall immediately enter into such cooperative agreement upon application by a State. Any such cooperative agreement shall not be subject to review or approval by the Appalachian Regional Development Commission.

Any lesser royalty granted under this section, or under section 39 of the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 209) after March 29, 1990, for lignite coal in the Fort Union region shall continue for a term of at least 10 years from the effective date of such reduction.

(b) Review and Extension.—Within 10 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Interior shall review the effect of any royalty reduction pursuant to subsection (a) on the production of coal. If the Secretary determines that such royalty reduction has had no significant adverse impact on coal production, upon a request by a lignite coal operator in the Fort Union region, the Secretary may grant an additional royalty reduction for a period of 10 years, provided that the total term of the reduced royalty granted pursuant to subsection (a) and this subsection for a tract or lease does not exceed a period of 20 years.

The Commission shall identify within the combined license the inspections, tests, and analyses, including those applicable to emergency planning, that the licensee shall perform, and the acceptance criteria that, if met, are necessary and sufficient to provide reasonable assurance that the facility has been constructed and will be operated in conformity with the license, the provisions of this Act, and the Commission's rules and regulations. Following issuance of the combined license, the Commission shall ensure that the prescribed inspections, tests, and analyses are performed and, prior to operation of the facility, shall find that the prescribed acceptance criteria are met. That notice shall provide that any person whose interest may be affected by operation of the plant, may within 60 days request the Commission to hold a hearing on whether the facility as constructed complies, or on completion will comply, with the acceptance criteria of the license.

"(ii) A request for hearing under clause (i) shall show, prima facie, that one or more of the acceptance criteria in the combined license have not been, or will not be met, and the specific operational consequences of nonconformance that would be contrary to providing reasonable assurance of adequate protection of the public health and safety.

"(iii) After receiving a request for a hearing under clause (i), the Commission expeditiously shall either deny or grant the request. If the request is granted, the Commission shall determine, after considering petitioners' prima facie showing and any answers thereto, whether during a period of interim operation, there will be reasonable assurance of adequate protection of the public health and safety. If the Commission determines that there is such reasonable assurance, it shall allow operation during an interim period under the combined license.

"(iv) The Commission, in its discretion, shall determine appropriate hearing procedures, whether informal or formal adjudicatory, for any hearing under clause (i), and shall state its reasons therefor.

"(v) The Commission shall, to the maximum possible extent, render a decision on issues raised by the hearing request within 180 days of the publication of the notice provided by clause (i) or the anticipated date for initial loading of fuel into the reactor, whichever is later. Commencement of operation under a combined license is not subject to subparagraph (A).".

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 776) to provide for improved energy efficiency submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report.

TITLE I—ENERGY EFFICIENCY

SUBTITLE A—BUILDINGS

Sec. 101. Building Energy Efficiency Standards

Section 101(c) would amend the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act (P.L. 101–625) to ensure that the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development develops energy efficiency standards for new homes financed through Federal mortgage programs as required by that Act. The subsection also expands the coverage of the standards from HUD insured mortgages only, to the mortgage insurance and guarantee programs of the Departments of Agriculture and Veterans Affairs. Such standards shall meet or exceed the requirements of the Council of American Building Officials Model Energy Code 1992 (CABO–MEC 1992) or, in the case of multifamily high rises, the requirements of the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating, and Air-Conditioning Engineers standards (ASHRAE 90.1–1989), and shall be cost-effective with respect to construction and operating costs on a life-cycle cost basis. The Conferees believe that these consensus standards are cost-effective with respect to construction and operating costs on a life-cycle cost basis. If, in carrying out their responsibilities under this subsection, the Secretaries wish to conduct life-cycle cost analyses, they should use a 25 or 30 year term to reflect the facts that houses have long useful lives and are commonly financed through 30 year mortgages.

SUBTITLE B—UTILITIES

Sec. 111. Encouragement of Investments in Conservation and Energy Efficiency by Electric Utilities

This section would amend the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 to require utilities and public utility commissions to consider requiring three new Federal standards:

1. integrated resource planning which compares supply and demand-side options on a systematic and comparable basis;
2. cost recovery for energy efficiency programs and measures that makes them at least as profitable as supply side measures; and
3. rate changes that encourage investments in efficiency measures in generation, transmission and distribution of power.

Whether or not utilities and public utility commissions choose to implement these policies, they must hold a public hearing and state why they will not implement them. The Conferees recognize that a number of States have already implemented some or all of the standards encouraged under this section. The Conferees do not intend that such States go through additional rulemaking proceedings simply to satisfy the procedural requirement above, nor do they intend that States repeat such proceedings in the future. These States are encouraged to demonstrate that they have implemented the standards by referencing actions they have already taken. States have substantial discretion in how they implement the standards encouraged under this section.

It is the intent of this subtitle to promote energy efficiency, in particular by encouraging utilities, which have a unique relationship with their customers, to expand demand-side management (DSM) programs. It is also intended that utility commissions must consider the impact which these expanded DSM programs may have on small businesses already engaged in similar activities, and shall implement these standards so as to assure that utility actions will not provide utilities with unfair competitive advantages over such small businesses. It is further intended that whenever practicable and consistent with energy efficiency goals, utility commissions will encourage approaches to the implementation of DSM activities that would be mutually beneficial to utilities and small businesses, such as through joint utility-small business arrangements using rebates or vouchers.

The subsection dealing with small business protection neither precludes, nor mandates, the adoption of competitive bidding for demand-side management services. By adding this provision, the Conferees do not intend that utilities be precluded from engaging in energy conservation, energy efficiency or other demand-side measures.

Whether utilities engage in such activities should continue to be determined by state laws and state regulatory commissions, keeping in mind the requirements of this subsection. The Conferees intend that nothing in this subsection in any way interfere with the ability of utilities to assure safe and reliable service. State regulatory commissions are encouraged to utilize their existing authority in implementing this subsection; the implementation of this subsection is not intended to require the creation of new administrative or regulatory procedures.

Sec. 114. Amendment of Hoover Power Plant Act

Section 114 would amend the Hoover Power Plant Act of 1984 to require the Western Area Power Administration (WAPA) to issue rules requiring all but its smallest customers to engage in integrated resource planning (IRP). The Conferees recognize the efforts that many customers have already undertaken with respect to IRP. The Conferees further recognize that these customers vary in size and capability to plan, and therefore intend that regulations be flexible enough to allow for reasonable variations in compliance requirements.

In section 204(b) of such Act, as amended by this section, the customer is required, in preparation and development of the IRP, to provide for full public participation, including participation of governing boards. This language reflects the sound policy that better decisions result when the affected customers are involved in the resource planning process. Preference entities serve the public and are accountable to their consumers. By allowing the consumer to participate in the IRP preparation and development process, recognition of the public interest is assured.

Section 204(c), as amended, would direct the Administrator to accept integrated resource plans that are currently being implemented by customers under other programs as fulfilling the requirements of this provision "to the extent such plan substantially complies with requirements of this title." The Conferees intend for the Administrator to be flexible in determining what satisfies the "substantial compliance" standard. IRP plans to take significant resources to plan and implement.

Finally, it is not the Conferees' intent that WAPA force changes in customers' approved IRP plans. WAPA should accept good faith efforts to comply with approved plans as generally satisfying compliance standards.

Sec. 115. Encouragement of Investments in Conservation and Energy Efficiency by Gas Utilities

This section would amend the natural gas provisions of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 to require utilities and State regulatory commissions to consider requiring two new Federal standards:

1. implement integrated resource planning for State regulated gas utilities; and
2. allow State regulated gas utilities to earn a profit on investments in energy efficiency.

States may choose not to implement these requirements, but they must hold a hearing and state why they are not implementing them.

The Conferees recognize that a number of States have already implemented some or both of the standards encouraged under this section. The Conferees do not intend that such States go through additional rulemaking proceedings simply to satisfy the procedural requirements above. These States are encouraged to demonstrate that they have implemented the standards by referencing actions they have already taken. The Conferees believe that States should have substantial discretion in how they implement the standards encouraged under this section.

It is intended that Integrated Resource Planning (IRP) be considered only for local gas distribution companies who directly serve ultimate users of gas. In examining natural gas supply options under IRP, it is not intended that the sources, conditions, or other characteristics of the upstream supply of gas be analyzed. Rather, the IRP is intended to examine and compare demand-side options with the general option of additional supplies to end use customers by the local gas distribution company.

The subsection in this section regarding the competitive impact of the implementation of these standards on small businesses has the same intent as that described under section 111.

SUBTITLE C—STANDARDS

In general

The provisions of this subtitle would significantly expand the coverage of the appliance energy efficiency standards program and the energy labeling program under the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (EPCA). It is the intent of the Conferees that the Secretary shall seek to harmonize these standards internationally, particularly with standards established or under development in Canada and Mexico, nations with which the United States conducts substantial trade. Such harmonization will simplify enforcement, reduce impediments to trade, and will reduce burdens on manufacturers.

In addition, the Conferees have concerns regarding the adequacy of the current enforcement penalties under EPCA. These penalties were established many years ago. Accordingly, the conferees expect the Secretary to review the adequacy of the enforcement provisions of these programs and to recommend changes to the Congress, if appropriate.

Sec. 121. Energy Efficiency Labeling for Windows and Window Systems

The National Fenestration Rating Council (NFRC) is initially directed to develop this voluntary rating program according to commonly accepted procedures for the development of national testing procedure and labeling programs. Such commonly accepted procedures are those recognized by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), or that are consistent with FTC policy.

In addition, it is intended that, should NFRC develop this program, its implementation and administration also will be in accordance with commonly accepted procedures. Such procedures must assure, at a minimum, that NFRC has sufficient oversight and authority to assure that accreditation and certification procedures result in compliance with its program.

Sec. 125. Energy Efficiency Labeling for Commercial Office Equipment

This section would require the Secretary to provide financial assistance to support the development of a voluntary national testing and information program for commercial office equipment in accordance with commonly accepted procedure for the development of such testing and information programs. Such commonly accepted procedures are those recognized by the Federal Trade Commission or consistent with FTC policy.

If such voluntary program is not established within 3 years, then the Secretary and the Federal Trade Commission are directed to develop test procedures and labeling rules for commercial office equipment.

Sec. 126. Energy Efficiency Labeling for Luminaries

This section would require the Secretary to provide financial assistance to support the development of a voluntary national testing and information program for luminaries in accordance with commonly accepted procedures for the development of such testing and information programs. Such commonly accepted procedures are those recognized by the Federal Trade Commission or that are consistent with FTC policy.

Sec. 127. Report on the Potential of Cooperative Advanced Appliance Development

This section would require the Secretary, in consultation with the Administrator of EPA, to prepare and submit a report to Congress on the potential for the development and commercialization of appliances which are substantially more efficient that those required by Federal or State law. Any recommendations related to the commercialization of such advanced appliances should take into account any issues regarding the marketing of such appliances.

The Conferees are aware that the Environmental Protection Agency is already engaged in supporting industry efforts to develop high efficiency refrigerators and other products and do not intend this study to delay those ongoing efforts. The study should particularly focus on those appliances and products that EPA is not currently working on. In addition, it is intended that the two agencies will coordinate their efforts in this area and avoid duplication of effort.

SUBTITLE F—FEDERAL AGENCY ENERGY MANAGEMENT

Sec. 155. Energy Savings Performance Contracts

This section would amend title VIII of the National Energy Conservation Policy Act to further promote the use of energy performance contracts.

It is estimated that the Federal government could reduce its energy costs by approximately $1 billion annually through the installation of energy efficiency measures in its buildings. However, the budget deficit has prevented the necessary investments from being made by the government.

Energy savings performance contracts are a mechanism through which private sector funds can finance Federal energy efficiency improvements. The Conferees recognize that these contracts differ significantly from traditional Federal procurement contracts. Under these contracts, the contractor is expected to bear the risk of performance, make a significant initial capital investment, guarantee significant energy savings to the government agency, and from these savings the agency, in effect, makes payment to the contractor.

Because these contracts differ significantly from traditional Federal contracts, existing contracting regulations may be inconsistent. Current regulations were not formulated for application to energy performance contracts. Accordingly, this provision authorizes and directs the Secretary, with the concurrence of the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) Council, to develop procedures and methods for the implementation of such contracts. To maximize the benefits to the government of such contracts, the Secretary, with the concurrence of the FAR Council, is given wide latitude to develop substitute regulations where existing procurement regulations are inconsistent with the goal of promoting energy performance contracts. These substitute regulations must, however, be consistent with Federal procurement laws.

The section requires new procurement regulations be issued within 180 days, and the Conferees expect prompt action to carry out this requirement consistent with public participation.

It is also the expectation of the Conferees that uniform regulations will be developed both to relieve Federal agencies of the need to individually develop performance contract procedures and methods and to encourage energy service companies to contract with Federal agencies on a uniform basis.

Finally, subsection (a)(2)(D)(ii) authorizes multiyear contracts for up to 25 years, provided funds are available for payments to the contractor in the first year. The section creates special protections for the taxpayer in view of the risk inherent in committing the Federal government to such multi-year contracts. For example, the government may be liable for payment of a substantial cancellation fee. Accordingly, subsection (a)(2)(D)(iii) requires that a Federal agency must notify the appropriate authorizing and appropriating committees of the Congress before signing such a contract if it contains a clause permitting a cancellation charge in excess of $750,000. Subsection (a)(2)(D)(i) also provides that such contracts be awarded in a competitive manner, and the Conferees intend that Federal agencies endeavor to secure the broadest participation by qualified firms.

TITLE II—NATURAL GAS

The Conferees agreed not to include most of the text of title II of H.R. 776, regarding natural gas pipelines, in the conference report. The one exception is that the conference report includes an amended section 201 regarding fewer restrictions on certain natural gas imports and exports.

The decision not to include most of title II includes section 214 of the House bill regarding State regulation of the production of natural gas, i.e., prorationing. However, the Conferees included a new section 202, stating the sense of the Congress that natural gas consumers and producers, and the national economy, are best served by a competitive natural gas wellhead market. One of the reasons that Conferees decided not to include section 214 is the recognition that, under existing law, a state cannot use its proration authority for the purpose of restricting supplies and raising the price of natural gas. E.g., Northwest Central Pipeline Corp. v. State Corporation Commission of Kansas, 489 U.S. 493 (1989); Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp. v. State Oil and Gas Board of Miss., 474 U.S. 409 (1986). The Conferees recognize that both the Congress and the U.S. Supreme Court have long recognized the necessity of state-administered systems for defining and enforcing property rights in natural gas reservoirs. Still, states may not regulate natural gas production without regard to the effect that such regulation may have on interstate commerce. Under existing law, a method of regulating production must: (1) achieve or advance the legitimate state interests in conserving natural resources, preventing waste, and protecting correlative rights; and (2) not be preempted by, or overly disruptive of, Federal law. Should a state use its proration authority for the purpose of restricting supplies and raising the price of natural gas, the Conferees do not believe that such regulation would satisfy the standard under existing law. The Conferees believe that the new section 202, stating the sense of the Congress, is consistent with existing law.

TITLE IV—ALTERNATIVE FUELS AND NON-FEDERAL PROGRAMS

Section 408 authorizes the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), under the Natural Gas or Federal Power Acts, to consider the environmental and other benefits of research and development efforts on Alternative Fuel Vehicles (AFV) by the Gas Research Institute (GRI) or the Electric Power Research Institute.

If the benefits exceed the direct costs of the research and development, the FERC may allow natural gas pipelines and electric utilities to recover the costs in their "just and reasonable" rate filings under the Natural Gas and the Federal Power Acts.

Cost sharing is required to the maximum practicable extent. This section recognizes that cost sharing may not be practicable for all natural gas transportation, pollution control, and emissions reduction projects.

The cofunding provisions are intended to become effective for new projects initiated after the date of enactment of this legislation and would not require GRI to cancel existing contracts to comply with the cofunding provision.

TITLE V—AVAILABILITY AND USE OF REPLACEMENT FUELS, ALTERNATIVE FUELS, AND ALTERNATIVE FUELED PRIVATE VEHICLES

The intent of section 501(a)(1) is not to cover all affiliates or divisions of the many large energy companies which have some, but not all, of their corporate units engaged in alternative fuels operations.

For example, the oil and gas production affiliate or division of a major energy company described in 501(a)(1)(C) would be covered; so might a propane pipeline unit or a natural gas processing division, if the "substantially engaged" test is met.

But an oil tanker division, a gasoline marketing affiliate, or a petrochemical unit whose major operations are the production of plastics, for example, would not be covered.

The Secretary has broad discretion to define the coverage of this provision. For example, he may in his discretion exempt some crude oil-related operations of an oil and gas production affiliate (but not the gas-related operations), or the petrochemical operations of a covered methanol unit (but not the methanol-related business).

TITLE VII—ELECTRICITY

Under current law, the Securities and Exchange Commission has authority to permit, on a case-by-case basis, certain utility functions outside the United States. Further, new section 32 of PUHCA allows exempt wholesale generators located outside the United States to engage in both wholesale and retail generation. The provisions of new section 33 supplement these foreign options for utility operations and do not in any way limit any person's ability to pursue SEC approval under current law or the EWG course.

The definition of an EWG has been drafted to permit an EWG to sell wholesale power that it has not generated itself. Buyers of wholesale power may desire to purchase capacity in increments that exceed what the most economical unit would produce. Consequently, the legislation would permit an EWG, for example, to generate 350 Megawatts and purchase an additional 50 Megawatts in order to met a purchaser's 400 MW capacity need.

The definition of an exempt wholesale generator contained in section 32(a)(1) permits an exempt wholesale generator to own facilities and goods, such as fuel and related transportation, storage and handling facilities, reasonably necessary for the operation of its business.

Rates, charges, terms, and conditions for wholesale transmission services ordered under section 211 in all cases shall be just and reasonable, and not unduly discriminatory or preferential. The Conferees intend the term "associated services" to mean the cost of ancillary services such as back-up power, interconnection costs, and radial lines.

New section 212(h) of the Federal Power Act contains a savings clause for State laws dealing with retail wheeling. Thus, State laws that either prohibit or permit retail wheeling are unaffecting by this subsection. And, if otherwise valid, remain in full force and effect.

The Conferees do not intend to limit or modify the authority of State commissions to review the prudence or imprudence of wholesale purchases by retail utilities under their jurisdiction.

The Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) has set policies from time to time for furnishing transmission service on the Federal Columbia River Transmission System. BPA has done so under the laws which define its authority and obligations concerning transmission, which laws remain fully effective and applicable. It is expected that, when the FERC exercises its authority under section 211 to require BPA to provide transmission service, it will do so consistent with the laws governing BPA. Transmission contracts entered into in accordance with BPA's policies which are in existence on the date of enactment of this Act are unaffected by the FERC's new authority to order access to transmission controlled by BPA. Similarly, BPA's short-term transmission service allocation methodology for economy energy trades is also unaffected by the FERC's new authority to order access to transmission controlled by BPA. However, the FERC is not bound by the transmission policy choices BPA has made or may make in the future as to new firm transmission service requests.

A primary BPA obligation under the laws that define BPA's authority and obligations is to provide transmission service over available capacity for its customers within the Pacific Northwest as that region is defined in 16 U.S.C. section 839a(14). Historically, Bonneville Power Administration has built most of the intraregional bulk transmission facilities in the Pacific Northwest. This was done on the basis of a regional consensus and the understanding that BPA would make these transmission facilities available for transmission of power for BPA's power and transmission customers located in the Pacific Northwest. The utilities of the Pacific Northwest have relied and continue to rely on that transmission. BPA's use of its transmission system for firm transmission service contracts for generating resources serving BPA customer loads within the Pacific Northwest is not affected by any new authority under this Act to provide access for interregional arrangements.

The FERC shall not issue any order for transmission services under section 211 which is likely to cause the uncompensated spill of water from Federal or non-Federal reservoirs which otherwise could be used to generate electric energy, because of its displacement from a transmission system by energy transmitted under such an order. Such spill shall be deemed contrary to the public interest unless full compensation is provided to those entities suffering such spill. Nothing in the preceding sentences should be understood to limit such ability as the FERC may otherwise have under this Act to prevent or compensate other adverse impacts that may result from an order issued under section 211 or this section.

Rates for transmission services provided by BPA under an order issued under section 211 are to be established by BPA and reviewed by the FERC through the same process and using the same statutory requirements as are applicable to all other transmission rates established by BPA, with the additional requirement that such rates for transmission services must also be just and reasonable and not unduly discriminatory or preferential as determined by the FERC, taking into account BPA's other statutory authorities and responsibilities. Nothing in the Federal Power Act or BPA's organic legislation should be construed to prohibit the FERC from approving rates, terms and conditions for transmission services pursuant to section 211 which provide for the recovery of any increased costs or lost revenues due to foregone sales or purchases or other operating impacts resulting from such services, provided that similar approvals are in general accorded to utilities subject to sections 205 and 206.

BPA may establish rates of general applicability for FERC-ordered transmission service which, once approved by the FERC, will not be subject to review in individual cases but will be periodically reviewed and, as appropriate, revised along with BPA's general wholesale power and transmission rates. BPA may also establish, and the FERC may approve, terms and conditions of general applicability and sufficient specificity for FERC-ordered transmission services.

BPA's rates, terms and conditions for transmission services ordered by the FERC may differ from those required by the FERC of other entities subject to this Act. However, the effect of any transmission services ordered by the FERC under section 211 cannot be materially more or less favorable for BPA than for other entities subject to the FERC's transmission service orders pursuant to this Act with respect to: (1) overall cost recovery by the transmitting utility, and (2) economic impact on the transmitting utility.

The FERC has the responsibility to implement this Act, including section 212(i), and to consider and apply BPA's other federal statutes.

TITLE VIII—HIGH-LEVEL RADIOACTIVE WASTE

Section 801 addresses the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) generally applicable standards for protection of members of the public from release of radioactive materials into the accessible environment as a result of the disposal of spent nuclear fuel or high-level or transuranic radioactive waste. The Administrator's authority to establish these standards is embodied in section 161b. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1970, and section 121(a) of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982.

Section 801 builds upon this existing authority of the Administrator to set generally applicable standards and directs the Administrator to establish health-based standards for protection of the public from release or radioactive materials that may be stored or disposed of in a repository at the Yucca Mountain site. The provisions of section 801 make clear that the standards established by the authority in this section would be the only such standards for protection of the public from releases of radioactive materials as a result of the disposal of spent nuclear fuel or high-level radioactive waste in a repository at the Yucca Mountain site. Any other generally applicable standards established pursuant to the Administrator's authority under section 161b. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1970, and section 121(a) of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 would not apply to the Yucca Mountain site.

The provisions adopted by the Conferees in section 801 require the Administrator to promulgate health-based standards for protection of the public from releases of radioactive materials from a repository at Yucca Mountain, based upon and consistent with the findings and recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences. These standards shall prescribe the maximum annual dose equivalent to individual members of the public from releases to the accessible environment from radioactive materials stored or disposed of in the repository. The provisions of section 801 do not mandate specific standards but rather direct the Administrator to set the standards based upon and consistent with the findings and recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences.

The Administrator is directed to contract with the National Academy of Sciences to conduct a study to provide findings and recommendations on reasonable standards for protection of the public health and safety by not later than December 31, 1993. In carrying out the study, the National Academy of Sciences is asked to address three questions: whether a health-based standard based upon doses to individual members of the public from releases to the accessible environment will provide a reasonable standard for protection of the health and safety of the general public; whether it is reasonable to assume that a system for post-closure oversight of the repository can be developed, based upon active institutional controls, that will prevent an unreasonable risk to breaching the repository barriers or increasing the exposure of individual members of the public to radiation beyond allowable limits; and whether it is possible to make scientifically supportable predictions of the probability that the repository's engineered or geologic barriers will be breached as a result of human intrusion over a period of 10,000 years. In looking at the question of human intrusion, the Conferees believe that it is also appropriate to look at issues related to predications of the probability of natural events.

In carrying out the study, the National Academy of Sciences would not be precluded from addressing additional questions or issues related to the appropriate standards for radiation protection at Yucca Mountain beyond those that are specified. For example, the study could include an estimate of the collective dose of the general population that could result from the adoption of a health-based standard based upon doses to individual members of the public. The purpose of the listing of specific issues is not to limit the issues considered by the National Academy of Sciences but rather to attempt to focus the study on concerns that have been raised by the scientific community.

Under the provisions of section 801, the Administrator is directed to promulgate standards within one year of receipt of the findings and recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences, based upon and consistent with those recommendations. The Conferees do not intend for the National Academy of Sciences, in making its recommendations, to establish specific standards for protection of the public but rather to provide expert scientific guidance on the issues involved in establishing those standards. Under the provisions of section 801, the authority and responsibility to establish the standards, pursuant to a rulemaking, would remain with the Administrator, as is the case under existing law. The provisions of section 801 are not intended to limit the Administrator's discretion in the exercise of his authority related to public health and safety issues.

The provisions to modify its technical requirements and criteria for licensing of a repository to be consistent with the standards promulgated by the Administrator within one year of the promulgation of those standards. In modifying its technical requirements and criteria, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) is directed to assume, to the extent consistent with the findings and recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences, that civilization will continue to exist and that post-closure oversight of the repository will continue, and to include in its technical requirements and criteria, engineered barriers to prevent human intrusion. As with the Administrator, the provisions of section 801 are not intended to limit the Commission's discretion in the exercise of its authority related to public health and safety.

The provisions of section 801 address only the standards of the Environmental Protection Agency, and comparable regulations of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, related to protection of the public from releases of radioactive materials stored or disposed of at the Yucca Mountain site pursuant to authority under the Atomic Energy Act, Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1970, the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, and this Act. The provisions of section 801 are not intended to affect in any way the application of any other existing laws to activities at the Yucca Mountain site.

TITLE X—REMEDIAL ACTION AND URANIUM REVITALIZATION

SUBTITLE A–REMEDIAL ACTION AT ACTIVE PROCESSING SITES

Funds made available under this program are intended to be provided for all costs that result from the disposition of byproduct material at active processing sites (subject to the limitations of Sec. 1001(b)), including groundwater remediation, treatment of contaminated soil, disposal of process wastes, removal actions, air pollution studies, mill and equipment decommissioning, site monitoring, administrative expenses, and additional expenditures required by related standards and regulations. An example of remediation costs would be cleaning up windblown by-product material in the vicinity of the commingled site. The availability of such funds under this program shall be considered by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in determining the sufficiency of the financial surety arrangements that must be established by mill operators for reclamation, decontamination, and decommissioning pursuant to 10 C.F.R. Pt. 40, Appendix A (criteria 10 and 11).

TITLE XII—RENEWABLE ENERGY

Section 1202 amends P.L. 101-218, the Renewable Energy and Energy Efficiency Technology Competitiveness Act, by restructuring the former joint venture program, the management plan, and the R&D goals. The program retains as its basic goal the acceleration of the commercialization of renewable energy and energy efficiency technologies through collaboration between industry and government on a cost-shared basis.

There are two major changes. First, the technologies will be chosen for Federal support on a competitive basis, as opposed to the original statute, which mandated joint ventures in specific technology areas. Second, the Secretary has been given wider latitude to choose financial mechanisms, including interest rate buydowns, to use in implementing the demonstration and commercial application program. The Secretary may utilize a financial intermediary for advice or assistance in the implementation of the program.

Elements of the revised program are modeled on the Clean Coal Technology program. The Secretary is directed to issue a solicitation and evaluate and select projects for financial assistance on the basis of DOE-developed criteria.

Section 1210. It is the understanding of the conference committee that the authorities established under Section 1210(a) will be implemented only when the monies authorized under Section 1210(b) are appropriated.

TITLE XVI—GLOBAL CLIMATE CHANGE

Sec. 1605. National Inventory and Voluntary Reporting of Greenhouse Gases

The guidelines for the voluntary reporting of greenhouse gases and the national inventory shall address coalbed methane emissions, inventories and reductions. Persons who wish to establish baselines shall be provided an opportunity to do so.

TITLE XVII—ADDITIONAL FEDERAL POWER ACT PROVISIONS

Section 1701(b) vacates the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's (FERC) current regulatory definition of the term "fishway" without prejudice to any definition or interpretation of the term by rule and requires the Commission to obtain the concurrence of the Secretaries of Commerce and the Interior in issuing any new regulatory remaking definition. It also indicates what may constitute a "fishway" under section 18 when a new rule is developed and promulgated. However, the section does not affect the authority of the Commission to continue to issue license orders that could include fishway prescriptions under section 18.

In essence, the provision returns the Commission and the Secretaries to the position they were in under section 18 of the Federal Power Act prior to the FERC adopting by regulation the fishway definition. The role of the Secretaries under the Act and this section would continue to be as it was prior to the definition and the role of the Commission in issuing licenses with conditions would also be as it was before the rule. Nothing in this amendment is intended to limit the roles or authorities of either the Secretaries or the Commission.

TITLE XVIII—OIL PIPELINE REGULATORY REFORM

Sec. 1803. Protection of Certain Existing Rates

Subsection (a) of section 1803 identifies oil pipeline rates that will be deemed just and reasonable by operation of law. Paragraph (1) of subsection (a) provides that rates in effect for a 365-day period before enactment of this legislation are deemed to be just and reasonable for purposes of the Interstate Commerce Act (ICA) if the rates were not subject to protest, investigation or complaint within that 365-day period. Paragraph (2) of subsection (a) provides that rates that were in effect on the 365th day preceding the date of the enactment of this legislation are deemed to be just and reasonable for purposes of the ICA even if the rates were not in effect throughout the 365-day period preceding enactment, because an intervening rate filing was made during the 365-day period, so long as the rates in effect 365 days before enactment were not subject to protest, investigation or complaint during the noted period. Consistent with the foregoing, the Conferees intend that a person may file a complaint up to, and including, the day preceding enactment and that such a complaint need only comply with the FERC's existing regulations in order to satisfy the statutory requirement. So long as a complaint filed during the period described above meets this standard, it will be sufficient to preclude a rate from being deemed just and reasonable under section 1803(a). In view of the fact that, but for the exceptions provided in subsections (b) and (c) of section 1803, this will be complainants' last chance to challenge such rates as well as the FERC's last change to review such rates before they are deemed just and reasonable, the conferees expect that the FERC will review such complaints carefully.

TITLE XIX—ENERGY REVENUE PROVISIONS

A. ENERGY CONSERVATION AND PRODUCTION INCENTIVES

1. EMPLOYER-PROVIDED TRANSPORTATION BENEFITS

Present Law

Under Treasury regulations, transit passes, tokens, fare cards, vouchers, and cash reimbursements provided by an employer to defray an employee's commuting costs are excludable from the employee's income (for both income and payroll tax purposes) as a de minimis fringe benefit if the total value of the benefit does not exceed $21 per month. If the total value of the benefit exceeds $21 per month, the full value of the benefit is includible in income.

Parking at or near the employer's business premises that is paid for by the employer is excludable from the income of the employee (for both income and payroll tax purposes) as a working condition fringe benefit, regardless of the value of the parking. This exclusion does not apply to any parking facility or space located on property owned or leased by the employee for residential purposes.

House Bill

Under the House bill, gross income and wages (for both income and payroll tax purposes) does not include qualified transportation fringe benefits. In general, a qualified transportation fringe is (1) transportation in a commuter highway vehicle if such transportation is in connection with travel between the employee's residence and place of employment, (2) a transit pass, or (3) qualified parking. Cash reimbursements made by the employer for such expenses under a bona fide reimbursement arrangement also qualify for the exclusion.

The maximum amount of qualified parking that is excludable from an employee's gross income is $160 per month (regardless of the total value of the parking). Other qualified transportation fringes are excludable from gross income to the extent that the aggregate value of the benefits does not exceed $60 per month (regardless of the total value of the benefits). The $60 and $160 limits are indexed for inflation, rounded down to the next whole dollar.

A commuter highway vehicle is a highway vehicle with the capacity to seat at least 6 adults (not including the driver) and at least 80 percent of the mileage use of which is for transporting employees between their residences and their place of employment using at least one-half of the adult seating capacity of the vehicle (not including the driver). Transportation furnished in a commuter highway vehicle operated by or for the employer is considered provided by the employer.

A transit pass includes any pass, token, farecard, voucher, or similar item entitling a person to transportation on mass transit facilities (whether publicly or privately owned). Types of transit facilities that may qualify for the exclusion include, for example, rail, bus, and ferry.

Qualified parking is parking provided to an employee on or near the business premises of the employer, or on or near a location from which the employee commutes to work by mass transit, in a commuter highway vehicle, or by carpool. As under present law, the exclusion does not apply to any parking facility or space located on property owned or leased by the employee for residential purposes.

Effective date.—The provision applies to benefits provided by the employer on or after January 1, 1993.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment is generally the same as the House bill, except that the parking cap is $145 per month, rather than $160 per month. In addition, the $60 and $145 limits are indexed for inflation in $5 increments.

Under the Senate amendment, cash reimbursements for transit passes do not qualify for the transit exclusion if vouchers that are exchangeable only for transit passes are readily available to the employer.

Effective date.—Same as the House bill.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except that the parking cap is $155 per month.

2. EXCLUSION OF ENERGY CONSERVATION SUBSIDIES PROVIDED BY PUBLIC UTILITIES

Present Law

Section 8217(i) of the National Energy Conservation Policy Act provided that the value of any subsidy provided by a utility to a residential customer for the purchase or installation of a residential energy conservation measure was excluded from gross income. That exclusion expired on June 30, 1989.

House Bill

For taxable years beginning after 1992, the bill provides an exclusion from the gross income of a residential customer of a public utility for the value of any subsidy provided by the utility for the purchase or installation of energy conservation measure.

For this purpose, an energy conservation measure is (1) any residential energy conservation measure with respect to a dwelling unit or (2) any commercial energy conservation measure with respect to dwelling units in a building or structure that contains five or more dwelling units. The term "residential energy conservation measure" has the meaning given to such term by section 210(11) of the National Energy Conservation Policy Act (as in effect on the date of the enactment of this provision). The term "commercial energy conservation measure" means an installation or modification of an installation which is primarily designed to reduce the consumption of petroleum, natural gas, or electric power, including the items listed in section 710(b)(5) of the National Energy Conservation Policy Act (as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of the Conservation Service Reform Act of 1986).

For taxable years beginning after 1993, the bill provides an exclusion from the gross income of a commercial or industrial customer of a public utility for 65 percent of the value of any subside provided by the utility for the purchase or installation of an energy conservation measure. For this purpose, an energy conservation measure is (1) any commercial energy conservation measure (as defined above) with respect to property that is not a dwelling unit or (2) any specially defined energy property. The term "specially defined energy property" has the meaning given to such term by section 48(1)(5) of the Code (as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1990).

The bill does not apply to payments made to or from a qualified cogeneration facility or a qualifying small power production facility pursuant to section 210 of the Public Utility Regulatory Policy Act of 1978.

The bill denies a deduction or credit to a taxpayer (or in appropriate cases requires a reduction in the adjusted basis of property of a taxpayer) for any expenditure to the extent that a subsidy related to the expenditure was excluded from the gross income of the taxpayer.

Effective date.—The bill is effective for amounts received after December 31, 1992.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, with the following exceptions.

For taxable years beginning after 1993, the amendment provides an exclusion from the gross income of a commercial or industrial customer of a public utility for 80 percent (rather than 65 percent as under the House bill) of the value of any subsidy provided by the utility for the purchase or installation of an energy conservation measure with respect to the property that is not a dwelling unit.

Under the Senate amendment, the term "energy conservation measure" means an installation or modification of an installation which is primarily designed to reduce consumption of electricity or natural gas or improve the management of energy demand.

Under the Senate amendment, the term "public utility" includes regulated public utilities, rural electric cooperatives, and utilities that are owned and operated by the Federal Government or a State or local government or any instrumentality or political subdivision thereof.

The amendment applies to the value of any subsidy provided by a public utility to a third party for the purchase or installation of an energy conservation measure with respect to a customer of the utility in the same manner as if the subsidy had been provided directly to the customer.

The amendment applies to payments by a public utility to a taxpayer for the acquisition of State tax benefits granted to the taxpayer by the State pursuant to a State-sponsored energy conservation program.

Effective date.—The amendment is effective for amounts received after December 31, 1992.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment with the following modifications.

For subsidies received in 1995, the conference agreement provides an exclusion from the gross income of a commercial or industrial customer of a public utility for 40 percent (rather than 80 percent as under the Senate amendment) of the value of any subsidy provided by the utility of the purchase or installation of an energy conservation measure with respect to property that is not a dwelling unit. For subsidies received in 1996, the 40 percent exclusion becomes a 50 percent exclusion. For subsidies received after 1996, the 50 percent exclusion becomes a 65 percent exclusion.

In addition, the conference agreement deletes the provision applicable to the value of any subsidy provided by a public utility to a third party for the purchase or installation of an energy conservation measure. In deleting the provision, the conferees believe that third party contractors should not be at a competitive advantage or disadvantage with respect to the tax benefits provided by the exclusion. In addition, the conferees believe that when a utility provides a payment to a third party contractor, the utility is indirectly providing the subsidy to the person for whom the contractor is providing the energy conservation measure and the exclusion should apply to such person. Thus, the conference agreement provides that the exclusion applies to any subsidy provided directly or indirectly to a utility customer, if such subsidy otherwise would be included in income. For example, if a public utility provides a subsidy to a customer to partially offset the cost of the installation of an energy conservation measure on the customer's premises, the provision applies to exclude all or a portion of the value of such subsidy. Likewise, if the public utility provides a payment to an independent contractor so that the contractor can provide for the installation of an energy conservation measure on the utility customer's premises at a reduced price, the exclusion applies to the customer for the indirect subsidy supplied to the customer.

Finally, the conference agreement deletes the provision that applies to payments by a public utility to a taxpayer for the acquisition of State tax benefits granted to the taxpayer by the State pursuant to a State-sponsored energy conservation program.

3. TREATMENT OF CLEAN-FUEL VEHICLES AND CERTAIN REFUELING PROPERTY

Present Law

Present law does not provide a special deduction or other income tax benefit for investing in a motor vehicle that may be propelled by a clean-burning fuel or for investing in property that is used to refuel a motor vehicle that may be propelled by a clean-burning fuel.

House Bill

In general

The House bill provides a deduction for a portion of the cost of certain motor vehicles that may be propelled by a clean-burning fuel. In addition, the House bill provides a deduction of up to $100,000 per location for the cost of certain property that is used in the storage of clean-burning fuel or the delivery of clean-burning fuel into the fuel tank of a motor vehicle propelled by such fuel.

Deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle property

The House bill allows a deduction for the cost of qualified clean-fuel vehicle property for the taxable year that the property is placed in service. Qualified clean-fuel vehicle property is defined as a motor vehicle that is produced by an original equipment manufacturer and that is designed so that the vehicle may be propelled by a clean-burning fuel (an "original equipment manufacturer's vehicle"), but only to the extent of the portion of the basis of the vehicle that is attributable to: (1) an engine which may use the clean-burning fuel; or (2) any property which may be used in the storage or delivery to the engine of the clean-burning fuel or the exhaust of gases from the combustion of the clean-burning fuel.

In addition, qualified clean-fuel vehicle property is defined as any property that is installed on a motor vehicle which is propelled by a fuel that is not a clean-burning fuel for purposes of permitting such vehicle to be propelled by a clean-burning fuel (a "retrofitted vehicle"), but only if the property is an engine (or modification thereof) which may use the clean-burning fuel or only to the extent that the property may be used in the storage or delivery to the engine of the clean-burning fuel or the exhaust of gases from the combustion of the clean-burning fuel. For this purpose, the cost of the original installation of the engine or any other such property is to be treated as part of the cost of the engine or such property.

In order for property to qualify as qualified clean-fuel vehicle property, the property must be acquired for use by the taxpayer (and not for resale) and the original use of the property must commence with the taxpayer. In addition, the motor vehicle of which the property is a part must satisfy any applicable Federal or State emissions standards with respect to each fuel by which the vehicle is designed to be propelled or, in the case of property installed on a retrofilled vehicle, the property must satisfy any applicable Federal or State emissions-related certification, testing, and warranty requirements.[1]

In the case of any motor vehicle that may be propelled by both a clean-burning fuel and any other fuel, the cost of any qualified clean-fuel vehicle property that may be used by both the clean-burning fuel and the other fuel is to be taken into account in determining the amount of the deduction only to the extent that the cost of such property exceeds the cost of the property which would have been used had the vehicle been propelled solely by the fuel that is not a clean-burning fuel.

The cost that may be taken into account in determining the amount of the deduction with respect to any motor vehicle is limited based on the type of the motor vehicle. In the case of a truck[2] or van with a gross vehicle weight rating that is greater than 26,000 pounds or a bus which has a seating capacity of at least 20 adults (not including the driver), the limitation is $50,000. In the case of a truck or van with a gross vehicle weight rating that is greater than 10,000 but not greater than 26,000 pounds, the limitation is $5,000. In the case of any other motor vehicle, the limitation is $2,000.

The cost limitations are reduced for qualified clean-fuel vehicle property that is placed in service after December 31, 2001. The otherwise applicable limitations are reduced by: (1) 25 percent for property that is placed in service during 2002; (2) 50 percent for property that is placed in service during 2003; and (3) 75 percent for property that is placed in service during 2004. No deduction is allowed with respect to qualified clean-fuel vehicle property that is placed in service after December 31, 2004.

Deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property

The House bill also allows a deduction for the cost of qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property for the taxable year that the property is placed in service. Qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property is defined to include any property (other than a building or its structural components) that is used for the storage or dispensing of a clean-burning fuel (other than electricity) into the fuel tank of a motor vehicle propelled by the fuel, but only if the storage or dispensing (as the case may be) of the fuel is at the point where the fuel is delivered into the fuel tank of the motor vehicle.[3]

[1] In the event that there are no Federal or State emissions-related standards or requirements that apply to a motor vehicle (or to property installed on a motor vehicle) at the time of the purchase of the motor vehicle (or property), this requirement is not to be construed to deny a deduction for property that would otherwise constitute qualified clean-fuel vehicle property.

[2] For purposes of the bill, a truck is to include a tractor that is used on public streets or highways to tow a vehicle such as a trailer or semi-trailer.

In order for property to qualify as qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property, the original use of the property must commence with the taxpayer and the property must be of a character that is subject to the allowance for depreciation (i.e., unlike qualified clean-fuel vehicle property, qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property is required to be used in a trade or business of the taxpayer).

The aggregate cost that may be taken into account in determining the amount of the deduction with respect to qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property that is placed in service at any location is not to exceed the excess (if any) of (1) $100,000, over (2) the aggregate amount taken into account under the provision by the taxpayer (or any related person or predecessor) with respect to property placed in service at such location for all preceding taxable years. For this purpose, a person is treated as related to another person if the person bears a relationship to the other person that is specified in section 267(b) or section 707(b)(1).

Definition of clean-burning fuel and motor vehicle

Clean-burning fuel is defined as natural gas, liquefied natural gas, liquefied petroleum gas, hydrogen, electricity, and any other fuel if at least 85 percent of the fuel is methanol, ethanol, any other alcohol, ether, or any combination of the foregoing. A motor vehicle is defined as any vehicle with at least four wheels that is manufactured primarily for use on public streets, roads, and highways (but not including a vehicle operated exclusively on a rail or rails).

Other rules

The basis of any property with respect to which a deduction is allowed under this provision is reduced by the portion of the cost of the property that is taken into account in determining the amount of the deduction that is allowed with respect to the property. In addition, the Treasury Department is required to promulgate regulations that provide for the recapture of the benefit of the deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle property or qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property if the property ceases to be property eligible for the deduction.

The deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle property or qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property is not allowed with respect to property that is used predominantly outside the United States or property that is owned or leased by governmental units or certain tax-exempt organizations. In addition, the deduction for such property is not allowed with respect to the portion of the cost of any property that is taken into account under section 179.

The deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle property is not subject to the luxury automobile depreciation limitations of section 280F (unlike the deduction allowed under section 179).[4] In addition, the deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle property is allowed as an adjustment to gross income rather than as an itemized deduction. Consequently, the deduction is not subject to the 2-percent adjusted gross income floor that otherwise applies to miscellaneous itemized deductions or to the limitation on itemized deductions that applies to taxpayers with adjusted gross income in excess of a specified amount ($105,250 for taxable years beginning in 1992).

Effective date.—The provision applies to property that is placed in service after June 30, 1993, and before January 1, 2005.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except as provided below.

Deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle property

The Senate amendment does not contain the provision of the House bill which provides that in the case of a motor vehicle that may be propelled by both a clean-burning fuel and any other fuel, only the incremental cost of permitting the use of the clean-burning fuel is to be taken into account. Instead, the Senate amendment provides that in the case of an original equipment manufacturer's vehicle,[5] the amount of the deduction is determined based on whether the motor vehicle may be propelled by (1) only a clean-burning fuel (a "dedicated clean-fuel vehicle"), or (2) both a clean-burning fuel and any other fuel (a "fuel-flexible vehicle" or "dual-fuel vehicle").

In the case of an original equipment manufacturer's vehicle that is a dedicated clean-fuel vehicle, the amount of the deduction equals the cost of the motor vehicle, but no more than the cost limitation applicable to the vehicle as provided in the House bill. In the case of an original equipment manufacturer's vehicle that is a fuel-flexible or dual-fuel vehicle, the amount of the deduction equals $1,200, or, if greater, the incremental cost of permitting the use of the clean-burning fuel,[6] but no more than the cost limitation applicable to the vehicle as provided in the House bill.

The Senate amendment also provides that qualified clean-fuel vehicle property does not include an electric vehicle that qualifies for the 15-percent credit described below.

Deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property

The Senate amendment provides a $75,000 per location limitation on the amount of the deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property. In addition, the Senate amendment provides that qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property is to include any property (other than a building or its structural components) that is dedicated to the recharging of motor vehicles propelled by electricity but only if the property is located at the point where the motor vehicles are recharged. For this purpose, qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property generally includes any equipment that is used to provide electricity to the battery of a motor vehicle that is propelled by electricity (e.g., low-voltage recharging equipment, quick (high-voltage) charging equipment, or ancillary connection equipment such as inductive charging equipment) but does not include any property that is used to generate electricity (e.g., solar panels or windmills) and does not include the battery used in a motor vehicle propelled by electricity.

Income tax credit for qualified electric vehicles

The Senate amendment also provides an income tax credit equal to 15 percent of the cost of a qualified electric vehicle for the taxable year that the vehicle is placed in service.[7] A qualified electric vehicle is defined as a motor vehicle (1) that is powered primarily by an electric motor drawing current from rechargeable batteries, fuel cells, or other portable sources of electrical current; (2) the original use of which commences with the taxpayer; and (3) that is acquired for use by the taxpayer and not for resale. A motor vehicle is defined as any vehicle with at least four wheels that is manufactured primarily for use on public streets, roads, and highways (but not including a vehicle operated exclusively on a rail or rails).

The credit for qualified electric vehicles for any taxable year is not to exceed the excess (if any) of (1) the regular tax for the taxable year reduced by the credits allowable under Subpart A and sections 27, 28 and 29 of the Code, over (2) the tentative minimum tax for the taxable year.

The basis of a qualified electric vehicle is reduced by the amount of the credit that is allowable with respect to the vehicle. In addition, the Treasury Department is required to promulgate regulations that provide for the recapture of the credit if the vehicle ceases to be a qualified electric vehicle.

The credit for a qualified electric vehicle is not allowed with respect to property that is used predominantly outside the United States or property that is owned or leased by governmental units or certain tax-exempt organizations. In addition, the credit is not allowed with respect to the portion of the cost of any property that is taken into account under section 179.[8]

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill with the following modifications.

Deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle property

The conference agreement provides that qualified clean-fuel vehicle property does not include an electric vehicle that qualifies for the 10-percent credit described below.

[3] For this purpose, qualified clean-fuel vehicle property includes any property that is used to compress natural gas into a usable fuel for motor vehicles provided that the property is located on the site that the fuel is delivered into motor vehicles.

[4] The depreciation deductions allowed with respect to any such property, however, continue to be subject to the limitations of section 280F.

[5] An original equipment manufacturer's vehicle is to include any motor vehicle that is capable of being propelled by a clean-burning fuel prior to the original use of the vehicle. Any motor vehicle that is not capable of being propelled by a clean-burning fuel prior to the original use of the vehicle but is later modified so that it may be propelled by a clean-burning fuel is to be treated as a retrofitted vehicle.

[6] The incremental cost of permitting the use of a clean-burning fuel is the excess of the cost of the vehicle over what the cost of the vehicle would have been had the vehicle been propelled solely by the fuel that is not a clean-burning fuel. It is anticipated that the incremental cost will be determined under regulations or other guidance to be published by the Internal Revenue Service and that such regulations or other guidance will require the seller or other appropriate person to certify the amount of the incremental cost to the person that qualifies for the deduction.

[7] The credit is phased out for qualified electric vehicles placed in service after December 31, 2001. The otherwise allowable credit is reduced by: (1) 25 percent for property that is placed in service during 2002; (2) 50 percent for property that is placed in service during 2003; and (3) 75 percent for property that is placed in service during 2004. No credit is allowed with respect to a qualified electric vehicle that is placed in service after December 31, 2004.

[8] The credit is to equal 15 percent of the excess of (1) the cost of the motor vehicle, over (2) the cost of such motor vehicle that is taken into account under section 179.

Deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property

The conference agreement provides that in addition to the property described in the House bill, qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property is to include any property (other than a building or its structural components) that is dedicated to the recharging or motor vehicles propelled by electricity but only if the property is located at the point where the motor vehicles are recharged. For this purpose, qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property generally includes any equipment that is used to provide electricity to the battery of a motor vehicle that is propelled by electricity (e.g., low-voltage recharging equipment, quick (high-voltage) charging equipment, or ancillary connection equipment such as inductive charging equipment) but does not include any property that is used to generate electricity (e.g., solar panels or windmills) and does not include the battery used in a motor vehicle propelled by electricity.

Income tax credit for qualified electric vehicles

The conference agreement also provides an income tax credit equal to 10 percent of the cost of a qualified electric vehicle for the taxable year that the vehicle is placed in service. The maximum amount of credit allowed with respect to any qualified electric vehicle is not to exceed $4,000. The credit is phased out for qualified electric vehicles placed in service after December 31, 2001. The otherwise allowable credit (as determined after the application of the $4,000 per vehicle limitation) is reduced by: (1) 25 percent for property that is placed in service during 2002; (2) 50 percent for property that is placed in service during 2003; and (3) 75 percent for property that is placed in service during 2004. No credit is allowed with respect to a qualified electric vehicle that is placed in service after December 31, 2004.

A qualified electric vehicle is defined as a motor vehicle (1) that is powered primarily by an electric motor drawing current from rechargeable batteries, fuel cells, or other portable sources of electrical current; (2) the original use of which commences with the taxpayer; and (3) that is acquired for use by the taxpayer and not for resale. A motor vehicle is defined as any vehicle with at least four wheels that is manufactured primarily for use on public streets, roads, and highways (but not including a vehicle operated exclusively on a rail or rails).

The credit for qualified electric vehicles for any taxable year is not to exceed the excess (if any) of (1) the regular tax for the taxable year reduced by the credits allowable under Subpart A and sections 27, 28, and 29 of the Code, over (2) the tentative minimum tax for the taxable year.

The basis of a qualified electric vehicle is reduced by the amount of the credit that is allowable with respect to the vehicle. In addition, the Treasury Department is required to promulgate regulations that provide for the recapture of the credit if the vehicle ceases to be a qualified electric vehicle.

The credit for a qualified electric vehicle is not allowed with respect to property that is used predominantly outside the United States or property that is owned or leased by governmental units or certain tax-exempt organizations. In addition, the credit is not allowed with respect to the portion of the cost of any property that is taken into account under section 179.[9]

Recapture of deduction or credit

The conferees intend that the benefit of the deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle property will be recaptured (i.e., included in gross income) under the provision only if at any time within three years after the date that the property is placed in service, the motor vehicle of which the property is a part is modified so that it may no longer be propelled by a clean-burning fuel.[10] The amount of the benefit to be recaptured is to be determined as follows: (1) if the motor vehicle is modified so that it may no longer be propelled by a clean-burning fuel within one year after it is placed in service, then 100 percent of the deduction is to be recaptured; (2) if the motor vehicle is modified so that it may no longer be propelled by a clean-burning fuel within one year after the close of the period described in (1), then 67 percent of the deduction is to be recaptured; and (3) if the motor vehicle is modified so that it may no longer be propelled by a clean-burning fuel within one year after the close of the period described in (2), then 33 percent of the deduction is to be recaptured.

The adjusted basis of the property is to be increased by the amount of the benefit that is recaptured under the provision. If the property to which the recapture rules apply is of a character that is subject to an allowance for depreciation, then the additional basis is to be recovered over the remaining recovery period for the property beginning with the taxable year of recapture.

Similar recapture rules are to apply to the credit for qualified electric vehicles (except that the amount of the benefit that is recaptured is to increase the amount of tax due) and to the deduction for qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property. In the case qualified clean-fuel vehicle refueling property, however, recapture under the provision is to occur only if at any time before the end of the recovery period for the property, the property is no longer used predominantly in a trade or business of the taxpayer of dispensing clean-burning fuel into the fuel tank of a motor vehicle propelled by the fuel (or, in the case of property used in the recharging of electric vehicles, the property is no longer used predominantly in a trade or business of the taxpayer of recharging motor vehicle propelled by electricity). As described above for clean-fuel vehicle property, the amount of the deduction for clean-fuel vehicle refueling property is to vest ratably over the recovery period for the property

4. Income tax credit for electricity generated using certain renewable resources

Present Law

An investment-type tax credit is allowed against income tax liability for investments in property producing energy from certain specified renewable sources. The nonrefundable credit, which is referred to as the business energy credit, equals 10 percent of the cost of qualified solar or geothermal energy property. Solar energy property that qualifies for this tax credit includes any equipment that uses solar energy to generate electricity, to heat or cool (or provide hot water for use in) a structure, or to provide solar process heat. Qualifying geothermal property includes equipment that produces, distributes, or uses energy derived from a geothermal deposit, but in the case of electricity generated geothermal power, only property used up to (but nor including) the transmission stage.

The business energy credit is a component of the general business credit. The general business credit may not exceed for any taxable year the excess of the taxpayers's net income tax over the greater of: (1) 25 percent of net regular tax liability above $25,000; or (2) the tentative minimum tax. Any unused general business credit generally may be carried back to the three previous taxable years and carried forward to the subsequent 15 taxable years.

A production-type tax credit is allowed against income tax liability for the production of certain nonconventional fuels. For 1991, the credit amount is equal to $5.35 per barrel of oil or BTU oil equivalent. (This credit amount is adjusted for inflation.) Qualified fuels must be produced from a well drilled, or facility placed in service, before January 1, 1993, and must be sold before January 1, 2003. Qualified fuels include: (1) oil produced from shale and tar sands; (2) gas produced from geopressurized brine, Devonian shale, coal seams, a tight formation, or biomass; and (3) liquid, gaseous, or solid synthetic fuels produced from coal (including lignite), including such fuels when used as feedstocks.

House Bill

The House bill provides for a production-type credit against income tax liability for electricity produced from either qualified wind energy or qualified "closed-loop biomass" facilities. The credit equals 1.5 cents (adjusted for inflation) per kilowatt hour of electricity produced from these qualified sources during the 10-year period after the facility is placed in service. This production credit is part of the general business credit, subject to the carryforward, carryback, and the limitation rules of the general business credit (except that the production credit from closed-loop biomass facilities may not be carried back to a taxable year ending before January 1, 1993, and the production credit from qualified wind energy facilities may not be carried back to a taxable year ending before January 1, 1994).

Closed-loop biomass is defined as the use of plant matter on a renewable basis as an energy source to generate electricity, where the plants are grown for the sole purpose of being used to generate electricity. Accordingly, the credit is not available for the use of waste materials (including, but not limited to, scrap wood, manure, and municipal or agricultural waste) to generate electricity. Moreover, the credit is not available to a taxpayer who uses standing timber to produce electricity.

The credit is proportionately phased out over a three-cent per kilowatt hour range if the national average price of electricity from the renewable source exceeds a threshold price of 8 cents per kilowatt hour. (This threshold is adjusted for inflation.) Thus, the credit will not be available if the national average price of electricity from the renewable source is greater than three cents per kilowatt hour above the threshold price.

A facility which has received the business energy credit or the investment credit is not eligible for the production credit. In addition, the credit is reduced proportionately for any governmental grants or subsidized financing received (including the use of tax-exempt bonds).

[9] The credit is to equal 10 percent of the excess of (1) the cost of the motor vehicle, over (2) the cost of such motor vehicle that is taken into account under section 179.

[10] The conferees intend that no recapture is to occur under the provision upon the sale or other disposition (including a disposition by reason of an accident or other casualty) of the motor vehicle. If, however, the motor vehicle is (or has been) property of a character that is subject to an allowance for depreciation, then the rules of section 1245 are to apply upon the sale or other disposition of the vehicle. In applying section 1245, the deduction allowed under the provision is to be treated as a deduction allowed for depreciation.

Effective date.—The credit applies to electricity produced by a qualified closed-loop biomass facility placed in service after December 31, 1992, and before July 1, 1999, and to electricity produced by a qualified wind energy facility placed in service after December 31, 1993, and before July 1, 1999.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except that: (1) the beginning threshold for the phaseout range for the credit is the national average price of electricity from the renewable source that is attributable to contracts entered into after December 31, 1989; and (2) the inflation adjustment is based on the Gross Domestic Product implicit price deflator.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment. In addition, the conference agreement makes two clarifications. First, in order to claim the credit, a taxpayer must own the facility and sell the electricity produced by that facility to an unrelated party. Accordingly, a public utility which owns and operates a qualified facility would be able to claim the credit to the extent that the utility ultimately sells the electricity generated to unrelated parties. Second, the proportional reduction in credit that results when a taxpayer receives subsidized financing through a governmental program applies whether the subsidized financing is directly or indirectly provided. In particular, governmental programs to compensate financial intermediaries for extending low-interest loans to taxpayers who purchase or construct qualifying facilities are an example of subsidized financing.

5. REPEAL OF CERTAIN MINIMUM TAX PREFERENCES RELATING TO OIL AND GAS PRODUCTION

Present Law

Taxpayers who pay or incur intangible drilling or development costs ("IDCs") in the development of domestic oil or gas properties may elect either to expense or capitalize these amounts. If an election to expense IDCs is made, the taxpayer deducts the amount of the IDCs as an expense in the taxable year the cost is paid or incurred. Generally, if IDCs are not expensed, but are capitalized, they can be recovered through depletion or depreciation, as appropriate; or at the election of the taxpayer, they may be amortized over a 60-month period.

The difference between the amount of a taxpayer's IDC deductions and the amount which would have been currently deductible had IDCs been capitalized and recovered over a 10-year period is an item of tax preference for the alternative minimum tax ("AMT") to the extent that this amount exceeds 65 percent of the taxpayer's net income from oil and gas properties for the taxable year (the "excess IDC preference"). In addition, for purposes of computing the adjusted current earnings ("ACE") adjustment of the corporate AMT, IDCs are capitalized and amortized over the 60-month period beginning with the month in which they are paid or incurred.

Independent producers and royalty owners generally are allowed a deduction for percentage depletion in computing their taxable income. A taxpayer's overall deduction for percentage depletion is limited to an amount that is equal to 65 percent of the taxpayer's pre-depletion taxable income for the taxable year. The amount by which the depletion deduction exceeds the adjusted basis of the property is an AMT preference (the "excess percentage depletion preference"). Corporations must use cost depletion in computing their ACE adjustment.

A taxpayer other than an integrated oil company is entitled to an "energy deduction" for certain IDC and depletion items. The energy deduction is the sum of 75 percent of the portion of the IDC preference[11] attributable to qualified exploratory costs and 15 percent of the remaining IDC preference plus 50 percent of the marginal production depletion preference.[12] The energy deduction may not reduce the taxpayer's alternative minimum taxable income by more than 40 percent.

House Bill

For taxpayers other than integrated oil companies, the House bill repeals (1) the excess IDC preference and (2) the excess percentage depletion preference for oil and gas. The repeal of the excess IDC preference, however, may not result in more than a 40 percent reduction (30 percent for taxable years beginning in 1993) in the amount of the taxpayer's alternative minimum taxable income computed as if the present-law excess IDC preference not been repealed.

In addition, for corporations other than integrated oil companies, the House bill repeals the ACE adjustments[13] for (1) IDCs paid or insured in taxable years beginning after December 31, 1992, and before January 1, 1998, and (2) percentage depletion for oil and gas.

The House bill also suspends the minimum tax energy deduction for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1992, and before January 1, 1998.

Effection date.—Except as provided above regarding the repeal of the ACE treatment of IDCs, the House bill applies to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1992, and before January 1, 1998.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except for the effective date.

Effective date.—Except as provided below, the Senate amendment applies to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1992. In the case of the ACE treatment of IDCs, the Senate amendment applies to IDCs paid or incurred in taxable years beginning after December 31, 1992.

Conference Amendment

The Conference agreement follows the Senate Amendment.

6. DETERMINATION OF INDEPENDENT OIL AND GAS PRODUCER STATUS

Present Law

Under present law, persons owning economic interests in oil and gas producing properties may deduct an allowance for depletion in computing taxable income. Independent producers and royalty owners are permitted to claim the greater of cost or percentage depletion on the production of up to 1,000 barrels per day of crude oil and natural gas produced from domestic sources. The percentage depletion allowance for oil and gas is computed as a fixed percentage (i.e., 15 percent) of the taxpayer's gross income from the oil or gas property, subject to net income and taxable income limitations.

Also under present law, taxpayers are permitted the option to elect to deduct intangible drilling and development costs (IDCs) in the case of domestically located oil and gas wells (sec. 263(c)). For taxpayers other than independent oil and gas producers (i.e., integrated producers), however, 30 percent of the otherwise deductible amount of IDCs must be capitalized and recovered over a 60-month period.

Present law also provides a deduction from alternative minimum taxable income for a portion of a taxpayer's AMT preferences and adjustments related to IDCs and percentage depletion from marginal properties. This AMT energy deduction is available to independent producers, but not to integrated companies.

A producer of oil or natural gas is considered an independent producers unless that person (or a related person) also is engaged in a significant amount of either retailing or refining activity. A taxpayer meets the retailing exception (sec. 613A(d)(2)), and is thus not considered an independent producer, if the taxpayer directly, or through a related person, sells oil or natural gas (excluding bulk sales of such items to commercial or industrial users) or any product derived from oil or natural gas (excluding bulk sales of aviation fuels to the Department of Defense) through a retail outlet operated by the taxpayer (or a related person).[14] The retailer exception does not apply to a taxpayer with combined gross receipts from retail sales of oil, natural gas, or petroleum products for a taxable year of not more than $5 million.

A taxpayer is treated as a refiner, and thus is excluded from independent producer status, if the taxpayer or a related person engages in the refining of crude oil and on any day during the taxable year the refinery runs of the taxpayer (and related persons) exceed 50,000 barrels.

For purposes of the retailer and refiner exceptions, a person is a related person with respect to the taxpayer if a significant ownership interest (i.e., 5 percent or more) in either the taxpayer or such person is held by the other, or if a third person has a significant ownership interest in both the taxpayer and such person.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment amends the operation of both the retailer and refiner exceptions in determining whether a taxpayer is an independent oil and gas producer. With respect to the retailer exception, the Senate amendment permits gross receipts from retail sales of natural gas and products derived therefrom by a regulated public utility to be disregarded in determining whether a taxpayer is a retailer. For this purpose, a regulated public utility is as defined in section 7701(a)(33) of the Code, except that the company must generate at least one-half of its gross income for the taxable year from sources described in subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) of that section.

[11] The IDC preference is the amount by which the taxpayer's alternative minimum taxable income would be reduced if it were computed without regard to the excess IDC preference and the ACE IDC adjustment.

[12] The marginal production depletion preference is the amount by which the taxpayer's alternative minimum taxable income would be reduced if it were computed without regard to the excess depletion preference and the ACE depletion adjustment related to marginal property.

[13] Under the provision, the adjustment described in sec. 56(g)(4)(C)(i) (with respect to the disallowance of deductions for items not deductible for earnings and profits purposes) will not apply to percentage depletion for oil and gas.

[14] In addition, sales by the taxpayer to any person (1) obligated under an agreement or contract with the taxpayer to use a trademark, trade name, or service mark or name of the taxpayer in marketing the oil, natural gas, or product derived therefrom, or (2) given authority, pursuant to an agreement or contract with the taxpayer (or related person) to occupy any retail outlet owned, leased, or controlled by the taxpayer, are treated as retail sales made by the taxpayer for this purpose.

Also under the Senate amendment, for purposes of determining significant refining activity under the refining exception, the requirement that a refinery run in excess of 50,000 barrels occur on any day during the taxable year is eliminated. Instead, the bill requires that the taxpayer's average daily refinery runs for the taxable year exceed 50,000 barrels in order not to treat the taxpayer as an independent producer under the refiner exception.

Effective date.—Taxable years beginning after December 31, 1992.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate amendment.

7. BUSINESS ENERGY TAX CREDITS FOR SOLAR AND GEOTHERMAL PROPERTY

Present Law

Nonrefundable business energy tax credits are allowed for 10 percent of the cost of qualified solar and geothermal energy property (Code sec. 48(a)). Solar energy property that qualifies for the credit includes any equipment that uses solar energy to generate electricity, to heat or cool (or provide hot water for use in) a structure, or to provide solar process heat. Qualifying geothermal property includes equipment that produces, distributes, or uses energy derived from a geothermal deposit, but, in the case of electricity generated by geothermal power, only up to (but not including) the electrical transmission state.[15]

The business energy tax credits expired with respect to property placed in service after June 30, 1992.

The business energy tax credits are components of the general business credit (sec. 38(b)(1)). The business energy tax credits, when combined with all other components of the general business credit, generally may not exceed for any taxable year the excess of the taxpayer's net income tax over the greater of (1) 25 percent of net regular tax liability above $25,000 or (2) the tentative minimum tax. An unused general business credit generally may be carried back 3 years and carried forward 15 years.

House Bill

The House bill permanently extends the credits for qualified investments in solar and geothermal property.

Effective date.—July 1, 1992.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except that it adds a credit equal to 10 percent of the cost of qualified ocean thermal property placed in service by a taxpayer after June 30, 1992. For this purpose, qualified ocean thermal property is equipment which converts ocean thermal energy to usable energy. Qualified ocean thermal property is property located at either of two locations designated by the Secretary of Treasury after consultation with the Secretary of Energy.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

8. TREATMENT OF NUCLEAR DECOMMISSIONING FUNDS

Present Law

A taxpayer that is required to decommission a nuclear power plant may elect to deduct certain contributions that are made to a nuclear decommissioning fund. A nuclear decommissioning fund is a segregated fund the assets of which are to be used exclusively to pay nuclear decommissioning costs, taxes on fund income, and certain administrative costs. The assets of a nuclear decommissioning fund that are not currently required for these purposes must be invested in (1) public debt securities of the United States, (2) obligations of a State or local government that are not in default as to principal or interest, or (3) time or demand deposits in a bank or an insured credit union located in the United States. These investment restrictions are the same restrictions which apply to Black Lung trusts that are established under section 501(c)(21) of the Code.

The income of a nuclear decommissioning fund is subject to tax at the highest rate of tax that applies to corporations (34 percent under present law).

House Bill

The House bill repeals the present-law investment restrictions that apply nuclear decommissioning funds. In addition, the House bill reduces the rate of tax imposed on the income of nuclear decommissioning funds to 22 percent for taxable years beginning in 1994 and 1995 and to 20 percent for taxable years beginning after 1995.

Effective date.—The provision of the House bill that repeals the investment restrictions of present law is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1992. The tax rate of 22 percent is effective for taxable years beginning in 1994 and 1995 and the tax rate of 20 percent is effective for taxable years beginning after 1995.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except that the Senate amendment does not reduce the rate of tax imposed on the income of nuclear decommissioning funds.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

9. BINDING CONTRACT RULE FOR NONCONVENTIONAL FUELS PRODUCTION CREDIT

Present Law

Nonconventional fuels are eligible for a production credit equal to $3 per barrel or Btu oil barrel equivalent.[16] (The credit amount generally is adjusted for inflation, except for gas produced from a tight formation.) Qualified fuels must be produced domestically from a well drilled, or a facility placed in service, before January 1, 1993. The production credit is available for qualified fuels sold to unrelated persons before January 1, 2003.

Qualified fuels include (1) oil produced from shale and tar sands, (2) gas produced from geopressured brine, Devonian shale, coal seams, a tight formation, or biomass (i.e., any organic material other than oil, natural gas, or coal (or any product thereof), and (3) liquid, gaseous, or solid synthetic fuels produced from coal (including lignite), including such fuels when used as feedstocks.

House Bill

Under the House bill, a facility that produces gas from biomass or produces liquid, gaseous, or solid synthetic fuels from coal (including lignite) will qualify for the credit if it is placed in service before January 1, 1996, pursuant to a written binding contract in effect on December 31, 1992.

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows a modified version of the House bill. Under the conference agreement, a facility that produces gas from biomass or produces liquid, gaseous, or solid synthetic fuels from coal (including lignite) generally will be treated as being placed in service before January 1, 1993, if it is placed in service by the taxpayer before January 1, 1997, pursuant to a written binding contract in effect before January 1, 1996. In the case of a facility that produces coke or coke gas, however, this provision of the conference agreement applies only if the original use of the facility commences with the taxpayer.

If a facility that qualifies for the above-stated binding contract rule is originally placed in service after December 31, 1992, production from the facility may qualify for the credit if sold before January 1, 2008.

10. TAX-EXEMPT BONDS FOR FACILITIES FOR THE LOCAL FURNISHING OF ELECTRICITY

Present Law

Interest on certain private activity bonds is exempt from Federal regular individual and corporate income tax. However, issuance of most such bonds is subject to annual State private activity bond volume limitations. One type of tax-exempt private activity bond is an exempt-facility bond to finance facilities for the local furnishing of electricity.

The use of exempt-facility bonds for this purpose is limited to financing of facilities for electric systems the service area of which does not exceed either (1) two contiguous counties or (2) a city and a contiguous county. The local furnishing exception does not apply to bonds for facilities that are part of an integrated system to supply electricity to a region.

House Bill

The House bill authorizes the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission ("FERC") to order electric utilities (including those qualifying under the local furnishing exception) to provide transmission ("wheeling") services to other parties that generate electricity. These FERC orders also may require the utilities to enlarge their transmission systems.

The House bill further provides that the local furnishing exception is not violated by wheeling activities conducted pursuant to such FERC orders if no tax-exempt bond financing is provided for the non-local furnishing activities.

Effective dates.—Date of enactment.

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, with technical clarifications. First, the conferees wish to clarify that the determination of whether a facility which is subject to a FERC wheeling order is used in local furnishing activities is to be made on the basis of the facts and circumstances of each case, as under present law.

Second, the escrow requirement for defeasance of outstanding bonds in the event of non-local-furnishing uses of bond-financed facilities pursuant to the FERC orders is modified to clarify its application to partial uses. Finally, the conferees wish to clarify their intent that this escrow requirement is to apply only to circumstances involving disqualification of outstanding bonds as a result of the FERC orders authorized under the conference agreement; no inference is intended as to the appropriate treatment of bonds the interest on which becomes taxable in other circumstances.

[15] For purposes of the credit, a geothermal deposit is defined as a domestic geothermal reservoir consisting of natural heat which is stored in rocks or in an aqueous liquid or vapor, whether or not under pressure (sec. 613(e)(2)).

[16] A barrel-of-oil equivalent generally means that amount of the qualifying fuel which has a Btu content of 5.8 million.

11. EXPAND EXCEPTION TO PRO RATA DISALLOWANCE OF BANK INTEREST EXPENSE RELATED TO INVESTMENT IN TAX-EXEMPT BONDS

Present Law

Banks and other financial institutions generally are denied a deduction for the portion of their interest expense (e.g., interest paid to depositors) that is attributable to investments in tax-exempt bonds acquired after August 7, 1986. This disallowance is computed using a pro rata formula that compares the institution's average adjusted basis in tax-exempt bonds acquired after that date with the average adjusted basis of all assets of the institution.

An exception to this pro rata disallowance rule is permitted for governmental bonds and qualified 501(c)(3) bonds issued by or on behalf of governmental units that issue no more than $10 million of such bonds during a calendar year.

House Bill

The House bill increases from $10 million to $20 million the amount of bonds that an issuer may issue in a year without becoming ineligible for this exception to the interest expense deduction pro rata disallowance rule.

Effective date.—Bonds issued after December 31, 1992.

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

12. TAX-EXEMPT BOND FINANCING OF CERTAIN HYDRO-ELECTRIC GENERATION FACILITIES

Present Law

Interest on certain private activity bonds is exempt from Federal regular individual and corporate income taxes. However, issuance of the bonds is subject to annual State private activity bond volume limitations. One type of tax-exempt private activity bond is an exempt-facility bond. Exempt-facility bonds are bonds the proceeds of which are used to finance the following: airports; docks and wharves; mass commuting facilities or high-speed intercity rail facilities; water, sewage, solid waste, or hazardous waste disposal facilities; facilities for the local furnishing of electricity or gas; local district heating or cooling facilities; and certain low-income rental housing projects.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment authorizes a new type of exempt-facility bond for environmental enhancement of hydroelectric generation facilities. At least 80 percent of the net proceeds of each bond issue must be used to finance property for the promotion of fisheries or other wildlife resources. Qualifying expenditures must be related to a governmentally owned and operated hydroelectric facility and may not include amounts which increase or allow an increase in the capacity of the existing generation equipment. Issuance of these bonds is not subject to the annual State private activity bond volume limitations.

Effective date.—Bonds issued after date of enactment.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

13. BONDS FOR HIGH-SPEED INTERCITY RAIL FACILITIES

Present Law

High-speed intercity rail facilities qualify for tax-exempt bond financing if trains operating on the facility carry passengers and their baggage at average speeds in excess of 150 miles per hour between stations. Such facilities need not be governmentally-owned, but the owner must irrevocably elect not to claim depreciation or any tax-credit with respect to bond-financed property.

Twenty-five percent of each bond issue for high-speed intercity rail facilities must receive an allocation from a State private activity bond volume limitation. If facilities are located in two or more States, this requirement must be met on a State-by-State basis for the financing of facilities located in each State.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment repeals the requirement that 25 percent of each high-speed intercity rail facility bond issue receive an allocation of a State private activity bond volume limitation if the bond-financed property is governmentally owned.

Effective date.—Bonds issued after December 31, 1993.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate amendment.

14. PARTIAL EXCISE TAX EXEMPTION FOR CERTAIN GASOLINE MIXTURES WITH ETHANOL OR OTHER ALCOHOL

Present Law

Federal excise taxes generally are imposed on gasoline and special motor fuels used in highway transportation and by motorboats (14.1 cents per gallon). A Federal excise tax also is imposed on diesel fuel used in highway transportation (20.1 cents per gallon).

A 5.4-cents-per-gallon excise tax exemption is allowed from the excise taxes on gasoline, diesel fuel, and special motor fuels for mixtures of any of these fuels with at least 10-percent ethanol. A 6-cents-per-gallon excise tax exemption is allowed for mixtures with at least 10-percent alcohol that is other than ethanol. Because blended fuels are generally 10 percent alcohol, a reduction of 5.4 or 6 cents per gallon of gasohol or other blend is equivalent to a subsidy of 54 or 60 cents per gallon of qualifying alcohol.

For purposes of the partial excise tax exemption, the term alcohol includes methanol and ethanol, but does not include alcohol produced from petroleum, natural gas, or coal (including peat), or alcohol with a proof less than 190.

The partial excise tax exemption is scheduled to expire after September 30, 2000.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment modifies the partial excise tax exemption for gasoline that is mixed with ethanol or other alcohol to extend its application to 5.7- or 7.7-percent alcohol blends. The current 5.4- and 6-cents-per-gallon exemptions for alcohol mixtures are pro-rated to maintain the subsidy level of 54 or 60 cents per gallon, respectively, for ethanol or other alcohol that is mixed with gasoline.

Effective date.—Gasoline removed or entered after September 30, 1992.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment. The conferees wish to reiterate that the purpose of this provision, as stated in the legislative history of the Senate amendment, is to provide taxpayers with greater flexibility to mix alcohol with gasoline to meet the mandated targets of the Clean Air Act.

15. APPLICATION OF ALCOHOL FUELS TAX CREDIT AGAINST ALTERNATIVE MINIMUM TAX

Present Law

An income tax credit is provided for alcohol used in certain mixtures of alcohol and gasoline (e.g., gasohol), diesel fuel, or any other liquid fuel which is suitable for use in an internal combustion engine if the mixture is sold by the producer in a trade or business for use as a fuel or is so used by the producer (sec. 40). The credit also is permitted for alcohol (e.g., qualified methanol fuel) which is not in a mixture with gasoline, diesel, or other liquid fuel which is suitable for use in an internal combustion engine, provided that the alcohol is used by the taxpayer as a fuel in a trade or business or is sold by the taxpayer at retail to a person and placed in the fuel tank of the purchaser's vehicle. The credit generally is equal to 60 cents for each gallon of alcohol (at least 190 proof) used by the taxpayer in the production of a qualified mixture or as a fuel; the credit generally is 45 cents per gallon of 150 to 190 proof alcohol fuel.[17] The credit is scheduled to expire with respect to sales or uses after December 31, 2000.

In addition, a 10-cents-per-gallon income tax credit is allowed to eligible small ethanol producers. For this purpose, a small ethanol producer is any fuel ethanol producer with a productive capacity to produce less than 30 million gallons of alcohol per year. This credit is limited to the first 15 million gallons of ethanol for use as a fuel produced per year by such a small producer.

The amount of any taxpayer's alcohol fuels tax credit is reduced to take into account any benefit received with respect to the alcohol under the special reduced excise tax rates for alcohol fuel mixtures of alcohol fuels. For purposes of the credit (other than with respect to the determination of the productive capacity of an ethanol producer), the term alcohol includes methanol and ethanol, but does not include alcohol produced from petroleum, natural gas, or coal (including peat), or alcohol with a proof less than 150.

The alcohol fuels tax credit is a component of the general business credit (sec. 38(b)(1)). The alcohol fuels tax credit, when combined with all other components of the general business credit, generally may not exceed for any taxable year the excess of the taxpayer's net income over the greater of (1) 25 percent of net regular tax liability above $25,000 or (2) the tentative minimum tax. An unused general business credit generally may be carried back 3 years and carried forward 15 years.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment provides that taxpayers claiming the alcohol fuels tax credit may utilize that credit to offset a portion of their alternative minimum tax liability. Specifically, the bill allows the alcohol fuels credit to offset up to 50 percent of a taxpayer's pre-credit alternative minimum tax.[18] As under present law, any unused credit would be available for a 3-year carryback and a 15-year carryover.

[17] In the case of any credit with respect to any alcohol which is ethanol, a rate of 54 cents per gallon applies instead of the 60-cent-per-gallon rate, and a rate of 40 cents per gallon applies instead of the 45-cent-per-gallon rate (sec. 40(h)).

Effective date.—Taxable years beginning after September 30, 1992. However, the Senate amendment is limited to alcohol fuels credits actually generated in those years. That is, the Senate amendment does not allow an alcohol fuels credit generated in a taxable year beginning on or before September 30, 1992 and carried forward to a taxable year beginning after September 30, 1992 to offset alternative minimum tax in that later year. Similarly, it does not allow an alcohol fuels tax credit generated in a taxable year beginning after September 30, 1992 to be carried back and used to reduce alternative minimum tax in a taxable year beginning on or before September 30, 1992.

Conference Agreement

The Conference agreement does not include the Senate amendment.

16. ALLOWANCE OF CREDIT FOR AMOUNTS TRANSFERRED FROM THE TRANS-ALASKA PIPELINE LIABILITY FUND INTO THE OIL SPILL LIABILITY TRUST FUND

Present Law

The Trans-Alaska Pipeline Liability Trust Fund ("TAPS Fund") was established by the Trans-Alaska Pipeline System Authorization Act. The TAPS Fund was financed by a fee of five cents per barrel on oil that was loaded on a vessel from the pipeline. Amounts in the TAPS Fund are to be transferred to the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund ("Oil Spill Fund") after all outstanding claims against the TAPS Fund have been resolved. At the time of the transfer, contributors to the TAPS Fund are to be provided a credit for amounts paid to the TAPS Fund, and interest accrued on these amounts, prior to January 1, 1987. Each contributor's credit cannot exceed its pro rata share of such amounts (i.e., the contributions and interest prior to January 1, 1987) transferred from the TAPS Fund into the Oil Spill Fund.

The TAPS Fund credit is available only against the excise tax on petroleuum products that is used to finance the Oil Spill Fund. Under present law, that excise tax is not applicable after December 31, 1994, or if the unobligated balance in the Oil Spill Fund exceeds $1 billion.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment permits taxpayers to use TAPS credits against regular corporate income taxes to the extent that the credits may not be used against the oil spill excise tax by reason of the lapse of that tax. The TAPS credits used against corporate income taxes cannot be carried back to taxable years before the lapse occurs.

Effective date.—Date of enactment.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement, follows the Senate amendment with two modifications. First, the agreement limits the aggregate income tax credits and petroleum excise tax credits for any taxpayer to an amount not exceeding the petroleum excise tax credits that could have been claimed between December 31, 1989, and the date that the petroleum excise tax expires by lapse of time (currently scheduled for December 31, 1994). The limit is calculated assuming that (i) the balance of the Oil Spill Fund did not exceed $1 billion during that period, and (ii) the amounts in the TAPS Fund actually transferred to the Oil Spill Fund were instead transferred on January 1, 1990. This limitation is in addition to the present-law limitations on a contributor's credit. Second, the agreement provides for transfers of funds from the Oil Spill Fund to the general fund equal to the amount of the TAPS credits claimed as income tax credits; however, these transfers are not to be made to the extent they would reduce the balance of the Oil Spill Fund below $1 billion.

B. REVENUE-OFFSET PROVISIONS

1. INCREASE BASE TAX RATE ON OZONE-DEPLETING CHEMICALS

Present Law

An excise tax is imposed on certain ozone-depleting chemicals. The amount of tax generally is determined by multiplying the base tax rate applicable for calendar year by ozone-depleting factor assigned to the chemical. Certain chemicals are subject to reduced rate of tax for years prior to 1994.

Between 1992 and 1995 there are two base tax rates applicable, depending upon whether the chemicals were initially listed in the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 or whether they were newly listed in the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990. The base tax rate applicable to initially listed chemicals is $1.67 per pound for 1992, $2.65 per pound for 1993 and 1994, and an additional 45 cents per pound per year for each year thereafter. The base tax rate applicable to newly listed chemicals is $1.37 per pound for 1992, $1.67 per pound for 1993, $3.00 per pound for 1994, $3.10 per pound for 1995, and an additional 45 cents per pound per year for each year thereafter.

House Bill

Base tax amount.—The House increases and applies the same base tax amount to both initially listed chemicals and newly listed chemicals. The new base tax amount would be $1.85 per pound in 1992, $2.75 per pound in 1993, $3.65 per pound in 1984, $4.55 per pound in 1995. For years after 1995, the base tax amount would increase by 45 cents per pound per year.

Rigid foam insulation and halons.—The House bill reduces the applicable percentage for certain ozone-depleting chemicals used in rigid foam insulation, and certain halons. In the case of rigid foam insulation the applicable percentage is reduced from 15 percent to 13.5 percent for 1992 and from 10 percent to 9.6 percent in 1993. For Halon-1211 the applicable percentage would be 4.5 percent for 1992 and 3.0 percent for 1993. For Halon-1301 the applicable percentage would be 1.4 percent for 1992 and 0.9 percent for 1993. For Halon-2402 the applicable percentages would be 2.3 percent for 1992 and 1.5 percent for 1993.

Medical sterilants.—The House bill provides for a reduced rate of tax for certain ozone-depleting chemical used as medical sterilants for 1992 and 1993. The applicable percent for such chemicals for 1992 is 90.3 percent and is 60.7 percent for 1993.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable chemicals sold or used on or after July 1, 1992. Floor stocks taxes are imposed on taxed chemicals held on the effective dates of changes in the tax rate.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill except for the effective date. The Senate amendment is effective for taxable chemicals sold or used on or after October 1, 1992. Floor stocks taxes are imposed on taxed chemicals held on the effective dates of changes in the base tax rate.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and Senate amendment with several modifications.

Base tax amount.—The conference agreement increases and applies the same base tax amount to both initially listed chemicals and newly listed chemicals. The new base tax amount will be $3.35 per pound in 1993, $4.35 per pound in 1994, and $5.35 per pound in 1995. For years after 1995, the base tax amount will increase by 45 cents per pound per year as under present law.

Rigid foam insulation and halons.—The House bill reduces the applicable percentage for certain ozone-depleting chemicals used in rigid foam insulation, and certain halons. In the case of rigid foam insulation the applicable percentage is reduced from 10 percent to 7.46 percent in 1993. For Halon-1211, the new applicable percentage is 2.49 percent for 1993. For Halon-1301, the new applicable percentage is 0.75 percent for 1993. For Halon-2402, the new applicable percentage is 1.24 percent for 1993.

Medical sterilants and propellants for metered dose inhalers.—The conference agreement provides for a reduced rate of tax for certain ozone-depleting chemicals used as medical sterilants for 1993 and for ozone-depleting chemicals used as propellants for metered dose inhalers for years after 1992. The reduced rate of tax is $1.67 per pound for qualifying chemicals.

Metered dose inhalers are aerosol devices that deliver precisely-measured doses of therapeutic drugs directly to the lungs. Such devices are used primarily for the treatment of asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary diseases, including chronic bronchitis and emphysema.

Methyl chloroform.—The conference agreement provides for a separate rate of tax for methyl chloroform for sales and uses in 1993. The rate of tax applicable for 1993 is determined by multiplying the base tax amount applicable for the calendar year by the ozone-depleting factor assigned to methyl chloroform, and multiplyng this result by 63.02 percent. Thus, the rate of tax applicable for methyl chloroform for 1993 is the base tax amount of $3.35 per pound, multiplied by the ozone-depleting factor for methyl chloroform of 0.1, multiplied by 0.6302 for a total of $0.211 per pound.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable chemicals sold or used on or after January 1, 1993. Floor stocks taxes are imposed on taxed chemicals held on the effective dates of changes in the base tax amount.

2. DENY DEDUCTION FOR CLUB DUES

Present Law

No deduction is permitted for club dues unless the taxpayer establishes that his or hers use of the club was primarily for the furtherance of the taxpayer's trade or business and the specific expense was directly related to the active conduct of that trade or business. No deduction is permitted for an initiation or similar fee that is payable only upon joining a club if the useful life of the fee extends over more than one year. Such initiation fees are nondeductible capital expenditures.[19]

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

Under the Senate amendment, no deduction is permitted for club dues. This rule applies to all types of clubs: business, social, athletic, luncheon, or sporting clubs. Specific business expenses (e.g., meals) incurred at a club would be deductible only to the extent they otherwise satisfy present-law standards for deductibility.

[19] Kenneth D. Smith, 24 TCM 899 (1965).

Effective date.—The provision is effective for club dues paid after the date of enactment.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate amendment. (However, the conference agreement on H.R. 11 includes the Senate amendment.)

3. REQUIRE REPORTING OF TAXPAYER IDENTIFICATION NUMBERS OF PARTIES IN SELLER-FINANCED MORTGAGE TRANSACTIONS

Present Law

Taxpayers are generally allowed an itemized deduction from adjusted gross income for the amount of qualified residence interest paid. If qualified residence interest is paid to an individual, the name and address (but not the taxpayer identification number)[20] of the interest recipient must be reported on Schedule A of the payor's tax return.

Individuals receiving taxable interest in excess of $400 are required to report the amounts received and the names (but not the taxpayer identification number) of the payors on Schedule B of the payee's tax return.

House Bill

The House bill provides that if any taxpayer claims a deduction for qualified residence interest on any seller-provided financing, such taxpayer (the buyer) shall include on his or her tax return the name, address, and taxpayer identification number of the person (the seller) to whom the interest is paid or accrued. In general, this information must be furnished on Schedule A of the buyer's tax return for every year in which the buyer deducts this interest.

The House bill further provides that if any person receives or accrues interest from seller-provided financing, such person (the seller) shall include on his or her tax return the name, address, and taxpayer identification number of the person (the buyer) from whom the interest is received or accrued. In general, this information must be furnished on Schedule B of the seller's tax return for every year in which the seller is required to include this interest in income.

If any person involved in seller-provided financing is required to include on his or her tax return the taxpayer identification number of another person, such other person is required to furnish his or her taxpayer identification number to such person. Information would not be required to be reported under this provision to the extent it would be duplicative of existing information reporting requirements±.

Failure to meet the requirements for information reporting described above are subject to information reporting penalties under section 6723. In general, these penalties are $50 for each failure.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1991.

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill. The conferees anticipate that all parties to real estate closings will make every effort to inform both buyers and sellers of the requirements of this provision, and will also facilitate (to the maximum extent possible) the exchange of taxpayer identification numbers between buyers and sellers.

4. EXPANSION OF 45-DAY INTEREST-FREE PERIOD FOR CERTAIN REFUNDS

Present Law

No interest is paid by the Government on a refund arising from an income tax return if the refund is issued by the 45th day after the later of the due date for the return (determined without regard to any extensions) or the date the return is filed (sec. 6611(e)).

There is no parallel rule for refunds of taxes other than income taxes (i.e., employment, excise, and estate and gift taxes), for refunds of any type of tax arising from amended returns, or for claims for refunds of any type of tax.

If a taxpayer files a timely original return with respect to any type of tax and later files an amended return claiming a refund, and if the IRS determines that the taxpayer is due a refund on the basis of the amended return, the IRS will pay the refund with interest computed from the due date of the original return.

House Bill

No interest is to be paid by the Government on a refund arising from any type of original tax return if the refund is issued by the 45th day after the later of the due date for the return (determined without regard to any extensions) or the date the return is filed.

A parallel rule applies to amended returns and claims for refunds: if the refund is issued by the 45th day after the date the amended return or claim for refund is filed, no interest is to be paid by the Government for that period of up to 45 days (interest would continue to be paid for the period from the due date of the return to the date the amended return or claim for refund is filed). If the IRS does not issue the refund by the 45th day after the date the amended return or claim for refund is filed, interest would be paid (as under present law) for the period from the due date of the original return to the date the IRS pays the refund.

A parallel rule also applies to IRS-initiated adjustments (whether due to computational adjustments or audit adjustments). With respect to these adjustments, the IRS is to pay interest for 45 fewer days than it otherwise would.

Effective date.—The extension of the 45-day processing rule is effective for returns required to be filed (without regard to extensions) on or after July 1, 1992. The amended return rule is effective for amended returns and claims for refunds filed on or after July 1, 1992 (regardless of the taxable period to which they relate). The rule relating to IRS-initiated adjustments is applicable to refunds paid on or after July 1, 1992 (regardless of the taxable period to which they relate).

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision. (However, the conference agreement on H.R. 11 includes the House bill provision (with a different effective date).)

5. ACCESS TO TAX INFORMATION BY THE DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS

Present Law

The Internal Revenue Code prohibits disclosure of tax returns and return information of taxpayers, with exceptions for authorized disclosure to certain Governmental entities in certain enumerated instances (Code sec. 6103). Unauthorized disclosure is a felony punishable by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment of not more than five years, or both (sec. 7213). An action for civil damages also may be brought for unauthorized disclosure (sec. 7431).

Among the disclosures permitted under the Code is disclosure to the Department of Veterans Affairs (DVA) of self-employment tax information and certain tax information supplied to the IRS and SSA by third-parties. Disclosure is permitted to assist DVA in determining eligibility for, and establishing correct benefit amounts under, certain of its needs-based pension and other programs (sec. 6103(l)(7)(viii)). The income tax returns filed by the veterans themselves are not disclosed to DVA.

The DVA disclosure provision expired after September 30, 1992.

House Bill

The House bill extends the authority to disclose tax information to the DVA for five years.

Effective date.—The DVA disclosure provision is effective October 1, 1992, and expires after September 30, 1997.

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

6. DEDUCTION FOR MOVING EXPENSES

Present Law

An employee or self-employed individual may deduct from gross income certain expenses incurred as a result of moving to a new residence in connection with beginning work at a new location. For a taxpayer to claim a moving expense deduction, the new principal place of work has to be at least 35 miles farther from his or her former residence than was the former principal place of work (or his or her former residence, if he or she has no former place of work).

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment increases the mileage threshold for the moving expense deduction to 55 miles.

Effective date.—Taxable years beginning after December 31, 1992.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate amendment.

7. PERCENTAGE DEPLETION DEDUCTION FOR MERCURY, ASBESTOS, URANIUM, AND LEAD

Present Law

Taxpayers are allowed to deduct a reasonable allowance for depletion relating to the acquisition and certain related costs of mines or other hard mineral deposits. The depletion deduction for any taxable year is calculated under either the cost depletion method or the percentage depletion method, whichever results in the greater allowance for depletion for the year.

Under the cost depletion method, the taxpayer deducts that portion of the adjusted basis of the property which is equal to the ratio of the units sold from that property during the taxable year, to the estimated total units remaining at the beginning of that year.

Under the percentage depletion method, a deduction is allowed in each taxable year for a statutory percentage of the taxpayer's gross income from the property. The statutory percentage for mercury, asbestos, uranium, and lead is 22 percent, except that in the case of mercury and lead mined outside the United States the rate is 14 percent, and in the case of asbestos mined outside the United States the rate is 10 percent. The percentage depletion deduction for these minerals may not exceed 50 percent of the net income from the property for the taxable year (computed without allowance for deletion). Percentage depletion is not limited to the taxpayer's basis in the property; thus, the aggregate amount of percentage depletion deductions claimed may exceed the amount expended by the taxpayer to acquire and develop the property.

House Bill

The House bill repeals the percentage depletion deduction for mercury, asbestos, uranium, and lead. Thus, the depletion deduction for these minerals would be determined under the cost depletion method.

Effective date.—Taxable years beginning after December 31, 1992.

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not contain the House bill provision.

8. TELEPHONE EXCISE TAX EXEMPTION FOR NEWS SERVICES

Present Law

A three-percent excise tax is imposed on amounts paid for local and toll (long-distance) telephone service and teletypewriter exchange service. Certain exemptions are provided, including an exemption for certain communications services furnished to news services for the use in collection or dissemination of news (except local telephone service to news services).

House Bill

The House bill repeals the exemption from the telephone excise tax for communications services furnished to news services for use in collection or dissemination of news.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for service after December 31, 1992.

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the provision.

9. EXCISE TAX ON CERTAIN INSURANCE PREMIUMS PAID TO CERTAIN FOREIGN PERSONS

Present Law

An excise tax generally is imposed by Code section 4371 on any insurance policy covering U.S. risks that is issued by a foreign insurer not engaged in business in the United States. The tax is imposed at the following rates: (1) 4 percent of the premium paid on a casualty insurance policy or indemnity bond; (2) 1 percent of the premium paid on a policy of life, sickness, or accident insurance, or annuity contracts on the lives or hazards to the person of a U.S. citizen or resident; and (3) 1 percent of the premium paid on a policy of reinsurance covering any of the contracts taxable under (1) or (2).

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment revises the excise tax imposed on insurance premiums paid to foreign insurance companies by raising to 4 percent the excise tax on certain premiums paid to foreign persons for reinsurance covering casualty insurance and indemnity bonds. The Senate amendment subjects premiums to the increased excise tax unless (1) the premiums are paid to a foreign insurer or reinsurer that is a resident of a foreign country, (2) the insurance income (including investment income) relating to the policy of reinsurance is subject to tax by a foreign country or countries at an effective rate that is substantial in relation to the tax imposed under the Code on similar premiums received by U.S. reinsurers, and (3) the insured risk is not reinsured (whether directly or through a series of transactions or business relationships or practices having the same effect) by a resident of another foreign country who is not subject to a substantial tax (as defined in condition (2)) on the income. In cases where all three conditions are satisfied, the excise tax is imposed at the present-law rate of 1 percent.

The Senate amendment authorizes such collection and enforcement mechanisms (e.g., closing agreements) as the Secretary may specify in order to ensure that any excise tax due on any reinsurance of the U.S. risk is collected.

Effective date.—The provision applies to premiums paid after the date of the bill's enactment, but only to the extent that they are allocable to reinsurance coverage for periods after December 31, 1992.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate amendment.

10. CHANGES IN WITHHOLDING ON GAMBLING WINNINGS

Present Law

In general, proceeds from a wagering transaction are subject to withholding at a rate of 20 percent if such proceeds exceed $1,000 and if the amount of such proceeds is at least 300 times as large as the amount wagered. The proceeds from a wagering transaction are determined by subtracting from the amount received the amount wagered. Any non-monetary proceeds that are received are taken into account at fair market value.

In the case of State-conducted lotteries, proceeds from a wager are subject to withholding at a rate of 20 percent if such proceeds exceed $5,000, regardless of the odds of the wager. This rule applies only if the wager is placed with the State agency conducting the lottery or with its authorized agents or employees.

In the case of sweepstakes, wagering pools, or lotteries other than State-conducted lotteries, proceeds from a wager are subject to withholding at a rate of 20 percent if such proceeds exceed $1,000, regardless of the odds of the wager.

No withholding tax is imposed on winnings from a slot machine, bingo, or keno.

House Bill

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, H.R. 5660 as passed by the House contains a provision for an increase in the rate of withholding similar to that included in the conference agreement below.)

Senate Amendment

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, H.R. 11 as amended by the Senate contains the same provision as included in the conference agreement below.)

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement increases the rate of withholding on gambling winnings from 20 percent to 28 percent. The conference agreement also increases the threshold for withholding on proceeds from a wagering transaction from $1,000 to $5,000. The additional requirement for withholding that the proceeds of the wager be at lease 300 times the amount of the wager applies to the same extent as under present law.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for payments made after December 31, 1992.

11. INCREASE BACKUP WITHHOLDING RATE

Present Law

Under section 3406, a payor is required to withhold on "reportable payments", such as interest and dividends, at a rate of 20 percent if: (1) the payee fails to furnish his taxpayer identification number (TIN) to the payor; (2) the IRS notifies the payor that the payee's TIN is incorrect; (3) a notified payee underreporting has occurred (as described in sec. 3406(c)); or (4) a payee certification failure with respect to reportable payments has occurred (as described in sec. 3406(d)).

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

No provision. (However, H.R. 11, as amended by the Senate, contains the same provision that is included in the conference agreement below.)

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement increases the rate of withholding with respect to backup withholding from 20 percent to 31 percent.

Effective date.—The conference agreement is effective for amounts paid after December 31, 1992.

12. CLASSIFICATION OF CERTAIN INTERESTS IN CORPORATIONS AS STOCK OR INDEBTEDNESS

Present Law

There presently is no definition in the Internal Revenue Code or the income tax regulations which can be used to determine whether an interest in a corporation constitutes debt or equity for Federal income tax purposes. The characterization of an investment in a corporation as debt or equity for Federal income tax purposes generally is determined under principles developed in case law by reference to numerous factors intended to identify the economic substance of the investor's interest in the corporation.

House Bill

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, section 3 of H.R. 5641 as passed by the House contains a similar provision as included in the conference agreement below.)

Senate Amendment

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, H.R. 11 as amended by the Senate contains the same provision as included in the conference agreement below.)

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement provides that the characterization (as of the time of issuance) of a corporate instrument as stock or debt by the corporate issuer is binding on the issuer and on all holders. This characterization, however, is not binding on the Secretary of the Treasury. Neither a holder nor an issuer is excused from any interest or penalties that might result under present law from an improper characterization.

Except as provided in regulations, a holder who treats such instrument in a manner inconsistent with such characterization must disclose the inconsistent treatment on such holder's tax return.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to require such information as is deemed necessary to implement the provision.

Effective date.—Instruments issued after the date of enactment.

13. TREATMENT OF PRE-CONTRIBUTION GAIN IN CERTAIN PARTNERSHIP REDEMPTIONS

Present Law

If property contributed to a partnership by a partner is subsequently distributed to another partner within 5 years of the contribution, the contributing partner generally recognizes gain as if the property had been sold for its fair market value at the time of the distribution. Present law generally does not require a partner who contributes appreciated property to a partnership to recognize pre-contribution gain upon a subsequent distribution of other property to that partner even if the value of that other property exceeds the partner's basis in his partnership interest.

House Bill

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, H.R. 11 as passed by the House contains the same provision as included in the conference agreement below.)

Senate Amendment

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, H.R. 11 as amended by the Senate contains the same provision as included in the conference agreement below.)

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement requires a partner who contributes appreciated property to a partnership to include pre-contribution gain in income to the extent that the value of other property distributed by the partnership to that partner exceeds his adjusted basis in his partnership interest. The provision applies whether or not the contributing partner's interest in the partnership is reduced in connection with the distribution. In accordance with the 5-year limitation of present law, the provision applies only if the distribution is made within 5 years after the contribution of the appreciated property. The conference agreement provides rules for taking into consideration multiple contributions by the same partner within the five-year period and generally permits the netting of pre-contribution losses against pre-contribution gains. Generally, the character of the gain is determined by reference to the character of the net pre-contribution gain.

For example, assume A and B form a partnership. A contributes appreciated property X and B contributes property Y, which has a basis equal to its value at the time of contribution. Y is distributed to A within 5 years, at a time when there have been no intervening distributions or dispositions of property by the partnership. Under the provision, A includes in income his pre-contribution gain with respect to X to the extent the value of Y exceeds A's basis in his partnership interest.

Appropriate basis adjustments are to be made in the basis of the distributee partner's interest in the partnership and the partnership's basis in the contributed property to take account of gain recognized by the distributee partner.

Gain recognition generally is not required to the extent the partnership distributes property which had been contributed by the distributee partner. Rules are provided, however, to prevent avoidance of pre-contribution gain (under this provision and under the recognition provisions of present law) through the use of entities.

Under these rules, if the property distributed consists of an interest in an entity, gain recognition is required to the extent that the value of the interest in the entity is attributable to property contributed to the entity after the interest in it was contributed to the partnership. Similarly, the conference agreement provides that if contributed property is distributed indirectly to a partner other than its contributor, the contributing partner is subject to tax on the pre-contribution gain as if the property had been distributed directly rather than indirectly.

For example, assume that A and B form a partnership. A contributes appreciated property X and B contributes property Y, which is also appreciated. A also contributes the stock of C, a corporation with no substantial assets. Instead of distributing Y to A, the partnership contributes Y to C, then distributes the stock of C back to A. Under the provision, A must include in income pre-contribution gain with respect to X to the extent the value of the C stock (taking into account the volume of Y) exceeds his basis in his partnership interest. In addition, B must include in income pre-contribution gain with respect to Y.

The conferees intend that the provision be coordinated with the rules governing partnership terminations (sec. 708).[21] Pre-contribution gain otherwise required to be recognized under the provision is not triggered by a constructive termination under section 708(b)(1)(B). A constructive termination does not change the application of the sharing requirements of 704(c) of present law to pre-contribution gain with respect to property contributed to the partnership before the termination. Partners will recognize gain in connection with any distribution of partnership property within 5 years following the constructive termination, to the extent of their respective shares of the pre-termination appreciation in the value of the partnership property that is not already required to allocated to the original contributor (if any) of the property.

Effective date.—The provision applies to partnership distributions on or after June 25, 1992.

14. DENY DEDUCTION FOR TRAVEL EXPENSES PAID OR INCURRED IN CONNECTION WITH EMPLOYMENT LASTING ONE YEAR OR MORE

Present Law

Unreimbursed ordinary and necessary travel expenses paid or incurred by an individual in connection with temporary employment away from home (e.g., transportation costs, and the cost of meals and lodging) are generally deductible, subject to the two-percent floor on miscellaneous itemized deductions. Travel expenses paid or incurred in connection with indefinite employment away from home, however, are not deductible.[22]

The position of the Internal Revenue Service as to whether employment is temporary or indefinite is as follows:

(1) If a taxpayer anticipates employment to last for less than one year, whether such employment is temporary or indefinite will be determined on the basis of the facts and circumstances.

(2) If a taxpayer anticipates employment to last for one year or more and that employment does, in fact, last for one year or more, there is a presumption that the employment is not temporary but rather is indefinite, and that the taxpayer is not away from home during the indefinite period of employment. However, under certain circumstances, this one-year presumption of indefiniteness may be rebutted where the employment is expected to, and does, last for one year or more, but less than two years.

(3) An expected or actual stay of two years or longer will be considered an indefinite stay, regardless of any other facts and circumstances.[23]

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

No provision. (However, H.R. 11 as amended by the Senate contains the same provision that is included in the conference report below.)

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement treats a taxpayer's employment away from home in a single location as indefinite rather than temporary if it lasts for one year or more. Thus, no deduction would be permitted for travel expenses paid or incurred in connection with such employment. As under present law, if a taxpayer's employment away from home in a single location lasts for less than one year, whether such employment is temporary or indefinite would be determined on the basis of the facts and circumstances. This change is not intended to alter present law with respect to volunteer individuals providing voluntary services to charities described in section 501(c)(3).

Effective date. The provision is effective for costs paid or incurred after December 31, 1992.

15. REPORTING OF AMOUNTS OF PROPERTY TAX REIMBURSEMENTS PAID TO SELLERS OF RESIDENCES

Present Law

Individual taxpayers who itemize deductions may deduct State and local real property taxes. Under Code section 164(d)(1), if real property is sold during any real property tax year, the part of the real property tax that is properly allocable to that part of the year that ends on the day before the date of sale is treated as imposed on the seller. The part of the real property tax that is properly allocable to that part of the year that begins on the date of sale is treated as imposed on the buyer.

Under present law, real estate transactions are required to be reported on a return to the IRS and on statements to the customers. In general, the primary responsibility for reporting is on the "real estate reporting person," that is, the person responsible for closing the transactions, including any title company or attorney who closes the transaction. If there is no person responsible for closing the transaction, the real estate reporting person is the first person who exists in the following order: the mortgage lender, the seller's broker, the buyer's broker, or such other person designated in regulations prescribed by the Secretary.

House Bill

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, H.R. 5638 as passed by the House contains the same provision as included in the conference agreement below.)

Senate Amendment

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, H.R. 11 as amended by the Senate contains the same provision as included in the conference agreement below.)

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement provides that in the case of a real estate transaction involving a residence, the real estate reporting person is required to include on an information return and on the customer statements the portion of any real property tax that is treated as a tax imposed on the purchaser. The conferees expect that the Treasury will promptly provide guidance with respect to the reporting requirement imposed by the bill. In connection therewith, the conferees anticipate that such guidance will permit the real estate reporting person to report such portion by reference to specified line items on the HUD-1 form or any comparable form provided at the closing of the transaction.

[21] This coordination is intended to be consistent with the coordination provided with respect to the present-law pre-contribution gain rules in the case of a partnership termination. See Report of the Committee on the Budget, House of Representatives, Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 (Sept. 20, 1989) at 1357; and Senate Finance Committee, Committee Print, Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1989 (Oct. 12, 1989) at 197–198).

Effective date.—The provision is effective for transactions after December 31, 1992.

16. USE OF 501(C)(21) BLACK LUNG TRUST ASSETS TO FUND RETIREE HEALTH BENEFITS

Present Law

A qualified black lung benefit trust described in section 501(c)(21) of the Internal Revenue Code is exempt from Federal income taxation, In addition, a deduction is allowed for contributions to a qualified black lung benefit trust to the extent such contributions are necessary to fund the trust.

Under present law, no assets of a qualified black lung benefit trust may be used for, or diverted to, any purpose other than (1) to satisfy liabilities, or pay insurance premiums to cover liabilities, arising under the Black Lung Acts, (2) to pay administrative costs of operating the trust, or (3) investment in U.S., State, or local securities and obligations, or in time demand deposits in a bank or insured credit union.

Under present law, excess trust assets may be paid into the national Black Lung Disability Trust Fund, or into the general fund of the U.S. Treasury.

House Bill

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, H.R. 11 as passed by the House included the provision described in the conference agreement below.)

Senate Amendment

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, H.R. 11 as passed by the Senate included the provision described in the conference agreement below.)

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement allows excess assets in qualified black lung benefit trusts to be used to pay accident and health benefits or premiums for insurance for such benefits (including administrative and other incidental expenses relating to such benefits) for retired coal miners and their spouses and dependents. The amount of assets available for such purpose is subject to a yearly limit as well as an aggregate limit. The yearly limit is to be the amount of assets in excess of 110 percent of the present value of the liability for black lung benefits determined as of the close of the preceding taxable year of the trust. The aggregate limit is the amount of assets in excess of 110 percent of the present value of the liability for black lung benefits determined as of the close of the taxable year of the trust ending prior to the effective date, plus earnings thereon. Each of these determinations is required to be made by an independent actuary.

The amounts used to pay retiree accident or health benefits are not includible in the income of the company, nor is a deduction allowed for such amounts.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1991.

17. INCLUSION OF PROPERTY QUALIFYING FOR THE MARITAL DEDUCTION IN THE GROSS ESTATE

Present Law

A marital deduction against the estate and gift tax generally is permitted for the value of property passing between spouses. No marital deduction is permitted, however, if, upon termination of the spouse's interest, possession or enjoyment of the property passes to another person (the "terminable interest rule"). Certain exceptions to this rule may apply if the spouse receives a general power of appointment over, or an income interest in, a "specific portion" of property (sec. 2056(b)(5), (6), (7)). The spouse is subject to transfer tax on property over which he or she holds a general power of appointment.

A Treasury regulation defines a "specific portion" to be a fractional or percentage share of a property interest (Treas. Reg. sec. 20.2056(b)-5(c)). Finding this regulation invalid, courts have held that the term "specific portion" includes a fixed dollar amount. See Northeastern Pennsylvania National Bank & Trust Co. v. United States, 387 U.S. 213 (1967); Estate of Alexander v. Commissioner, 82 T.C. 34 (1984), aff'd, No. 8401600 (4th Cir. April 3, 1985). Under the court holdings, appreciation in certain marital deduction property may be includible in neither spouse's estate.

House Bill

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, H.R. 11 as passed by the House contains the same provision as included in the conference agreement described below).

Senate Amendment

No provision in H.R. 776. (However, H.R. 11 as amended by the Senate contains the same provisions as included in the conference agreement described below).

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement provides that, for purposes of marital deduction, a "specific portion" only includes a portion determined on a fractional or percentage basis. Thus, a trust does not qualify under the exceptions to the terminable interest rule unless the required income interest and general power of appointment are expressed as a fraction or a percentage of the property.

It is intended that no inference be drawn from the provision with respect to the definition of "specific portion" under present law. The conference agreement does not generally affect the marital deduction allowed for a pecuniary formula marital deduction bequest. See, e.g., Rev. Proc. 64-19, 1964-1 C.B. 682.

Effective date.—The provision generally applies to gifts made, and decedents dying, after date of enactment, after date of enactment. The provision does not apply to a transfer under a will or revocable trust executed before the date of enactment if either (1) on that date the decedent was under a mental disability to change the disposition of his property and did not regain his competence to dispose of such property before the date of death, or (2) the decedent dies within three years after the date of enactment, The provision applies years after the date of enactment. The provision applies, however, if the will or trust is amended after the date of enactment in any respect that increases the amount of the transfer qualifying for the marital deduction or alters the terms by which the interest passes.

C. HEALTH BENEFITS FOR RETIRED COAL MINERS

Present Law

The United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) health and retirement funds were established in 1974 pursuant to an agreement between the UMWA and the Bituminous Coal Operator's Association (BCOA) to provide pension and health benefits to retired coal miners and their dependents. The funds have been maintained for this purpose through a series of collective bargaining agreements. The funds created in 1974 were a restructuring of the original benefit fund, which was established in 1946.

The funds consist of four different plans, each of which is funded through a separate trust. The 1950 Pension Plan provides retirement benefits to miners who retired on or before December 31, 1975, and their beneficiaries. The 1950 Benefit Plan provides health benefits for retired mine workers who receive pensions from the 1950 Pension Plan and their dependents. The 1974 Pension Plan provides retirement benefits to miners who retire after December 31, 1975, and their beneficiaries. The 1974 Benefit Plan provides health benefits to miners who retire after December 31, 1975. It also provides health benefits to miners whose last employers are no longer in business or, in some cases, no longer signatory to the applicable bargaining agreement. These miners are generally referred to as "orphan" retirees.

The Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, as amended, imposes a reclamation fee on coal mining operators, payable quarterly to the Secretary of the Interior for deposit in the Abandoned Mine Reclamation Fund (the AML Fund). The fee generally is the lesser of (1) 35 cents per ton of coal produced by surface coal mining and 15 cents per ton of coal produced by underground mine or (2) 10 percent of the value of the coal at the mine. The fee for lignite is the lesser of 2 percent of the value of the coal at the mine or 10 cents per ton. The reclamation fee is scheduled to expire after September 30, 1995.

House Bill

The House bill extends the abandoned mine reclamation fee through September 30, 2010.

Effective date.—Date of enactment.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment provides that the 1950 Benefit Plan and the 1974 Benefit Plan are to be merged into a new UNWA Combined Benefit Fund ("Combined Fund") to provide health and death benefits for eligible retirees and their dependents. The Combined Fund is to be finances primarily by health benefit premiums, death benefit premiums, and unassigned beneficiaries premiums imposed on assigned operators. The Combined Fund will receive additional funding from transfers from the 1950 Pension Plan and the AML Fund. The amendment also creates a 1992 Benefit Fund to provide benefits for persons not eligible under the Combined Fund.

The Senate amendment extends the abandoned mine reclamation fund fee through September 30, 2004.

Conference Agreement

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

D. TRADE PROVISION: ANTICIRCUMVENTION OF ANTIDUMPING AND COUNTERVAILING DUTY ORDERS

Present Law

The Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988 expanded antidumping and countervailing duty law to authorize the Department of Commerce to take action to address attempts to circumvent outstanding orders through U.S. or third country assembly operations using parts imported from the country subject to the original order.

House Bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

Authorizes Commerce Department to expand order to include imported parts from any country, not just the country subject to the order.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate amendment.

TITLE XXI—ENERGY AND THE ENVIRONMENT

Sec. 2118. Electric and Magnetic Fields Research and Public Information Dissemination Program

It is the intent of the Conferees to provide for the establishment of a national EMF program through the broad based representation of all of the affected interest groups on the Advisory Board for the program. To insure the participation of state regulators critical to the success of the comprehensive national program, the Conferees urge the Secretary of Energy and the Secretary of Health and Human Services to provide for the appropriate representation of state regulatory and health officials on the Advisory Board for the program.

It is the intent of the Congress that the Program provide for the dissemination to the public of information on electric and magnetic fields. Such information dissemination shall reflect the latest information, including relative risk assessments, on electric and magnetic fields, and shall be updated periodically as appropriate. It shall be in a form that is appropriate and useful to people who are not experts. It may include, for example, the development and dissemination of a pamphlet.

TITLE XXIV—NON-FEDERAL POWER ACT HYDROPOWER PROVISIONS

Sec. 2407.

The Conferees adopted a provision with respect to three hydroelectric projects located in the State of Alaska. It is intended and expected that the FERC will undertake, on a highly expedited basis, action on the applications made pursuant to this section.

TITLE XXX—MISCELLANEOUS

Sec. 3016. Tar Sands

It is the Conferees' intent that no inference, either positive or negative, should be drawn regarding the use of the definition of tar sands for purposes other than the study provided for in this section.

Sec. 3017. Farmouts

The House and Senate bills contain similar language excluding oil and gas interests transferred in a farmout agreement from property for bankruptcy purposes. The Senate recedes to the House language with a technical amendment.

Sec. 3018. Radiation Exposure Compensation

The Senate amendment contained a provision (section 19106) that would amend the Radiation Exposure Compensation Act (42 U.S.C. 2210 note) to provide that an individual whose claim for compensation is denied may seek judicial review solely in a district court of the United States.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate provision was included to clarify the Radiation Exposure Compensation Act, which does not specify the appropriate forum for judicial review of denied claims. The ambiguity could generate needless litigation and consume claimant awards. The Senate provision resolves this ambiguity by designating U.S. District Court as the forum for judicial review.

TITLE XXIV—SECTION 2405

While the Conferees are not adopting section 5304(f) of the Senate amendments, this should not be interpreted as discouraging water conservation activities. Water conservation in the Columbia River Basin has tremendous potential for providing benefits for fish mitigation and enhancement, electric power production and other river uses. The Conferees encourage water conservation activities in the Pacific Northwest within existing Federal statutes.

TITLE XXIV—SECTION 2406

Congress recognizes that the Army Corps of Engineers and the Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation, as the private sponsor, are cooperating on a project to raise the height of Chief Joseph Dam, in Washington State, to increase hydroelectric production; and that the Bonneville Power Administration is actively involved with the Colville Tribes and Corps of Engineers in current discussions on the various methods of funding the project, if the project proves to be cost-effective, and on how BPA will market the increased power to be generated. This cooperative effort is appropriate because the Chief Joseph Project (dam and reservoir) is located at or on the Colville Reservation. Funding alternatives for the project would include either Bonneville direct funding with the Colville Tribes being compensated for their contributions to the project or indirect Bonneville funding through the Tribes as the project sponsor. Nothing in Title XXIV is intended to interfere with or limit the ability of the Army Corps of Engineers and the Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation to continue their cooperative efforts to develop the pool raise at the Chief Joseph Project, or interfere with the continued cooperative discussions with the Bonneville Power Administration.

This provision would clarify that the Secretaries of the Departments of the Army and the Interior can accept and use funds provided directly by the Bonneville Power Administration to construct and operate hydropower improvements, and operate and maintain Federal power facilities, at Federal projects in the Pacific Northwest. Direct funding will increase coordination, efficiency and power output at Federal projects in a fiscally responsible manner. No taxpayer subsidy of ratepayers is involved. The provision will also provide a means of replacing a portion of the electric energy which will be lost because of changes being made to the operation of the Pacific Northwest hydroelectric system to achieve recovery of the Columbia River basin salmon runs in a cost effective manner to the Bonneville ratepayer. This provision would allow the use of existing Bonneville financial flexibility to implement hydropower improvements, including any fish and wildlife mitigation and enhancement facilities affected by the improvements. This provision would not modify or affect the applicability of any provisions of the Northwest Power Act or 33 U.S.C. section 2286 (P.L. 99-662, section 1146) which authorizes the Secretary of the Army to accept funds from others to mitigate for fish and wildlife in connection with projects constructed or operated by the Secretary.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to clarify section 902(a) of H.R. 5334, the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992, which would establish a new position of Special Assistant for Indian and Alaska Native Programs to be located in the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Public and Indian Housing. The purpose of this subsection is to consolidate all Indian housing and community development activities of the Department of Housing and Urban Development in one office to ensure the efficient and productive coordination of these activities. I would like to emphasize that this position is intended to be a competitive, career appointment. It is also fully intended to be a position in the Senior Executive Service consistent with the heavy responsibilities of an individual who will be held accountable for the effective administration of the Department's Indian housing and community development activities. Also, while we have given this position the title of special assistant it would not be inappropriate for the Department to assign this individual a different job title, such as director, where such title is consistent with the titles of other individuals under the authority of the Assistant Secretary for Public and Indian Housing with similar responsibilities.

JOINT EXPANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 3635) to amend the Public Health Service Act to revise and extend the program of block grants for preventive health and health services, and for other purpose, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment struck out all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The House recedes from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate with an amendment which is a substitute for the House bill and the Senate amendment. The differences between the House bill, the Senate amendment, and the substitute agreed to in conference are noted below, except for clerical corrections, conforming changes made necessary by agreements reached by the conferees, and minor drafting and clarifying changes.

THE PREVENTIVE HEALTH AMENDMENTS OF 1992

The Conference Report revises and extends a number of authorities related to public health. These programs provide Federal funding for efforts to prevent disease, illness, and disability, and to promote health through risk reduction and other preventive health measures, as well as for screening and early intervention for infectious and chronic diseases.

THE PREVENTIVE HEALTH AND HEALTH SERVICES BLOCK GRANT

The conference report revises and extends the Preventive Health and Health Services Block Grant. The authorization of the program is increased to $205 million. Allocations from these funds for services for rape victims and for rape prevention are doubled from $3.5 million to $7 million.

The allowable uses of these block grant funds are expanded to include activities that are intended to make progress toward the goals identified in the Department of Health and Human Services report, "Health People 2000: National Health Promotion and Disease Prevention Objectives." The Conferees stress that they intend for States to use their block grant funds both to improve the health status of the general populations within the States as well as to work toward eliminating disparities between the general health status and that of identifiable subpopulations, including geographical, racial, ethnic, gender, or other groups. In establishing the use of funds by the States under the block grant, the Conferees emphasize that the State advisory committees are to consult with local health agencies, community-based organizations (including minority community-based organizations), and other providers of services that affect public health.

States may use block grant funds for the improvement of minority health (including the establishment of State minority health offices) and the health of women. These funds may also be used for the training of State public health personnel in short-term, in-service training programs. States are also allowed to use funds for continuing medical education for the prevention of transmission of bloodborne disease.

The conferees have continued the law's requirement that States use block grant funds to supplement, not supplant, State funds for preventive health activities. The conference report requires that States maintain State expenditures at a level not less than the average level of the 2-year period preceding the grant. The conferees intend that this requirement apply to the total ongoing State preventive health activities that might be supplemented under this block grant. The conferees do not intend to require that a State maintain its funding levels for individual activities from year to year, so long as its aggregate efforts are not supplanted by this grant.

TRAUMA CARE SYSTEM ACTIVITY

The conference report does not include the House-passed provisions regarding the transfer of trauma care system activity. The conferees have deferred until FY 1994 a final decision over the transfer of administration for the Trauma Care Systems Planning and Development Act (P.L. 101-590) from the Health Resources and Services Administration to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The conferees note that the authorization of appropriations for this important activity expires at the end of FY 1993 and that legislation extending the program will be considered during the First Session of the 103rd Congress. Although there continues to be strong support for consolidating trauma care activities with related programs administered by the CDC's National Center for Injury Prevention and Control, a recent plan approved by HHS establishing a Division of Trauma and Emergency Medical Systems within the Bureau of Health Services Development and the allocation of twelve professional and six support staff to the Division reflects the beginning of an institutional commitment to administer fully this activity. Although a permanent director for the new Division has yet to be selected, and only a small percentage of authorized staffing levels have been attained, the conferees have concluded that a final decision on the disposition of this program can be deferred pending consideration of reauthorization legislation next year.

THE CDC FOUNDATION

The conference report provides for the establishment of a non-profit foundation to carry out activities for the prevention and control of diseases, disorders, injuries, and disabilities, and for the promotion of public health. The Conferees adopt the report of the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House regarding these provisions.

In addition, the conferees intend that the Secretary report, within one year of enactment of this conference report, on the proper role of Federal agencies (operating under the Public Health Service Act) as they relate to federally chartered foundations, the standards and procedures derived from such findings, the status of the relevant implementation, and identification of any related matters requiring clarification through further legislation regarding, but not limited to, cooperative research and development agreements under the Technology Transfer Act and adequate compensation to Federal agencies for the utilization of Federal resources, including, but not limited to, employees, facilities, property, and buildings.

INJURY CONTROL

The conference report amends the program for injury control to allow for the conduct of demonstration projects for the prevention of injuries at additional sites. In addition, the conference report provides for the distribution of injury control materials in the Nation's schools.

ADOLESCENT HEALTH

In response to the report of the Office of Technology Assessment entitled "Adolescent Health," the conference report provides for the establishment of an Office of Adolescent Health within the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Health. This office is authorized to make demonstration grants for the improvement of adolescent health, including provisions authorizing an effort recently begun by the Secretary of HHS regarding the promotion of health among minority males.

LEAD POISONING PREVENTION

The conference report revises and extends programs for screening infants and children for lead poisoning. In addition, the conference report creates a program to educate health professionals and paraprofessionals, as well as the public, about the prevention of lead poisoning in infants and children. The conference report also provides for the establishment of an interagency task force to coordinate the efforts of Federal agencies to prevent lead poisoning. Finally, the conference report requires that the CDC provide for the development of improved and more cost-effective testing measures for detecting lead toxicity in children and improved methods of assessing the prevalence of lead poisoning, for applied research, and for the collection of data.

INFERTILITY

The conference report provides for the establishment of a program of screening and treatment for preventable cases of infertility arising from sexually transmitted diseases (STD's). The conferees have adopted this in response to growing concerns about the nationwide epidemic of chlamydia and with the hope that new methods for the diagnosis and treatment of this disease will allow progress to be made in controlling this epidemic.

The conferees have established this program for infertility as an initiative distinct from the ongoing program of STD control. To the extent that activities of this program may overlap with or duplicate activities in existing programs, the conferees intend that there will be coordination of these efforts and that duplication among them will be avoided. The conferees note that as part of the reauthorization of the STD program in future years, the Congress will review the question of the consolidation of this initiative with the SDT program.

BULK PURCHASE OF VACCINES

The conference report requires that the Secretary enter into negotiations with manufacturers of vaccines to attempt to establish a consolidated purchase price that may be used by poverty health clinics funded under Sections 329, 330, 340, or 349A of the Public Health Service Act. This system is intended to be parallel to the system that has long been used by the CDC on behalf of State grantees under the childhood immunization program funded under Section 317(j)(1) of the Public Health Service Act. The conferees intend that, to the extent practicable, the Secretary establish prices for these health grantees that are as advantageous as those offered to the States under their CDC immunization grants or under their Medicaid programs.

The conferees are aware that many States already provide vaccine to community and migrant health centers from the States' CDC grants under 317(j)(1) of the Public Health Service Act. The conferees expect that these States shall continue to distribute vaccines to these centers in the same manner, and that the conference report is intended only to secure the most favorable price for those centers whose vaccines supplies are inadequate and which must pay market prices in order to secure vaccine.

COLLECTION OF DATA ON BIRTH DEFECTS

The conference report provides for the establishment of a program to improve State collection and analysis of data on birth defects. The conferees recommend that States undertake these activities cooperatively and pool birth defects statistics on a regional basis to gain greater statistical power and to identify regional trends. This provision codifies ongoing efforts at the CDC. In addition, the Secretary is required to submit the first report on this program in July 1993 and to establish a clearinghouse on birth defects information and research projects.

PREVENTION OF BREAST AND CERVICAL CANCER

The conference report makes clear that the CDC grants program for breast and cervical cancer screening is the payor of last resort for these services. Grants under the program are to be limited to those States that provide for these services under their Medicaid programs, thus ensuring that a wide range of poor, low-income, and uninsured women have access to these services.

INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION

The conference report authorizes the Public Health Service to enter into programs of international cooperation to further its public health activities.

PROSTATE CANCER

The conference report creates a new program of grants to State and local health departments for screening, referral, information, and education regarding prostate cancer. The conferees emphasize the need for coordination of this program with ongoing research efforts at the National Institutes of Health.

CHANGE IN NAME OF CENTERS FOR DISEASE CONTROL

The Conference Report changes the name of the Centers for Disease Control to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. In so doing, the conferees have recognized the leadership role of the CDC in addressing illness and disability before they occur. It is the intent of the conferees, however, that the agency continue to use and be recognized by the initial "CDC."

COMPREHENSIVE PERINATAL CARE ENHANCEMENT GRANTS

The conferees support the expansion of the current Comprehensive Perinatal Care Program within the Office of Special Populations as a vital element in an overall strategy to reduce infant mortality among at risk populations. The conferees recognize that national efforts towards this objective must include broad support for perinatal services provided in a range of primary care settings, including those operated by state and local health departments, and rural hospitals and clinics. The conferees intend additional community health centers to receive these enhancement grants, and for all grantees to expand these comprehensive services to children up to 3 years of age. These early childhood years are critical to ensure immunizations are received, and early screening for health and developmental problems are important to avoid chronic illness and disability later in life.

The conferees intend that these grants support comprehensive, continuous prenatal health care beginning as early as possible in pregnancy, and primary health care for children under age 3. Community education and outreach efforts are critical to informing women of the importance and availability of these services. Case management for pregnant women should include risk assessment and health education regarding the risks of smoking, alcohol use, substance abuse and inadequate nutrition during pregnancy. Outpatient substance abuse counselling services, and referral to treatment as necessary are critical for women with substance abuse problems.

Primary health care for children shall include preventive health care services, including screening for vision, hearing, dental conditions, developmental delay, nutritional status, and lead poisoning, the timely provision of immunizations, and referral for services under part H of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act as necessary. Parenting skill training and child development education, stressing the importance of regular health screenings, adequate nutrition, child safety measures and basic growth patterns and expectations, should be available to those caring for young children.

The conferees intend that centers receiving grants will provide the necessary support services, either directly or indirectly, to enable women to utilize services provided under the grant. Such support services may include child care, transportation, translation services, assistance in locating housing, and benefit eligibility determination. the conferees intend centers to coordinate with other local health and social service providers, local health departments, WIC programs, and recipients of grants under title V of the Social Security Act to simplify the local service delivery network for pregnant women and young children. To the maximum extent practicable, the comprehensive services provided for under grants should be delivered on site at health centers or health center satellite locations.

TOTAL BUDGET PROVISIONS

The conferees are aware that health centers face diverse financial demands in maintaining services within a changing health care financing environment. The advent of managed care in several States has placed health center fiscal viability at risk due to short-term budget shortfalls. Health centers also face difficulty in recruiting and retaining health care providers when they cannot offer competitive salaries. To address these needs, and others (such as repairs of a physical plant), the conferees intend that health centers be able to direct that portion of their income which is non-grant toward these activities. Nothing in this legislation should be construed to change in any way the Secretary's authority to audit these expenditures or to take them into account in determining appropriate grant amounts to health centers.

VACCINE INJURY COMPENSATION

The conference report includes an increase in the authorization of appropriations for compensation for the payment of claims of persons injured by vaccines before October 1, 1988. The conferees understand that these funds are dealt with as mandatory spending for purposes of appropriations and the budget. The conferees recognize that even this expansion will not be adequate to provide for full compensation in a timely manner, but they have included these provisions to allow adequate time in the 103rd Congress to address this problem comprehensively, including a review of the applicability to these cases of the recent proposals by HHS to amend the Table of Injuries and Aids to Interpretation.

The conferees also note that the vaccine information materials developed under Section 2126 of the Public Health Service Act have proven controversial and that many public health and medical professionals have called for these materials to be simplified and abbreviated. The conferees intend that the Public Health Service make recommendations to the Congress no later than January 15, 1993, on the requirements of Section 2126 and possible legislative change to the provision.

MISCELLANEOUS

The conference report also makes several amendments to Public Health Service Act authorities that are clarifying or technical in nature.

"(C) The Secretary should provide the greatest possible technical assistance to countries undertaking the measures described in subparagraph (A).

"(D)(i) The President shall, not later than 120 days after the date of the enactment of this subparagraph, determine whether Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Poland, and Czechoslovakia, or any successor state, should be removed from the list of controlled countries, based on the progress each such country has made in cooperating with the Coordinating Committee on export controls. At the time of making this determination, the President shall issue a report to the Congress providing a complete rationale for the determination, including a description of the progress that each such country has made in cooperating with the Coordinating Committee, and identifying what conditions, if any, should be met before any such country should be removed from the list of controlled countries.

"(ii) Should the President determine that any country listed in clause (i) should be removed from the list of controlled countries, the Secretary of State shall propose to the Coordinating Committee, not later than 30 days after the President's determination, that such country immediately be removed from the list of controlled countries.

"(i) Whether the stated end use is civil.

"(ii) Whether the civil application of the goods or technology is well established in countries other than controlled countries.

"(C) The presumption created by subparagraph (A) may be overcome by overriding national security concerns.

"(D) Requirements for the redesign, reengineering, or substantial modification of standard product models or configurations, and similar requirements shall not be imposed under this Act before any license application is approved for the export of goods or technology subject to control by the Coordinating Committee that is intended for civil end uses, unless the Coordinating Committee agrees to such requirements.".
